

M'ADOO FORCES DRAW FIRST BLOOD IN SCRAMBLE; FRANK FARRIS TO HEAD COMMITTEE ON RULES

Road Bond Battle Looms on Legislative Eve

BIENNIAL SESSION MEASURE SLATED FOR EARLY ACTION

Other Important Issues, Tax Reform Foremost, Loom as Annual Session
Nears.

SOLONS WILL GATHER HERE ON WEDNESDAY

Favorable Action on Biennial Sessions Measure Early in Session Is Widely Predicted.

BY RALPH T. JONES

With many important issues looming before them, Georgia legislators will gather in Atlanta Wednesday for the opening day of the regular 50-day session of 1924. Personnel of the assembly, except for three or four changes by death or resignation, will be the same as last year, this being the second year of the two-year term for which, under the Georgia constitution, members of the legislature are elected.

George H. Carswell, of Irwinton, senator from the twenty-first district, is again president of the senate, and
W. Cecil Neill, of Columbus, representative from Muscogee county, is speaker of the house. Devereaux F.
McClatchey, who has served as an official of one or the other house for more years than any other present officer, will be secretary of the senate, and Bismarck Moore, clerk of the house.

Among the leading issues calling for solution is the proposal for a state-wide bond issue for building a great system of permanent, hard-surfaced roads and for repairs and building of additional facilities for schools and colleges of the state.

Mann Leads Fight.

R. F. Mann, representative from Floyd county, will lead the fight in the house for a $40,000,000 bond in-sue for roads and an $8,000,000 bond issue for educational purposes. Mr.
Mann's proposal contemplates paying all interest charges and retiring the road bonds out of revenue from the state gasoline tax and the automobile tag license money, which is already given to the highway department and would, therefore, take care of the bonds without any increase in taxation. He proposes to take care of the educational bond issue by means of a tax on motor and lubricating oils.

The biennial sessions bill, providing that the legislature meet only every other year instead of annually as at present, is expected to come before the assembly at an early date as unfinished business from last year. This bill has already passed one branch and is awaiting its third reading before the other. Chances for its passage are reported by leaders to be excellent, as sentiment throughout the state is overwhelmingly in its favor.

Another important issue which is to receive strong backing during the session is the bill to provide that all statehouse officers, including the governor and members of the legislature, shall be elected for four years instead of two. This bill provides also that the governor shall not be a candidate for reelection. Dr. Craig Arnold, member from Lumpkin county, will introduce a bill along these lines. Dr.
Arnold, together with numerous other members of the house, is seeking election to the state senate from his district for next year.

Civil Service Bill.

Representative Lee Lander, of Floyd county, will introduce a bill to provide for a civil service commission to supervise employment of all employees of state departments, bureaus and institutions. Every state employee would come under the scope of this bill, except those already in the service of the state at the time of its passage, and one confidential secretary for each department head.

Senator Boyce Ficklen, Sr., of the fifty-first district, stated last week that his business is not to introduce bills, but to kill as many as he can.
He added "this has been my record in the general assembly for the past eight years." Senator Ficklen also stated that he has no idea of offering for re-election to the assembly, "unless the people insist on it."

Arthur Whitaker, senator from the 55th district, is another solon who contemplates no new or special legislation at this session. His preference, he said, is "to cut expenses and

2 FLIERS TOUCH BOTTOM OF LAKE IN PLANE CRASH

Chicago, June 21.—Two aviators fell from an altitude of 75 feet into Lake Michigan off Belmont Harbor here today, plunged to the bottom of the lake with their plane, managed to climb from the trap in the cockpit, rose to the surface of the water and were saved.

They were Henry C. Clark, a pilot, and Ben Timm, mechanic, both of Chicago, and were trying out a new model hydroplane belonging to Timm when Clark's trousers leg caught in the rudder control and threw the plane sideways into a wing slip. The aviators climbed through the maze of wires over the cockpit, and the plane, relieved of their weight, rose to the surface of the water a mile out in the lake and they clung to its side until a tug came to the rescue.

WATERMELON ROW WILL BE DECIDED BY FEDERAL COURT

Both Sides Plan Finish Fight as June 30 Is Set for Hearing of Temporary Restraining Order.

Preparations are being made by both sides for a finish fight when the Florida watermelon case comes up for hearing on June 30, following the granting Saturday of a temporary restraining order by Judge Samuel H.
Sibley, of federal district court, lifting the embargo on Florida watermelons passing through Georgia. The order was issued by Dr. Peter Bahnsen, state veterinarian, on the ground that pine straw used in packing melons would spread cattle ticks in the otherwise tick-free areas of Georgia.

The temporary injunction is to be effective until June 30, when the case will be heard before Judge Sibley, sitting with two other federal judges.
It was directed in Judge Sibley's order that both the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and the Seaboard Air Line railway, plaintiffs in the petition for injunction, place a bond of $10,000 each to pay all damages which may accrue should it appear that the restraining order was improperly granted.

It is further set out in the order that melon shippers in Florida nail a six or eight-inch board at the base of doors on cars routed via Georgia to prevent any sifting of the packing straw along railroad routes.

Officials at Hearing.
The hearing before Judge Sibley lasted slightly over an hour, during which time arguments were made for lifting the embargo by Governor Cary A. Hardee, of Florida; R. C. Alston, attorney for the Atlantic Coast Line;
W. J. Mayo, commissioner of agriculture for Florida, and Robert S. Parker, representing the Seaboard Air Line, Dr. Bahnsen and Attorney General George M. Napier appeared for the state of Georgia to support Dr.
Bahnsen's contention that he considered it necessary at this time to prevent the tick-infested straw from passing through Georgia.

The decision to carry the matter before the courts was reached Friday afternoon after an unsuccessful attempt had been made to arbitrate the dispute at a conference here between Governor Hardee, Commissioner Mayo
Dr. Bahnsen, Attorneys Alston and Parker and Governor Clifford Walker, who was importuned to lift the embargo. Another unsuccessful attempt was made Saturday.

1,800,000 CANS OF TOBACCO USED AS ROAD FILLER

Kearny, N. J., June 21.—Cans of tobacco totaling 1,800,000, bought for overseas troops with the contributions of patriotic citizens during the war, are being used as filler for a new road along the banks of the Hackensack river here.

The tobacco, which had been stored in French warehouses, finally was purchased by a New York concern and shipped to this country. Recently government customs inspectors condemned 6,000 cases remaining unsold as "unfit to smoke." The condemned tobacco was valued at $150,000 and an additional expense of destroying it was in sight. Finally permission was obtained to dump the tobacco in the Kearny meadows.

Cards bearing the names of donors to "Our Boys in France Tobacco Fund" have been found in nearly all the cases opened.

HARDWICK IN RACE AGAINST HARRIS; ELDERS PAYS FEE

Both Qualify for Race for Senator and Governor Respectively at Eleventh Hour.

"REFORM TAXATION; THEN BONDS," ELDERS

Hardwick Says He Is Forced Into Race by Refusal of Others To Enter.

Last-minute entries, made a few minutes before noon Saturday, when the candidate lists for the democratic primary in September closed, assured contests for the places as governor and United States senator from Georgia.

Fifteen minutes before noon Mrs.
Bessie Anderson, secretary of the state democratic executive committee, received a check for $250 from former Governor Thomas W. Hardwick to pay his entrance fee as a candidate for the senate against the present incumbent, William J. Harris, who is seeking reelection.

A few minutes earlier Mrs. Anderson received a check for a like amount from Herschel H. Elders, of Reids-ville, qualifying him as a candidate for the governorship against Governor
Clifford Walker, seeking reelection.

These two were the only additional candidates to qualify on Saturday.
The remainder of the list remaining the same as it stood on Friday night.
No "Personal Feeling."

In a statement given out Saturday afternoon former Governor Hardwick declared that his opposition to Senator Harris was not based on personal feeling, but that the issues of policy between them "are as wide and deep as the ocean."

Mr. Hardwick promised to outline his platform and to present Senator
Harris' record.

PEACE FAR AWAY IN RHODE ISLAND

Committee of Prominent Citizens Named To Attempt Settlement of War
That Splits State.

Providence, R. I., June 21.—(By The Associated Press.)—The breach in the ranks of the state senate, created yesterday when its republican members left the state, was still unhealed tonight.

The senate was in recess until next Tuesday and the deserted democrats throughout the day gathered in little groups and discussed ways and means of getting the republicans back again.
Leaders of both parties declared there was little hope of peace.

As the result of a conference today at the invitation of the Providence Chamber of Commerce between representatives of civic and business organizations of the state, a committee was appointed to seek conferences with both parties to endeavor to devise some method for alleviating the present situation.

Members of Committee.

T. F. L. McDonnell, president of the chamber of commerce, heads the committee, whose other members are Right Rev. William A. Hickey, Catholic bishop of Providence; Right Rev.
James Desford Perry, Episcopal bishop of Rhode Island; President
W. H. T. Faunce, of Brown university; James L. Jenks and William W.
Maust, attorneys, and William L.
Sweet, president of the Providence
Y. M. C. A.

A bundle of acid-soaked papers, fumes from which sickened members, was placed in the senate chamber last Thursday, and yesterday the republican state committee announced that the republicans, fearful of their safety, had fled to another state and

Welcome To Our City!

WOMAN MAY HOLD LOOT CACHE KEY

Chicago Police Turn Prisoner Over to Federal Officers To Block Writ of Habeas Corpus.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, June 21.—A woman may know the hiding place of securities and money totaling more than $2-000,000 obtained by bandits in the holdup of a Chicago, Milwaukee & St.
Paul mail train near Chicago ten days ago, federal officials indicated tonight.

The woman is Louise Drafer, of New London, Wis., who says she is the wife of Willis Newton, one of ten men indicted for the robbery. She was arrested when she came here immediately after Newton's arrest and obtained $36,000 from safety deposit boxes to give him to buy his freedom.
The money was seized by officers.

Beat Habeas Writ.

Indication of the importance which the authorities attach to holding the woman was seen today when it was found that she had been turned over to the federal authorities by the police and had been spirited out of Cook county to Sycamore, Ill., where she is in jail. This action was revealed when hearing on a writ of habeas corpus for her release came before Judge William Lindsay in the criminal court. He angrily criticized the police for turning the woman over to federal officers to avoid hearing on the writ and ordered an investigation.

Saw Loot Divided.

Postoffice inspectors said they had traced a telephone call from Chicago to the woman at New London on the day of the robbery. They declared that they are led to believe that the woman drove in her own automobile to Joliet, Ill., where the robbers abandoned mail pouches and an automobile in which they made their escape. The inspectors said they believed she saw the loot divided and if she did not know where it is hidden, was at least aware of who now holds it.

With the arrest last night of Ernest Fontana, Chicago gangster, all but three of the robbers are in custody. Those not captured are Max Greenberg, St. Louis gangster and alleged head of the bandit gang; Blackie White and Samuel Grant, escaped convicts.

MRS. CHACON OCCUPIES OFFICE OF GOVERNOR

Santa Fe, N. M., June 21.—A woman occupies the office of governor today in New Mexico—Mrs. Solidad Chacon, secretary of state, the first of her sex, so far as can be learned, to act as chief executive of any state in the history of the country.

Mrs. Chacon became acting governor early today. When Governor James F. Hinkle crossed Baton Pass on the way to New York for the democratic national convention she will fill his place until he returns July 1.
She became next in line of succession with the death of Lieutenant Governor Jose A. Baca.

LIQUOR CONDITION IN GOTHAM PLEASES ANTI-SALOON HEAD

New York, June 21.—Liquor conditions in New York on the eve of the democratic convention are acceptable to Wayne B. Wheeler, Anti-Saloon league counsel. Wheeler issued the following statement tonight:

"New York enforcement conditions on the eve of the convention are not as good as at Cleveland, but they are by no means bad. They are so much better than the old saloon regime that we are greatly encouraged."

"The convention delegates that represent the great west and south and central part of the country show no inclination toward a wet plank. Most of them are for a strong enforcement plank, similar to that adopted in the Virginia convention."

Imogene Wilson Shines as Star In New Follies

Foil for Tinney's Slapstick Comedy Shows No Signs of Battle.

Atlantic City, June 21.—Will wonders never cease?

By some strange coincidence, Broadway reporters discovered tonight, Imogene Wilson, the blonde heroine of the famous battle of Broadway which landed Frank Tinney, the comedian, in jail on a charge of felonious assault, has risen from the chorus to stardom in Florence Ziegfeld's Follies of 1924.

Miss Wilson was dying of her injuries two weeks ago and could not go to court to prosecute Tinney at his first hearing. Her miraculous recovery in so short a time, and her sensational rise to stardom naturally brought her many congratulations.
She seemed very sprightly for one who had at least two broken shins, contusion of the brain, internal injuries and contusions so short a time ago.

Tinney is now at liberty and it is believed that in consideration of her good fortune, Miss Wilson will waive further efforts to send him to prison.

Incidentally there were reports on the Boardwalk that Walter Catlett, of the Follies, while swinging his fists in the course of his evening exercise had struck his employer, Mr.
Ziegfeld, on Mr. Ziegfeld's nose, about two furlongs south of the bridge.
Mr. Catlett's numbers in the show had just been reduced to nothing whatever and he was greatly annoyed. Whenever he is annoyed, Mr.
Catlett takes his exercises and Mr.
Ziegfeld being a very prominent man in the region of the nose, had the misfortune to get in the way. Soon after this occurrence, it was announced that Mr. Catlett's contract with Mr. Ziegfeld had been canceled by mutual agreement.

ROW OVER WOMAN LEADS TO KILLING

Rich Arkansas Oil Operator Slain in Shooting Af-ray With Auto Salesman.

El Dorado, Ark., June 21.—R. G.
Vinson, wealthy oil operator and real estate dealer, is dead, and W. C.
Wooley, automobile salesman, is held on a charge of murder as the result of a shooting affray which occurred today when the two men met on the public square.

The slaying of Vinson is said to have been the culmination of a feud which was the outgrowth of Wooley's attention to Vinson's divorced wife, Mrs. Vinson was granted a decree of divorce from her husband on May 8 on the ground of cruelty and infidelity.

Wooley surrendered to the police and was released on bond.
Followed Attack Thursday.
The shooting today followed an alleged attack on Wooley by Vinson last Thursday, when the latter fired several shots at Wooley, who ran.
Wooley then applied to the police, they said, for a permit to go armed,
but this request was denied.

When Vinson and Wooley met in the square today, witnesses to the shooting said, both reached for their guns. Wooley was quickest at the draw, however, and fired five shots at Vinson, three of the bullets taking effect in his right arm, shoulder and lung. Two of the shots were wild, one bullet burying itself in the courthouse lawn and another smashing a window in a nearby store.

Vinson died in a hospital a short time after the shooting.

Two negro convicts, one of whom escaped several years ago, and the other about 15 months ago, were captured by Atlanta detectives Saturday, and both city and county police, apprised on by an offer of a $150 reward, are conducting a thorough search for J. L. Westbrook, who Saturday morning escaped from the Cobb county chain gang.

Both men caught by police have confessed, officers claim, and are ready to start back to jail to complete their sentences. James Reynolds, apparently satisfied that his several years of freedom had made him immune from capture, was married three months ago, he said, and admitted that he had not thought it necessary to tell his bride that he was an escaped convict.

Gerald Lee, alias Floyd Akin, at first denied that he was the man wanted, but later admitted that he escaped from the Carroll county chain gang about a year ago.

Reynolds tumbled into the police dragnet when Detectives Moseley and Wooley raided a negro house on Cain street. After a severe grilling at police headquarters, Reynolds admitted that he escaped a Jacksonville jail several years ago, after having served a long term. He refused to tell how much longer he has to serve, or for what crime he was sentenced.

Westbrook escaped from the Cobb county gang when he donned a suit of overalls and walked out of camp.
He was serving a life sentence on the chain gang for murder. Westbrook was transferred from the state farm several months ago, and had been assigned to duty in the blacksmith shops.

GEORGIAN TO CAST NEW YORK VOTES AS SMITH UNIT

Soft Voice of Former Savannah Girl Will Register 96 Full Votes for the Tammany Man.

MRS. O'DAY CHOSEN DELEGATION LEADER

Selection of Woman for Post Sets Precedent.
Selected Over Roosevelt,
Copeland and Mack.

BY MAXINE DAVIS.

New York, June 21.—When the galleries hush to hear that New York casts 96 votes for Governor Al Smith, they will listen to a soft, feminine voice, a voice with a southern burr, make the announcement.

For the New York state delegation to the democratic convention has elected Mrs. Daniel O'Day, of Rye, N.
Y., as its chairman. This is the first time in the history of the party that a great state has selected a woman leader. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Senator Royal S. Copeland and Norman
Mack had been considered for the place.

The greatest number of votes cast by any state in a presidential convention will be cast by this small woman with one of the quietest voices of the conclave. Nevertheless, it is certain that her pronouncement will be heard in the farthest corners of the listening galleries.

Is Georgia Girl.
This signal honor was given Mrs.
O'Day for her notable work in New York during the last five years. But Georgia may claim the woman who won it. Mrs. O'Day is a native of Savannah.

A slim dignified person is Mrs.
O'Day, with an undefinable air of culture and assurance that marks an individual as "the real thing." When she was elected, and rose confidently to preside over the delegation at its meeting at the Commodore today, she was wearing in a plain but curiously smart frock of black pin-striped twill, made with lapels and something

COLLISION DAMAGES AROUND-WORLD PLANE

Rangoon, British India, June 21.—A cargo boat last night collided with one of the United States army around-the-world airplanes, seriously damaging the wings. It is hoped, however, that repairs can be made by Monday when the aviators expect to leave for Calcutta via Akyab and Bassein. The Americans upon their arrival here yesterday from Bangkok, Siam, via Tavor, made a perfect landing in a high wind. The fliers were tired after having battled the elements all the way across the Gulf of Martaban. Villagers from the country round about the point where the machine landed, which is in Chinese territory, did over it, injuring the wings and tampering with the mechanism and were only induced to desist by much persuasion by the Chinese district commandant, who posted a guard of 50 armed soldiers around the plane. The Hong Kong Dock company loaned the Portuguese fliers an European foreman and a corps of Chinese mechanics and laborers who will dismantle the plane and bring it here, probably completing the work tomorrow.

Calcutta, June 21.—The American consul general today announced that the United States army around-the-world fliers would not leave Rangoon before Tuesday.

Residents of the United States now are consuming between three and one-half and four billion dollars' worth of foreign goods a year.

Twentieth City Playground Will Be Opened on Monday

Atlanta's twentieth municipal playground for children will be opened Monday morning at Williams Street school. It was announced Saturday by Councilman Harry York, member of the park committee. Miss Eleanor Kirsh was designated by Mrs. Hunter C. Smith, playground supervisor, as director for the new recreation field. Mrs. Smith stated Saturday that the first week's playground activities for this year exceeded the biggest week of last year's play season. Figures on attendance at the nineteen in operation during the week will not be consolidated until Monday, but Mrs. Smith said they will show a substantial increase over last year.

Military Department Asks For Larger Appropriation

Pointing out that Georgia's annual appropriation of $25,000 for the military department is "woefully inadequate" and intimating that the federal government may withdraw its annual fund unless the state shows an inclination to increase its appropriation this year, Adjutant General Charles H. Cox, Saturday mailed letters to each Georgia legislator, urging "careful study of the facts."

Early in the approaching session of the general assembly a bill will be introduced including a substantial appropriation increase for the military bureau. The letter from the adjutant general's office is merely a statement of the facts, it is asserted, to enable members of the legislature to acquaint themselves with the conditions in advance of the meeting.

Many legislators who have visited the capitol during the past few weeks have expressed themselves as strongly in favor of the proposed increase in appropriation, asserting that no department of the state is more important and needs adequate working capital more than does the military bureau.

The $25,000 appropriation made by the legislature in 1925 was the smallest sum appropriated for a similar department by any state in the fourth corps area, the adjutant general stated. The military strength assigned to Georgia demands a much larger appropriation, it was pointed out, and unless Georgia increases the amount at the forthcoming meeting of the legislature, the federal government may withdraw its support and Georgia's military will collapse. In 1923 the federal government appropriated $405,835.32 as compared to the state's $25,000, or approximately $10 to every $1 voted by the state of Georgia. This sum was in addition to equipment given Georgia national guardsmen valued at $3,000,000, to be used in the service of the state. Funds appropriated by the state are used for armory hire, clerical help, salaries and expenses incidental to operation of the military department of the state.

For some time, official guard officials state, Georgia military affairs have been "cramped and embarrassed on account of insufficient funds" with which to properly function. It is to relieve this condition, they say, that the legislature will be asked to supplement the present appropriation by an additional sum.

Some officials expect little opposition to the move, basing the belief, it is said, on the general knowledge of the value of adequate military forces in the state and the general opinion of legislators that the department is one of the most important.

W. F. BUCHANAN HEADS BROTHERHOOD CLASS

William F. Buchanan, Atlanta attorney, was chosen president of the Brotherhood class of the Central Presbyterian Sunday school at the annual business meeting at the church Tuesday night. Other officers elected were: Dr. W. A. Upchurch, vice president; Miller G. Clapp, executive secretary; W. A. Crossland, recording secretary; George S. Russey, treasurer.

THREE NEW ENTRANTS IN LEGISLATIVE RACE

Still greater speculation as to who are to represent Fulton county in the 1926 legislature developed Saturday when three new candidates entered the race. There are now ten candidates in the field, whereas only three are to be elected.

Those entering Saturday morning were Eugene R. Dickey, Atlanta attorney, and two others.

W. B. HARTSFIELD.

torney, member of the firm of Chambers, Richards & Dickey; Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, and P. S. Brooks, a farmer of Adairsville district. Others who had previously qualified are Channing Cope, Miss Bessie Kempton, Mrs. E. N. (Mother) Gibbs, Wayne Allen, Luther H. Still and Frank A. Hickey, Jr. J. J. Wood, who is now one of Fulton's three legislators, also qualified at the last moment by paying his entrance fee.

Mr. Dickey, who is probably as well known as any Atlanta attorney of his years, has occupied offices in the Peters building for some six or eight years, and was urged to enter the race by a large number of friends. He had been considering candidacy for the legislature for several weeks, but did not finally decide to enter the race until Saturday morning, when, pressed by his friends, he yielded and became a candidate.

Hartsfield Enters.

A surprise was sprung in city hall circles Saturday afternoon by announcement of the entry into the campaign for the general assembly of Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, provisional mayor pro tem this year and who had been slated for election as mayor pro tem next January.

Alderman Hartsfield's plans for seeking one of Fulton county's three seats in the assembly had not been known until his entrance fee was paid to the secretary of the county democratic executive committee shortly before the entry books closed at noon Saturday.

The alderman has been one of the strongest factors in council since he took his seat in January, 1925, after having led the entire legislative ticket in a hotly contested primary campaign the previous September. He has taken the lead in obtaining support of council for most of the constructive measures put in effect by the present city administration.

Leader in Council.

This year he is serving on most of the important committees of council, being chairman of the tax committee, vice chairman of both streets and charter revision committees and a member of the finance, ordinance and other committees, in addition to acting as provisional mayor pro tem. Council elected him to the last named position by a five to one majority in January of this year.

The alderman is a native Atlantan, having been born 34 years ago in the third ward, which he now represents in council. He is a graduate of Boys' High school and educated himself for the practice of law, in which he has engaged successfully for the last eight years. He is recognized in council as an authority on municipal law, taxation and finance.

TWO WOMEN HURT IN AUTO CRASHES

As a result of police vigilance in suppressing traffic law violations, only 17 cases were tried in recorder's court Saturday, and only two minor accidents were reported during the day. Those injured were Miss Carrie Parker, of Bellwood avenue, and Mrs. C. A. Casey, of 95 East North avenue.

Of the cases tried, five were dismissed, while six drivers were found guilty of violating traffic ordinances. Four were fined for speeding, and two for reckless driving, fines totaling $154.

Thirty-two new cases were made during the day, 12 drivers being charged with violating traffic ordinances, 11 for speeding, five for driving automobiles while intoxicated, and four for reckless driving.

Miss Parker Injured.

Miss Parker was injured Saturday afternoon when struck by an automobile at Bay and Ashby streets, and Glenn Touchstone, of 114 Echo street, was arrested on charges of reckless driving in connection with the crash.

Miss Parker, who was crossing Ashby street when the machine turned into Ashby from Bay street, stepped back out of the car's path, but Touchstone, seeing the young woman, turned aside to pass behind her, and the car struck her when she stepped back.

Miss Parker was taken to Grady hospital in Touchstone's machine, and he was arrested at the hospital by Officers Kippen and Mosley. Her injuries consisted of severe bruises about the head and shoulders, and possible internal injuries.

In the other mishap, Mrs. Casey was hurt Saturday night when struck by an automobile driven by Dr. H. C. Crawford, of 322 Howard street, at North avenue and Peachtree street. Dr. Crawford offered to take the injured woman to the hospital, but she declined, and was taken home, where examination showed her injuries to consist of minor bruises and lacerations. At the request of Mrs. Casey, Patrolman Taylor, who investigated, made no case.

Police court fines imposed follow:

VIOLATING TRAFFIC ORDINANCE.
Ray King, 23, 22 Leggett street, $5.
W. B. Smith, 30, 33 Eddie street, $5.
D. G. Goodman, 21, 127 Lyons street, $5.
A. A. Guter, 28, 180 Currier street, $5.
C. R. Hart, 32, 371 North Boulevard, $5.
H. P. Osborne, 22, 414 North Boulevard, $5.

RECKLESS DRIVING.
E. Y. Clarke, 46, 272 Peachtree street, $25.
Joe Chandler, rear 150 Courtland street, $25.
N. H. Niles, 36, 78 Drewry street, $20.
Earl Clark, 10, 44 Hale street, $20.

enact less laws, as I feel we have too many now for the best interest of the public."

Representative Thomas Davis, of Thomas county, believes taxation will occupy the principal attention of the legislature once more.

"We should," he says, "give this subject all the time of the session if necessary to dispose of it."

Patchwork Structure.

"Our system of taxation," he added, "is like the house built by the poor man in Atlanta that Henry Grady wrote about. It is made of patches in many instances that are inequitable and injudicious."

Dr. W. D. Kennedy, senator from the 49th district, gave as his chief ambition a burning desire to retire from the legislature as speedily and painlessly as possible.

"If the good God of the universe will forgive me for getting into politics this one time," declared Dr. Kennedy, "I feel sure the lawmakers of Georgia will not be bothered with me again."

Dr. Kennedy says he has only one measure he is now interested in passing. This would require those seeking matrimony to pay an additional dollar for a marriage license, the fund from this source to be used by local registrars for the keeping of records for the bureau of vital statistics.

To Equalize Burden.

Representative J. B. G. Logan, of Tlome, says while he has no past bill of his own to introduce, he will support any measure that looks to equitable distribution of the burdens of taxation.

"There can be no doubt," he says, "that our tax system needs some revision and modification."

In the meantime, while senators and representatives prepare for the long grind ahead, while janitors and workmen clean and repair the legislative halls for the forthcoming oratorical revels, the office of Attorney General George M. Napier is flooded with requests for assistance in preparation of bills to be introduced. Every subject under the sun, ranging from a proposal to make it a misdemeanor to pick a wild flower on privately owned property, to a plan to do away with trading in cotton on the various cotton exchanges, has been suggested in letters to that office.

Assistant Attorney General T. R. Gress is working night and day drawing up bills for members of the assembly and sending replies to others who write the office, evidently under the belief that all necessary for enactment of some particular measure is for the outlines of the bill to be hammered out on the long-suffering type writer.

THINK JAPS DIED IN GAMBLING FEUD

San Pedro, Calif., June 21.—A revolver discovered among the weeds and cactus under a cliff near here where two Japanese were found slain yesterday is the principal clue in the hands of police detectives investigating the case today.

One of the men was identified as G. Igarashi, said to have been well known as a gambler in the Japanese quarter of Los Angeles. The identity of the second victim remained a mystery today.

Investigation of Igarashi's activities recently included police to the belief the Japanese met death in a gambling feud.

LACK OF DEMAND BLAMED AS MILL CEASES OPERATION

Huntsville, Ala., June 21.—(Special.)—The West Huntsville Cotton mill has closed down and will not resume operations for 30 days and perhaps not until autumn, according to W. A. Stanley, general manager. The conditions that brought about this shutdown lie in the fact that there is no demand for the product. The output of the mill for weeks past has been greater than the demand, although the plant has been operating on short time. There is no relief in sight at this time, but officials are hopeful that a change for the better will come soon in order to permit of a resumption of operations.

The Huntsville Knitting company has been running full time during the last week on a big order recently received from New York. There has been no change in the operations of the Lowe mills and the Margaret mills, which are operating on about half time.

The Merrimack Manufacturing company, the Lincoln mills and the Dallas mills are still going on full time.

MRS. STILLMAN GIVEN FUND TO FIGHT CASE

New York, June 21.—Mrs. Anne U. Stillman has been awarded $15,000 as additional counsel fees to prepare her case before the court of appeals, in a decision filed at Poughkeepsie, by supreme Court Justice Morschauser, says a dispatch to the Herald-Tribune. The additional fund was sought to enable her to fight the appeal of her husband, James A. Stillman, from the decision of the appellate division denying him a divorce.

Isaac N. Mills, counsel for Mrs. Stillman, said that in the appeal of the divorce action to the appellate division the attorneys for Mrs. Stillman received $15,000 as fees, while it was reported that counsel for Mr. Stillman received much larger fees.

Charming Mayo Merthot LEAVES BRILLIANT BROADWAY PROSPECTS New Baldwin Players Star

Mayo Merthot, new leading lady with the Baldwin Players at the Atlanta theater, who makes her local stage debut on Monday week.

On Monday, June 30—just one week from tomorrow—a young lady, Mayo Merthot by name—(the final "t" is silent, making the cognomen rhyme like poetry) will make her first bow to an Atlanta public at the Atlanta theater. She is coming to join Baldwin Players, as the new leading lady, and competent judges who have seen her declare her one of the most beautiful girls ever seen on the American stage. As supporting evidence for their claims they offer the picture herewith.

Secondly, they make almost extravagant claims for her ability as an actress. In support of this contention they refer to no less a person than George M. Cohan. Mr. Cohan last season produced on Broadway a play called "The Song and Dance Man," in which he took the male lead, and chose Miss Merthot, previously unknown to Broadway, for his leading lady. Critics were unanimous in praising the play and Mr. Cohan's judgment in selecting his leading lady. And for once the public endorsed the judgment of the critics through the box office.

The production was an unqualified success—no little because of the work of Miss Merthot—and it enjoyed a long run in New York. That it might have had a much larger run is conceded, but developments of the threatened actors' strike caused Mr. Cohan to withdraw the production long before its money-making possibilities were exhausted.

Strike a Blessing.
However, the New York strike is not an unmitigated blessing. For it brings to Atlanta an actress who probably could not have been enticed out of New York at all, had the circumstances been otherwise. "The Song and Dance Man" concluded its run six weeks ago and since that time Miss Merthot has been visiting her home in Portland, Ore.

John B. Little, leading man and vice president of the Baldwin Players, has followed the dramatic rise of Miss Merthot to Broadway fame with particular interest, by reason of the fact that he knew her when she was a school girl in Portland. John has relatives in that city and some years ago, while visiting them, met the little Merthot child.

So, when the peculiar circumstances in New York suggested that it might be possible to lure his playmate of childhood days, from New York, Mr. Little put the telegraph wires to work, with the result that Miss Merthot will reach Atlanta about next Tuesday, and will immediately begin rehearsals for her first Atlanta appearance.

Many Years' Experience.
The new leading lady had her first stage experience as a little girl, playing child parts as a member of the Baker Stock company, a Portland organization that has been in existence for 21 years. After a lapse of four years, while she was attending an exclusive girls' finishing school, she returned to this organization, later to go to New York in the quest for fame and fortune, which sooner or later lures all followers of the theater art. That she won the desired fame in less than one year is but a tribute to her charm, her beauty and, above all, her ability as an actress.

row on legal steps to meet the situation. Among the possibilities, it was explained, were the indictment of Jonathan Andrews, high sheriff of Providence county, for permitting the republicans to leave the jurisdiction of the state, and of William C. Pelkey, chairman of the republican state central committee, for urging them to do so; watchful waiting for the return of the republicans to the chamber and their forcible detention there. Even if indictments could be drawn, the democrats said it probably would be impossible to have the necessary jury trial before next October. As to the second proposal, Mr. Pelkey told reporters that the republicans would not return until a guarantee of safety was given them. One democrat said that if the republicans returned and Sheriff Andrews refused to act against them, the governor might go to extreme and call out the state guard to enforce his orders and those of the lieutenant governor.

Allege Oppressive Tactics.
A statement signed by the 22 republican senators was given out by the state committee today. In it they accused the lieutenant governor of using oppressive tactics as presiding officer and of failing to preserve order. They declared they would not attend the senate sessions "until such time as we receive adequate assurances that orderly and constitutional methods of parliamentary procedure would be restored."

It was learned today that on account of the severe crisis, Governor Flynn would not attend the democratic national convention in New York city, where he was expected to go as chairman of the Rhode Island delegation. Lieutenant Governor Toppin, second in rank to the governor on the delegation, also would stay in Providence, it was said, and their places would be filled by alternates.

WATERMELON ROW IN FEDERAL COURT

tempt to have the embargo lifted had been made at a conference in Jacksonville between Governor Hardee, Dr. Bahnsen and counsel for the railroads.

Governor Hardee, in stating the position of Florida, contended that with proper precautions no damage would be done to Georgia cattle. In discussing the case Saturday he pointed out that while Florida was not interested in the case legally, nevertheless, it was of vital interest to the people of that state.

"We appreciate the work that Georgia has done with the cattle-tick," the governor continued, "and we want to cooperate with our sister state. We have already taken on the work of tick eradication. We have no desire to re-infest the territory in Georgia, which has taken so much work to clean up, by shipping Florida melons packed with pine straw, but it is our belief that the danger is not so great as represented. We certainly do not want the people of Georgia to believe that Florida is wilfully trying to tear down the work that has taken so long to build up."

Attorney General Napier, at the hearing Saturday, contended that the case was similar to the foot and mouth disease embargo enforced by other states, and cited instances where this embargo had been enforced.

Order Produced.
Dr. Bahnsen produced in the court the order prohibiting the movement of melons in Georgia that had been packed with pine straw, signed by the state commissioner of agriculture. The complainant's counsel had contended that this order had been promulgated without the approval of the commissioner of agriculture, and was void for that reason. It was later brought out, however, that the order had been signed by the Georgia commissioner of agriculture Saturday morning.

Neither Dr. Bahnsen nor Attorney General Napier had any statement to make after the injunction had been signed by Judge Sibley.

Practically the entire watermelon crop of Florida was being held up by Dr. Bahnsen's order and if it had not been enjoined, Florida melon shippers say, would have held up approximately 6,000 carloads of melons which are available for shipment now.

In some cases where growers were cautious, other than pine straw was used as bedding, and in some other cases, very isolated, melons were allowed to remain in storage rather than risk delay, but such cases are few according to information.

BOK SAYS PLAN OF PEACE AWARD IS REAL SUCCESS

New York, June 21.—Edward W. Bok, of Philadelphia, donor of the peace-plan award with its prize of $100,000, said upon sailing today on the steamship Homeric with Mrs. Bok for a forty-day trip abroad, that the effect of his plan had been just as intended, having served to awaken the people of America by causing them "to talk and think."

The American people, said Mr. Bok, would insist that the resolution for a world court, sent to the congressional bodies by President Harding and having the endorsement of Secretary of State Hughes and later advocated by President Coolidge, be reported on at the next session of congress.

WOMAN BEING HELD IN MAIL LOOT CASE

Chicago, June 21.—A controversy between state and federal authorities has arisen over custody of Louise Drafka, also known as Newton, in connection with the case against the ten indicted on charges of robbing the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul fast mail train of $2,075,000 in securities and currency.

Superior Judge William Lindsay today ordered an investigation of the custody of Miss Drafka, who is said to have appeared with $36,000 in cash in an effort to obtain freedom of Willis Newton, a prisoner. She was immediately arrested and the money taken in charge by the police.

When a writ of habeas corpus was sought in an attempt to liberate her, Judge Lindsay yesterday was informed she had been turned over to the federal authorities. This, he declared today, he had learned was a subterfuge. The same statement was made to the court earlier in the week, when writs were sought for other prisoners and the police informed the court that the federal authorities had taken custody of the prisoners. At this time, however, postoffice inspectors said the prisoners still were in police custody.

Besides promising a speedy trial for the men indicted yesterday, United States Commissioner Beiler today issued a subpoena duces tecum for $80,000 in cash and jewelry taken by the police from Miss Drafka and Willis Newton.

Whether the jewelry was part of the mail loot has not been ascertained, although the currency was not part of that taken from the mails.

The currency will be shown to Texas officers now en route here in an attempt to identify the prisoners as the men who robbed several Texas banks.

Miss Drafka was to appear before Judge Lindsay today but was taken to the Sycamore (Ill.) jail.

The judge declared that the constitution and the laws of Illinois had been circumvented and that he would make a full inquiry.

Girl Threatened By N. Y. Bandits Found in Dallas

New York, June 21.—Miss Jessie Clark, 17, who disappeared from her home here after a threat of death from bandits who robbed a store where she worked, is safe in Dallas, Tex., Mrs. Isabelle Clark, her mother, having received a telegram from her, she said today.

Last Friday two men entered the Oriental Rug store of D. K. Deyron, anjan, where Miss Clark, cashier, was alone. One stifled her with his hand, while the other robbed the cash register of $270. Next day she received a telephoned death threat if she aided the police in finding the robbers. She resigned her job, told her mother she was going for a walk, and disappeared.

Dallas, Tex., June 21.—Miss Jessie Clark, of New York, arrived here Thursday and is being cared for at the Y. W. C. A., where she has been kept in seclusion. Officials of the organization refused to permit reporters to interview her, saying her condition was such they thought it best she be not questioned. Those who had talked to her said she declared she did not know from whom she obtained tickets to come to Dallas and apparently remembered little of her experience from the time she left her home in New York until her arrival here. They asserted she apparently was suffering from a mental strain or shock.

Candidates for Governor and for Senate

Harris' record at an early date, declaring that he will open a vigorous campaign not later than July 4.

Mr. Elders, who is a member of the state legislature, representing Tattnall county in the lower house, in a brief statement given out at his home in Reidsville, said that his platform would include opposition to any state-wide bond issue until such time as the tax system of Georgia is reformed. He advocates tax reforms, including elimination of the ad valorem tax for state purposes, limitation of county and city tax rates, one county levy only for schools and making the state school aid fund an equalization fund to assure equal treatment for all counties.

Other Candidates.

In addition to the four candidates for the offices of governor and United States senator, candidates who have qualified for the September primaries are as follows:

S. G. McLendon, for secretary of state.

George M. Napier, for attorney general.

W. J. Spear, for state treasurer.

William A. Wright, for comptroller general.

J. J. Brown, for commissioner of agriculture, opposed by George F. Hinnicutt.

N. H. Ballard, for state superintendent of schools, opposed by Fort E. Land.

Hal M. Stanley, for commissioner of commerce and labor.

C. E. McGregor, for commissioner of pensions, opposed by John W. Clark.

T. E. Patterson, for prison commission.

J. D. Price, for public service commission, opposed by A. J. Woodruff.

John T. Boiteuillet, for public service commission, opposed by O. R. Bennett.

S. Price Gilbert and Samuel C. Atkinson, unopposed for associate justices of the supreme court.

Nash R. Broyles, for chief judge of the court of appeals.

W. Frank Jenkins, for presiding judge of the court of appeals.

Elders' Statement.

In his formal statement regarding his candidacy for the governorship, Mr. Elders declared his "race is centered on economy and tax reduction."

"I am against any bond issue by the state," he continued, "for any purpose until our tax laws are reformed and civilized and relief brought to our people. Take off ad valorem for state purposes; limit county tax rate, also city tax rate; make only one county tax levy for schools and create our state school aid fund into an equalization school fund so every county will be treated alike, then I will support a bond issue. Help me in this."

Governor Clifford Walker refused to give out any statement Saturday.

Mr. Hardwick was formerly United States senator from Georgia, being defeated for reelection by Senator Harris in 1916. In 1920 he was elected governor, defeating his opponent, Clifford Walker and John N. Holder.

A run-over primary was necessary between Hardwick and Walker.

In 1922 Governor Hardwick and Clifford Walker were the only candidates, the governor being defeated, for reelection and Governor Walker taking ing his place as chief executive of the state.

Herschel Elders has not been a candidate for state office before, but has been a member of the general assembly for many terms, serving in both houses at different sessions. He was a leader in the fight last summer for taxation reform, introducing a group of bills based on the tax system in force in North Carolina.

Hardwick's Statement.

Mr. Hardwick's statement accompanying his entry in the senatorship race, given out Saturday afternoon was as follows:

"If our newspaper magnates and erstwhile political leaders have entirely finished reelecting our senator, Mr. Harris, without opposition, it is about time for the plain people of Georgia to have an opportunity to decide that question for themselves, and without having any particular aid either from newspapers or bosses."

"In announcing my candidacy for the senate, I wish to assure the people of Georgia that no personal feeling against Mr. Harris inspired my conduct in the slightest degree; that I have real and substantial grounds for such feeling is true enough, but other and more important considerations control my conduct."

"There are issues between his candidacy and the one I shall present that are as wide and deep as the ocean."

"At an early date I shall outline these issues in a statement to the public. I will present Mr. Harris' record in the senate as it actually is, and not as it has been represented to be by himself and others. I will open my campaign not later than July 4, at a place to be announced later, and will carry that campaign directly to the people of Georgia to the very limit permitted by my health and strength. I have withheld this announcement until this late date for the reason that I hoped that the voters would believe in the same great principles in which I believe might take up this fight and carry the banner. Since they have all failed and refused to do so, I regard it as my duty, at any personal sacrifice, to give to the thousands of people of Georgia, who believe in the same great principles of national and international justice that I do, some opportunity to vote and voice their convictions in the approaching primary election."

HARRIS NOT ROUSED BY OPPOSITION.

Washington, June 21.—(Special.) Last-minute opposition to Senator W. J. Harris in the announcement of ex-Senator Thomas W. Hardwick failed to provoke special interest in Washington among Georgians. It was thought here that Hardwick would be a candidate in the event he failed to secure the entrance of anyone else.

Senator Harris had no personal comment to make on the Hardwick announcement and business at his office is proceeding as usual. Senator Harris will leave tomorrow for New York to attend the democratic national convention. Today Senator Harris accepted the invitation of Chairman Cordell Hull, of the national committee, to sit on the platform at the convention as the guest of the national committee.

Cranston Williams, secretary to Senator Harris, is in Washington in charge of the office here and it will continue to keep open throughout the recess of congress. Captain Williams is expected to have charge of Senator Harris' campaign until further announcement. He was editor of the American Times-Recorder until entering the army in the World war and served in France.

Captain Williams said today Senator Harris planned to reach Georgia early in July, as he had been detained here because of the illness of Miss Annie Wheeler, daughter of General Joe Wheeler, who is in the hospital at Johns Hopkins, Baltimore. She is Senator Harris' sister-in-law.

TAX REDUCTION PLEDGE MADE BY H. H. ELDERS.

Herschel H. Elders, who has announced for governor, Saturday night wired the following message to The Constitution from his home in Reidsville:

"I am wiring you my first statement since I became a real candidate for governor at noon today."

"Some six weeks ago I gave the daily press my platform. Since then I have been called a political demagogue by some of the great men of Georgia. I have no unkind word for the traducers of my principles, but I notify all who oppose me that the common people of this state shall know the truth, and have the opportunity to reduce their tax burdens and save their homes for their loved ones."

The foundation stone of my campaign will be economy in state government and tax reduction with tax reform."

Almost every daily paper in the state is screaming for a state bond issue for roads, for college and school buildings, and for a state port. The amount asked for these three purposes will amount to about one hundred million dollars.

"How you editors now point with pride to North Carolina and her many bond issues. Every day of the extra session I talked about North Carolina and how she had relieved her people of tax burdens and I had very little attention from the papers."

"If our state builders now wish to bond us for a long time for millions of dollars, then help me to do what North Carolina did before she issued a bond, namely, reduce her taxes and reform her tax laws. If you forward-looking Georgians will help me, I will help you; otherwise I will fight you from one end of the state to the other."

"We must reform our tax laws so as to do away with the ad valorem tax for state purposes, limit the county tax rate by constitutional amendment, do the same to the city tax rate, fix only one county tax rate for education, and make it certain, and then convert our state aid to common schools into an equalization school fund. When you are praising North Carolina do not forget she did all the above before she started her bond issue."

"If the daily papers and our governor will help me to pass my tax reform measures this summer, I will help pass your bond issues and quit the race for governor. Is this fair?"

"I am working for suffering people and not just to be governor. It is a well-known fact that the ten years I have served in the house and the senate I have been the fond friend of our common schools and all educational institutions of our state, that I have fought for the farmers and all laboring people and that I have worked at all times for the upbuilding of our state."

"I am willing to stand on the record I have made and what I am offering our people. I am not afraid of our people doing the right thing. I know they will."

"H. H. ELDERS."

IS KILLED BY DIVE IN SHALLOW WATER

Salisbury, N. C., June 21.—Carl Lomax, 20 years old, Spencer, N. C., died in a local hospital today as a result of a broken neck, sustained late yesterday when he dived into shallow water at a bathing resort at the Yadkin river, near here. Witnesses reported that he attempted a double somersault in the air before striking the water.

Abyssinian Prince

Received by Pope
In Royal Manner

Rome, June 21.—Ras Tafari, viceroy of Abyssinia, who is visiting Italy, was received by Pope Pius today. He was met at the foot of the Grand Staircase of the Papal palace by the military and ecclesiastical court of the pontiff and passing through the Clementine hall, where the Swiss guards paid military honors, he was ushered into the private library, where Pope Pius received him.

The Abyssinian prince, who is a Catholic of the Coptic rite, presented the pontiff with a rich Abyssinian cross of solid gold, a beautiful oriental tapestry and an artistically bound Abyssinian book. Among the papal gifts to the prince was a Mosaic in a gold frame, representing new Rome.

After a visit to Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, Prince Tafari prayed at the tomb of Saint Peter.

AUTO LEAPS BANK, THREE ARE KILLED

Mobile, Ala., June 21.—Crashing wildly down an embankment overlooking the shadowy waters below, while its eight occupants struggled frantically to escape an automobile careening three persons to almost instant death and endangered the lives of others when it plunged into a branch of East Fowl river on the road between Theodore and Delchamps today. The machine, which had been in the towage of another automobile, suddenly left its course near the end of a wooden bridge and a moment later leaped downward on the grim death dive.

Hardly had the passengers, who included men, women and children, realized their peril before the automobile completed its violent pitch and landed in the water. A woman and two children perished. None of the other occupants suffered seriously in the accident.

Those who lost their lives were Mrs. Fannie Arnett, 44 years old, of Rolston Station; her son, Stein, 10, and Marguerite Bosarge, 9, of Bryon Lahtre. Mrs. Arnett's body was recovered immediately, but rescue parties searched hours before the bodies of the little boy and girl were located. The accident occurred while the party was en route home from Mobile.

Disqualify Entrants In 45th District Senatorial Contest

Ocala, Fla., June 21.—(Special.)—The political situation in Irwin county took on a peculiar form today just before the noon hour, the time fixed by the executive committee of the 45th senatorial district for qualification of candidates for the office of state senator.

At a meeting of the committee at McLaure a few days ago, the committee members engaged in a political combat over the question of confining the senatorial race of the district to Irwin county, it being the time for Irwin to choose a senator under the rotation system. Because of a tie in the voting the chairman ruled that the race would be made throughout the entire district composed of Ben Hill, Talbot and Irwin counties.

The board of registrars of Irwin county was engaged in purging and making up a voters' list when the candidates were all challenged to appear before the board and show cause why their names should not be stricken from the voters' list as tax defaulters, and as a result of its investigations two of the entrants into the race for the senate were ruled disqualified. They are E. D. Fletcher and J. B. Clements. This left only one of the candidates, D. J. Henderson, qualified to make the race. Mr. Henderson made it known this morning that he would decline to make the race and friends of John M. Willis persuaded him to enter the race. He qualified before the noon hour.

It is understood that the two disqualified who were ruled disqualified by the registrars claim that they will resist the race but will vigorously resist the right of that board to rule them out, and they will probably take the matter into the courts within the next few days.

Survey Shows Boll Weevil Beaten in Sumter County

Americus, Ga., June 21.—The boll weevil is whipped and prospects are better now for full business in Sumter county than during any similar season within the past 15 years, according to E. L. Carswell, Americus business man and alderman, who has just completed a county crop survey. "Crops in every section I visited are in better condition than I have ever known them at this season," said Dr. Carswell today. "Farmers everywhere have the boll weevil whip. I went into field after field where there were no weevils and in others only a few could be located after careful search."

Weather conditions now are ideal. These long, not dry days that city folks all complain about are doing the cotton a world of good, and with a week more sunshine and high temperatures we are now having the weevil must sing his swan song. In my survey, I met all sorts of plans for controlling the weevil. Most of the farmers are using calcium arsenate, and I believe this with plenty of intelligent work has solved the farmers' problem. "Sumter's new money crops have done wonders, too, to bring this solution about, and to bring cotton money back into the county, and to begin to put in this fall its effect will be immediate in channels of trade. More farmers than ever before have put their farms upon a self-sustaining or monthly pay roll basis. Sales of poultry, beans, squash, cucumbers, berries and cream have brought in a steady stream of cash throughout the summer, and cotton money, except for some unforeseen expenditures in the way of farm machinery, calcium arsenate and perhaps a few other items, will all be profit."

"Sumter county is ahead of the bounds now—and the farmers will keep that way, too."

TERRELL FARMERS ARE OPTIMISTIC.

Dawson, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—A larger percentage of farmers are poisoning weevils than ever before, and if this is kept up, it is thought that the county will stage a comeback along agricultural lines. Much stock and feedstuffs are also being raised.

PECAN GROWERS PLAN BIG SELLING COMBINE

Waycross, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—A. Clarke Sudekier, of Waycross, president of the Georgia Pecan Growers' association, announced today that a committee meeting to plan a combine of three competitive pecan selling corporations will be held at Albany Monday. Such a consolidation will assist materially in the profitable marketing of pecans, officials say.

Dark Horses Enter Laurens County Races As Entry List Closes

Dublin, Ga., June 21.—When final entries were made in Laurens county for representative today, there were some surprises. Entered out in the shape of unexpected candidates.

One of the present representatives, Hal B. Wimberly, is opposed by two candidates, W. W. McFendon, J. M. Peacock, who is a nephew of John T. Boileau, a member of the public service commission, and Izzie Bushinski, former mayor of Dublin, and one of the leading business men of this section.

S. P. New, who defeated Dr. C. C. Kittrell for representative two years ago on state port issue, is opposed again by Dr. Kittrell, who has not altered his past views. One other representative from Laurens, Ernest Clark, has no opposition for reelection.

Entries for the Dublin circuit, and the 16th senatorial district closed, also as did those for congress in the 12th district.

Judge J. L. Kent, present judge of the circuit, is opposed for reelection by R. Earl Camp, of Dublin.

Frederick Kea, of Dublin, is running against E. L. Stephens, the present solicitor of Dublin circuit. For state senator, Dr. A. M. Rountree, of Adrian has no opposition.

Congressman W. W. Larsen has no opposition for reelection to congress. Laurens county has several interesting contests to settle this year, the representative race furnishes two of these, while the judge and solicitor race of the Dublin circuit will get rather warm before it is over.

South Georgia Opens Watermelon Season And Ships 25 Cars

Moultrie, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Twenty-five cars of watermelons have been shipped from south Georgia this week, local buyers estimated tonight. The price has ranged from $400 to $500 a car f. o. b. the loading point.

Local distributors expressed the opinion that at least 200 cars will be moved next week. They say that there is no reason to believe that there will be any slump in the price between now and July 1.

Many buyers will come from Florida next week, as the shipping season is drawing to a close in that state. Georgia is expected to ship from 6,000 to 7,000 cars this season. The melons are said to be better quality than has been the case in several years.

BAPTISTS OF ROCHELLE END REVIVAL SERVICE

ATLANTA YOUTH HELD ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Rome, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Faced with charges of assault brought by two Rome girls and their parents, John Ross, formerly of Rome, now of Atlanta, and Howard Jones, Rome, youth, were carried to Sumnerville for trial yesterday. Jones was acquitted, Ross is being held.

Charges were filed following an all night ride the young men took with the girls. They were first charged with kidnapping and ordered held under $500 bond. But before Ross had been returned to Atlanta, the charges were changed. It was first thought that the alleged offense was committed in Floyd county, but on further investigation it was found that the crime took place in Chattooga county.

Gas Price Cut in Rome.

Rome, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—The price of gasoline in Rome has been reduced to 24 cents by the Standard Oil and Gulf Refining companies. The reduction followed a similar cut in Atlanta.

One local concern, which cut the price of gasoline to 23 cents a few days ago is still selling at that price. Reduced cost of crude oil was given as a reason for cutting.

HOLDEN BEGINS DRIVE FOR SEAT IN CONGRESS

Greensboro, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Frank A. Holden, member of the legislature from Clarke county and opponent of the new Macabee temple, 217 1/2 Peachtree street, according to statements Saturday.

The first official act of the new deputy commander was to issue a general letter to all Macabees of the state, pledging himself to continue the Caravan club drive and to give the full cooperation of his offices to further the plans for the big victory class initiation to be held here on July 1.

The letter included brief references to the solidarity of the Macabee order, its long service as a fraternal organization and its progressive new policy to meet present day conditions. He outlined these plans, enumerated the purposes for each plan and asserted that the organization was entering upon a new era in the south.

Mr. Jones formerly resided in Savannah and is well known in fraternal and political circles of south Georgia. He came to Atlanta only a few months ago to affiliate with headquarters of Macabees here, being named recently as a deputy commander.

JONES ASSUMES NEW OFFICE HERE WITH MACABEES

Volney B. Jones, newly appointed deputy state commander for Georgia Macabees, has assumed his new duties and opened offices in the new Macabee temple, 217 1/2 Peachtree street, according to statements Saturday.

The first official act of the new deputy commander was to issue a general letter to all Macabees of the state, pledging himself to continue the Caravan club drive and to give the full cooperation of his offices to further the plans for the big victory class initiation to be held here on July 1.

The letter included brief references to the solidarity of the Macabee order, its long service as a fraternal organization and its progressive new policy to meet present day conditions. He outlined these plans, enumerated the purposes for each plan and asserted that the organization was entering upon a new era in the south.

Mr. Jones formerly resided in Savannah and is well known in fraternal and political circles of south Georgia. He came to Atlanta only a few months ago to affiliate with headquarters of Macabees here, being named recently as a deputy commander.

MAN NEAR DEATH FROM SNAKE BITE; WOMAN ESCAPES

Way's Station, Ga., June 21.—Bitten by a rattlesnake while he and his wife were in a field just behind his house, a man here, picking huckleberries, A. J. Vanzant, agent of the Seaboard Air Line railway, is in a critical condition, and no hope is held out for his recovery.

Vanzant was bitten yesterday afternoon by the snake, and although medical attention was given immediately, the poison quickly spread through his body, and today the leg, which was bitten by the reptile, was badly swollen.

After being attacked by the snake, Vanzant shouted to his wife, who got out of its path.

White County Citizens To Dedicate New Bridge

Cleveland, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—One and three-fourths miles north of Cleveland on the Atlanta-Asheville highway there is now in course of construction one of the most magnificent highway bridges in the south. This bridge spans the Little Tennessee river over a deep canyon with its deep setting of mountain, ivy, rhododendron, big white pines that stand up like sentinels, with big boulders lying in the bed of the stream as though to stop the mad rush of the water; looking up we see in the vast expanse of blue a sky adorned by myriads of stars in their glittering beauty, mingled with the soft and mellow light of a pale moon, a most romantic and ideal place for the state highway department to construct the bridge that will be the center of attraction for motorists for many, many miles around.

The charm which Marshall bridge will attain is expected to be so inducing that it will be made a constant place of visitation.

One has only a faint idea of how "city folk" will enjoy this scenery only three hours' drive from Atlanta.

Marshall bridge is named in honor of J. T. Marshall, federal engineer of Atlanta, and is the largest single arch concrete bridge constructed, or under construction, by any state highway department in the south. It is 120 feet clear arch span, 50 feet from water. The top of the bridge is 172 feet long. Seven thousand sacks of cement, 54,000 pounds of reinforcing steel, 244 feet hand railing, are required in its construction. This bridge is being constructed by Medlock & Armstrong, with Fred A. May, state highway bridge engineer, supervising. Work began May 5 and will be completed about September 15 of this year. The altitude at the top of the bridge is 1,500 feet.

Legion To Dedicate.

The White County post of the American Legion at Cleveland, Ga., will dedicate this bridge to their comrades who paid the supreme sacrifice by placing a tablet with suitable inscription thereon.

The people of this section are highly elated over the attraction this bridge will add to the most promising

SENSATIONAL LEAP FROM AUTO GIVES LIBERTY TO YOUTH

Police are searching for a young man who, after being arrested late Saturday night on a charge of disorderly conduct, made a sensational escape by leaping from the automobile in which he was being taken to police station. The man's companion, said to be Miss Virginia Clark, 22, of 52 West Peachtree place, also was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge, and released on bond.

The couple were arrested by Motorcycle Policemen Higgins and Rivers while riding in Miss Clark's automobile on West Peachtree street. The man was placed in the police car, which was driven by Rivers, while Higgins took Miss Clark to police headquarters in her own machine.

The man, whose name Miss Clark refused to give, jumped from the police car after riding several blocks, and disappeared before Officer Rivers could stop the machine to give chase.

Worth Considering.
Even if it were admitted that there are technical objections grave enough to create some doubt as to the certainty of the success of the plan, at the same time vital religious progress is frequently attended by an element of noble adventure and the reunion of the two great American Methodist churches is an objective worthy enough to warrant courageous advance towards it. It is a time when we should take counsel of our hopes rather than of our fears. The voice of some southern Methodist leader ought to be heard before long in the general

Recent History Cited.

Furthermore, we are not without some rather recent history that sheds a light of calcium clearness upon this question. A plan of union was rejected by the Northern Methodist church just a few years ago and it was rejected in this ground, i. e., the plan provided for certain geographical jurisdictions and placed their 400,000 white members in the south in a juris-

Plaza Way (Now Open) Connecting Whitehall and N. Broad

Atlanta's latest and biggest improvement—THE PLAZA WAY—the new walkway connecting Whitehall and North Broad streets is already becoming to be a very popular place. Mr. John W. Grant, one of Atlanta's leading financiers, conceived the idea some weeks ago that Atlantians should have a walkway between Whitehall and North Broad, so he approached the Central Railroad of Georgia and offered to exchange them approximately 12 feet of his property, extending from the Wall street building to the Central tracks, for the privilege of allowing him to extend the Plaza way out over their tracks—hence we have beautiful "Plaza Way." Already all vacancies along the walk have been contracted for, and by firms who are wide awake and they will very quickly make this one of Atlanta's very attractive trading points. Suppose we suggest a particularly good slogan—"Meet Me on Plaza Way."

Plague Epidemic Was Open Sesame To White Indians

Leader of Darien Expedition Freed Tribes of Smallpox Wave and Won Confidence of Chiefs.

BLOND ABORIGINES PROSCRIBED BY LAW

Death Decree to All Persons of Fair Skins Recalled After 400 Years of Effect.

SCIENTIST CONFIRMS DISCOVERY OF INDIANS.
New York, June 21.—The first scientific confirmation of the assertion of Richard O. Marsh that he had found "White Indians" in the Darien was received here today, in a dispatch from G. N. Breder, scientist assigned to the expedition by the American Museum of Natural History. Dr. Breder's message to the museum was as follows:
"Marsh has three white Indians who have golden hair, hazel blue eyes and white, tender skins. Two of the boys are marked with 'liver spots,' but the girl is comparatively clear. Their gums are pink and their skulls unusual in size and shape, being round and decidedly different from the typical San Blas Indians."
Dr. Clark Wissler, well-known anthropologist, who received the message, said:
"Dr. Breder is a competent scientist and I am convinced by what he says that the white Indians are a different people than the San Blas Indians. How they came to be there and what they are I cannot say at this time."

BY RICHARD O. MARSH.
Editor's Note: Richard O. Marsh, leader of the Marsh Darien expedition into eastern Panama, after four months of danger and hardship in the jungle has reached Colon with three Indians, who he positively asserts, are the "white Indians" which the expedition sought. He has sent to The Constitution the following account of the latter period of his expedition, and the manner in which he found the "white Indians."

Colon, Canal Zone, June 21.—Death, disease and desertion had depleted our party by the early days of May. We had come from the Pacific, ascended the Chucunaque river to its upper reaches, and crossed over to the Atlantic. Numerous indications caused me to realize that we were within striking distance of our goal, but had not yet achieved it.
Success in the Darien depends upon two factors—ability to penetrate almost impenetrable country, and ability to gain the confidence and loyalty of the native Indian chiefs. Without these two factors no expedition can succeed in the Darien. We had demonstrated that we had a fighting chance with the former. We had to achieve the latter.
When the crisis came, the three whites—Charles Charlton, of the Second Contest For Boys, Girls Is Announced

Cash, Loew's Grand Tickets and Water Colors for Best Drawings.

Readers of the boys and girls' section of The Atlanta Constitution's magazine are offered today the second chance to show their skill at drawing and painting, and at the same time win one of the cash prizes, boxes of water colors or tickets to Loew's Grand theater.
On page three of the boys and girls' section of the magazine today are found pictures to be completed. Plain black drawing pencils, crayons or water colors can be used. All pictures must be sent to the boys' and girls' editor of The Atlanta Constitution before Thursday of this week.
Many answers were received in the first contest of the summer which ended last Thursday. These are being judged now and the winners will be named in next Sunday's magazine. All prizes won by those living in town must be called for at the office of the boys and girls' editor on the fourth floor of The Constitution building.
The Loew's Grand theater tickets to be awarded in the first contest are good for the week of June 30, and in addition to the regular five acts of vaudeville, Tom Mix will be starred in his latest picture, "Mile-a-Minute Romeo." The water colors were donated by F. J. Coolidge & Sons, of this city.
The cash prizes in the second contest are: First prize, $1 in cash; eight prizes of 50 cents each; six boxes of water colors, given by F. J. Coolidge & Sons, and 50 tickets to Loew's Grand theater, donated by the management of Loew's Grand.

NEW YORK WORLD FIGHT ON M'ADOO BECOMES BITTER

Despite Campaign, However, Relative Strength of Former Georgian in Convention Unchanged.

FLOOR LEADERSHIP IS HELD IMPORTANT

McAdoo Well Equipped in This Respect—His Rapid Comeback Impresses Even Opponents

BY MARK SULLIVAN.
New York, June 21.—To the reader distant from the scene, it must seem that the quantity of words written of the approaching convention is excessively disproportionate to the number of actual things that happen. If the reader were here in person and if he should decide to be his own reporter, he might make a beginning by taking a look at the much exploited eighteenth floor of the Vanderbilt hotel, where the McAdoo headquarters are.
It looks much the same as any floor of any other of hundreds of hotels in the United States, although I observe that The New York World, when it has occasion to mention the McAdoo headquarters, manages to get in the fact that it was formerly the suite of Caruso, the opera singer, and before that of a member of the Vanderbilt family.
Try To Prejudice McAdoo.
One hardly can avoid feeling that the intention is somehow to suggest that McAdoo is living in luxury or has command of campaign funds to an extent that would prejudice him in the minds of the "plain people."

This fight of the New York World to prevent Mr. McAdoo's nomination is distinctly part of the important news of the convention. The World yesterday again had a powerful editorial and an equally powerful cartoon directed against Mr. McAdoo. One gathers, and also one is told on fair authority, that it is The World's intention to keep the fight up after day after day. Inasmuch as many democrats throughout the country have for years regarded The World as the most powerful organ of the party, the effect of its campaign must be considerable.
If McAdoo should win, after all, these editorials, articles and cartoons which The World is now printing will be the best sort of campaign material for the republicans. Indeed, the republicans stand to profit by a good deal that is going on here.

Basic Facts the Same.
As regards the central facts of the situation, they have not changed. McAdoo still has a maximum strength of just over half the convention vote, perhaps, 150 short of the two-thirds rule will not be changed. Much of the time of the McAdoo leaders is consumed with getting in touch with their local state leaders as they are.

Italy Is Slated For Earthquake, Says Scientist

Seismic Expert Predicts Catastrophe Rivaling Disaster in Japan.

Philadelphia, June 21.—Italy prepare for an earthquake catastrophe within a short time.
This warning was issued tonight by Dr. M. A. Nobles, the expert on seismic conditions, who claims that he predicted the Japanese earthquake of 1923. Dr. Nobles said he saw indications of volcanic crevasses in Italy and added that if they occurred in the southern part of the country the loss of life would run into hundreds of thousands. If, however, the disturbance is local to the mountainous and sparsely populated regions of the north, the loss of life may be small.
He traced a volcanic range from Italy through France and the Scandinavian countries, thence across Iceland and Greenland into North America; thence to the South sea islands through southern India and back across to southern Europe to Italy. This range, he said, is showing disturbances at several places. He traced the strange atmospheric conditions in the United States to this demonstration and said the volcanic emissions were heating the air and causing humidity in America.

Memory Day Celebration Staged To Honor Valiant Defenders in Battle of Atlanta

Seated, left to right, Judge George P. Hillyer, Dr. Elijah Connally and Captain James W. English; standing, Robert C. Hemphill and Captain Alexander C. Bruce—five prominent and pioneer Atlantans, who laid down rifles and bayonets at the close of the war between the states and took up the burden of rebuilding the great city of Atlanta. In celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the battle of Atlanta and in honor of heroic veterans who contributed so much to the reconstruction of the city following Sherman's visit in 1864, thousands of Atlantans will observe Memory day on July 22.

MAYFLOWER SAILS ON CRUISE MEANT TO SOLIDIFY G. O. P.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.
Washington, June 21.—While national excitement concentrates on the choice of a democratic presidential nominee in New York, there is going on here a quiet, determined movement in republican ranks that may have much significance in the fall election campaign as any of next week's events at Madison Square Garden.
President Coolidge and his campaign manager, William M. Butler, who also is chairman of the republican national committee, are directing their energies toward the establishment of unity in the republican party. Immediately upon his arrival in the capital today from Chicago, Butler began a series of conferences with his chief. These are designed to smooth over the friction that arose at Cleveland between Butler and republicans leaders and to put the party lieutenants into an agreement that will present a unanimous front against the democrats.
Policy of Placation.
Butler met the president at the white house, lunched with him and then accompanied him on a week-end cruise on the Mayflower. There are several things the president and his Massachusetts aide hope to achieve for the cause of harmony. Thorough cooperation must be arranged with Secretary Sloop. Also, several senators who opposed Butler's tactics at Cleveland must be brought into camp for the presentation of a united phalanx in the fall campaign. These include such men as Senators Reed and Pepper, of Pennsylvania. The pre-campaign strategy also envisages a reconciliation between the administration and senators who have opposed the president on one or more issues in congress. These men include such leaders as Senators Lodge, Curtis and Watson.
Butler Says He's Ready.
Establishment of this united front will be part of the week-end deliberations between the president and his director-general.
Butler's arrival was followed by a formal statement praising the Coolidge-Dawes ticket and announcing "We are ready to go forward with our campaign."
Later, he said, he would make a statement regarding the advisory committee which is to cooperate with the national committee in directing the campaign. Upon the organization of this advisory body, which Secretary Sloop has said would really manage the campaign, depends to a great extent the harmony which the president is seeking.
Guest List Significant.
Coolidge and Butler are expected to review the Cleveland differences, on their week-end trip, and to conclude some arrangement which will

TREASURY TO PAY TAX REBATE SOON

Persons Who Paid Full Income Levy in March To Begin To Get Refunds July 1.

Washington, June 21.—The treasury will be ready July 1 to refund more than $10,000,000 overpaid in income taxes March 15 as a result of the subsequent 25 per cent reduction granted by congress.
In a decision today, Comptroller General McCarl advised the treasury that it may use any funds appropriated for repayment of illegally collected taxes, and Secretary Mellon immediately laid plans for paying back the extra 25 per cent turned in by 1,085,000 persons. The decision removed the barrier to the refunding of the over-payments occasioned by failure of congress in the closing hours of its session to pass the deficiency bill which carried money for that purpose.
"The tax-payers' right to refunds," the decision said, "is an obligation upon the appropriation for the fiscal year when the right arose and not necessarily the appropriation for the fiscal year when the claim is made."
Congress since January has provided $117,000,000 for the treasury in refunding taxes illegally collected. About $30,000,000 of this fund remains which under the McCarl decision can be used in settling with those who on March 15 paid all of the taxes then due for the year.
Few of the refunds will be large, the amounts seldom exceeding $100. Repayment of the extra 25 per cent may mean, however, that some of the contested tax claims, pending for months or in some cases years, may not be settled before new appropriations are granted.

Celebration Will Begin at Dawn on July 22 With Firing of Big Guns at Fort McPherson.

A great patriotic demonstration in celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the battle of Atlanta will be staged in this city on July 22, according to announcement Saturday. The day has been officially designated by Mayor Walter A. Sims as Memory Day and will be set apart for carrying into effect one of the greatest patriotic programs ever attempted in the southland.
At early dawn on the morning of July 22 the celebration will open by booming of huge guns at Fort McPherson. Throughout the remainder of the day until late in the night citizens will join in various features to celebrate the greatest historical event in the history of Atlanta and to pay homage to Confederate defenders, the loyalty of womanhood of the south during the dark period, and to the uncompromising spirit of pioneers who have built the south's greatest city on the black and smoldering ruins of the Atlanta of 60 years ago.

SOCIALIST MAYOR ASKS LA FOLLETTE TO BE CANDIDATE

Senator Favored To Lead New Third Party, But Is Opposed as Merely Independent Candidate.

Milwaukee, June 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—A resolution favoring Robert M. La Follette to lead a new third party, but showing opposition to him as an independent candidate of either of the major parties, was introduced to the platform committee of the state socialist convention here today by Milwaukee's socialist mayor, Daniel Hoan.
Shortly afterward Congressman Victor L. Berger, socialist from the fifth Wisconsin district, in addressing the convention stated the socialists of this state should be for La Follette as an independent on a third party ticket, providing they could do so "honestly and fairly," without injury to the movement that the socialist party stands for.
Opposes Him as Independent.
Mayor Hoan explained his resolution to mean that he favored La Follette to lead a new third party, but was opposed to him if he ran as an independent republican or as an independent democrat.
"La Follette's platform is not very radical, but you can't resist capitalism in one town alone and succeed in hurting it," said Congressman Berger. "I cannot see that my socialism would be brushed off very easily by my brushing against La Follette. We must get results quickly or be prepared for feudalism."
"La Follette always took great care to hang on to the band wagon, but during the war he stood firm, even when it was dangerous, and I shall never forget that he stood firm."

Business Owns Both Parties.

"Big business owns congress, both sides of it," he said, "and the same thing applies to the two major political parties. Harry Sinclair, being a democrat, contributed $75,000 to the democratic, while Edward Doheny, being a good democrat, gave $75,000 to the democrats and $25,000 to the republicans. But it is the attitude of the public on these matters that counts most and augurs ill for the social body. But remember, to be a socialist, the very least a man must be honest. He should be much more than honest, but he must be at least that."

Sugar Workers Quit.

Honolulu, June 21.—Filipino sugar plantation workers on the Island of Hawaii struck today, though estimates of the number walking out differed. According to the police on the island, about 2,000 joined the strike. The sugar planters countered, however, with a statement that only 500 had left their work.

YOUTH ARRESTED IN BRUTAL ATTACK UPON SWEETHEART

Mother Leads Police to Hiding Place of Son, Who Is Said To Have Confessed.

GIRL NOT EXPECTED TO SURVIVE ASSAULT

After Roadhouse Party, Her Body Found With Head Battered by Hammer Blows.

New Brunswick, N. J., June 21.—George Meier, former sweetheart of Miss Veronica Schultz, who was found unconscious near here after being attacked with a hammer, was arrested here tonight after his mother had guided police to the place from which he had telephoned her.
Meier was taken to the prosecutor's office, where he is alleged to have admitted striking the girl with a hammer and leaving her by the road.
Miss Schultz had told police, after being revived at a hospital, that she was on a motor ride with "her last night when they had stopped at a roadhouse and had several drinks. After that, the girl said, she remembered little of what had happened."

Both 17 Years Old.
The boy and girl are both 17 years old. Miss Schultz is not expected to recover.
Young Meier, who lives in Plainfield, is a mechanic. A machinist's hammer, stained with blood, was found near Miss Schultz's body. The girl had been brutally assaulted. Her head was battered by hammer blows and her shoes and clothing scattered about the spot where her body was found.
An alarm had been broadcast for the boy after police learned that he had taken the girl for a ride last night and had not returned to his home today. Police were watching the Meier home when they saw Mrs. Meier leave to enter the house of a neighbor. On questioning her when she came out, they learned that she had spoken to the boy over the neighbor's telephone and that he had asked her to meet him in another part of town.

Mother Leads Police.
"We're going to go with you, Mrs. Meier," the chief of police told her. Guided by the mother, the police went to the place where the boy was waiting and arrested him.
In the middle of a dark street, Mrs. Meier met her boy. Before they could speak, detectives closed in and took him from her. He was immediately taken to the prosecutor's office, where he is alleged to have admitted that he took Miss Schultz out for a ride and, near the spot where she was found, struck her over the head with the hammer which he had in the bottom of the automobile.
Police said she also admitted that when the blow was struck, the girl fell out of the seat and that he dragged her toward the bushes off the highway.

Mumblers Boy's Name.
Miss Schultz, found unconscious on a lonely lane near here with her head badly mutilated, was barely able to mumble Meier's name in connection with the tragedy after she had been taken to a hospital and revived. After describing a motor ride, which she said she had taken with Meier, she relapsed into unconsciousness and physicians did not believe she would live.
Mrs. Catherine Schultz, the girl's mother, told police that for three years and until a few weeks ago her daughter had been the object of Meier's attentions.
"I thought they were too young to be going together steadily and I told them so," said Mrs. Schultz. "Veronica saw that I was right and she dropped George. Veronica was 17 only a few weeks ago. We sent a policeman to take her to a convent to make the mistake I did—marrying too young a man."

PACT TO FORM PEACH COUNTY MADE AT MEET
Fort Valley, Ga., June 21.—Former opponents of Peach county and friends of the plan to create that county met here today and reached an agreement for the division of Houston county permitting the creation of Peach county by the coming session of the legislature.
It was announced that Taylor, Macon and Houston counties, leaders in the opposition, will work for the measure. Peach county will have an area of 150 square miles under the plan and Houston 495 square miles.

AL SMITH'S PET COLLIE DISCOVERED AT CONEY

New York, June 21.—Governor Smith's pet collie, which had been missing for two days, was found by a policeman at Coney Island today in the custody of a small boy. The collie, known as "Teddy" in the Smith household, was given to the governor by his mother on her death bed.

DELEGATES ARRIVING FAST FOR CONVENTION

Sentiment for Ralston as Ultimate Choice for First Place on Ticket Refuses To Down.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
New York, June 21.—Democratic leaders are turning their attention more toward John W. Davis, of New York and West Virginia, whose quiet boom is taking a spurt during the week-end preceding the convention.
Leaders have not settled down to pick a compromise candidate yet, but they are feeling out the arriving delegates and the first reaction was the appearance of a marked trend toward Davis as the ultimate choice of the convention.
Something may happen to swing the current toward someone else. They only certain thing is that Davis talk was floating around everywhere Saturday night and that some of the leaders in strategic positions are privately preparing to turn to him after the other candidates have tried out their strength in the early ballots.
Delegates Arriving Fast.
Delegates to the national convention are arriving on every train, and by Monday morning practically all will be there. Many are bringing booms for favorite sons and local celebrities. Few of these are taken seriously here. The chief purpose of most of these booms is to pay a compliment to a local leader and to give the delegates someone to anchor to until they can study the lineup here and pick a band wagon for the big ride.
All day the delegates came in from the west, took up headquarters at various hotels, scattered badges, campaign buttons, banners and campaign literature about. They pushed up and down the jam in Peacock Alley, the main corridor of the Waldorf-Astoria. This famous lobby, which has been a meeting place of politicians for years, has been stripped of its luxurious appointments to make room for the hundreds of politicians who shuffle up and down exchanging gossip.
Along one end of the Almy headquarters have been opened for Al Smith, Oscar Underwood, John W. Davis and James M. Cox. McAdoo's headquarters are in the Vanderbilt hotel some distance away. Favorite sons are scattered around at various hotels. These candidates' headquarters in Peacock Alley are equipped with luxurious chairs and offer an enticing picture to the foot-wearing lobby hounds, many of whom willingly endure the talk of the paid but

Dreams of Gin in Gotham HORDE OF DRY AGENTS BEGINS TO APPLY SPONGE SHATTER IN TINKLING CRASH

BY RALPH H. TURNER.
New York, June 21.—Wet or dry? This dominant question on the eve of the democratic national convention, not as regards the platform so much as the general alcoholic atmosphere of Manhattan, received partial answer tonight from E. C. Yellowley, national chief of prohibition.

Supported by a dozen prohibition agents, Yellowley led ten dry raids into various parts of New York city and seized liquor whose convention value would have mounted into thousands of dollars. The seizures included four cases of Scotch grabbed near the Waldorf hotel, the general headquarters of many convention activities. Yellowley suspected the Scotch was being smuggled into the hotel.
Preceding the raids the prohibition chief had warned the city and its democratic visitors that he intended keeping the city dry, so far as possible, adding that "spectacular raids would be conspicuous." And in case reserves are needed, Yellowley said, he was prepared to bring 100 extra dry agents here next week. Special targets, he added, would be made of men and women who attempted to do their drinking in public.
"The man or woman drinking or carrying liquor in public," Yellowley declared, "must be ready to suffer the embarrassment of arrest. The agents will conscientiously and courageously do their full duty at all times. This rule applies to the transporter, the bootlegger and the bon vivant."

Those coming under the latter designation, which is understood to apply to the gay but casual drinker, may have been in Mr. Yellowley's mind when he remarked:
"I am satisfied that the visiting delegates and others concerned in the conduct of the convention will manifest a ready willingness to comply with the provisions of the national prohibition act."
Willingly or otherwise, visitors and delegates to the convention probably will have to reconcile themselves to a certain amount of dryness—dryness that will express itself in higher prices and necessity of a search for the right place rather than an alarming scarcity of portable products.
Yellowley's raids included a visit to the Bronx cafe conducted by Helene Zimmerman, former third baseman of the Giants. Two cases of whiskey were found at Helene's place. Other cafes raided which were not so well known were owned mostly by men of foreign names and were located as far south as Seventeenth street.
Wayne B. Wheeler, who issued a statement expressing himself as fairly well satisfied with the dry outlook, will have more to say on the subject Monday afternoon when he addresses the Y. M. C. A. on "When and How America Is to Be Made Dry."
Perhaps as a counterbalance to the dry activity, Charles S. Wood, eastern manager of the association against the prohibition amendment, is whirling about the city arranging for the association's meeting at the Hotel Astor Sunday night. The meeting, according to Wood, will appoint a committee to urge a wet plank in the democratic platform as well as to work for election of a wet congress.

Those Under Arrest in Matteotti Case Implicated in Sensational Statement by Amerigo Dumini.

SOCIALIST REFUSES FASCIST'S CHALLENGE

Judges in Charge of Inquiry Work 14 Hours Daily In Attempt to Solve Crime.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Rome, June 21.—The newspaper Messaggero says today that Amerigo Dumini, under arrest in connection with the supposed murder of the socialist deputy, Matteotti, has made a confession implicating as instigators of the crime some of those under arrest and others, and indicating that the murdered deputy's body was ultimately disposed of by being burned.

Matteotti, according to this confession, was killed almost immediately he was forced into the automobile by his kidnappers. The body was taken to the forest of Vico and hidden behind a fence, but the same night one of the men who had taken part in the murder went with a companion to the scene and removed it to a new hiding place. The confession was somewhat hazy as to the ultimate disposal of the body, but it appeared from the prisoner's account that it was burned.

Struggle in Auto.
The experts today presented to the judges the results of their investigations concerning the condition of the automobile in which Matteotti is alleged to have been kidnapped and murdered. The automobile, the expert said, showed signs of a ferocious struggle. Stains on the inside of the automobile were found to be those of human blood, but the scientists have been unable to determine so far whether the blood was that of the same person.

Experts from the scientific police school presented an opinion on fingerprints found on the doors and windows of the automobile. A report was also presented on an examination made of the suspects now under arrest as to whether any of them had suffered bruises, scratches or abrasions.

The judges entrusted with handling the Matteotti case are working 14 hours daily, sifting documents and interrogating those who have been arrested. One of the judges recently spent some time at the spot where Matteotti's railway pass was found. It is believed by some that Matteotti was killed at this spot and his body hidden near by and later removed.

PHELAN CONFIDENT OF M'ADOO VICTORY

New York, June 21.—Former Senator James D. Phelan, of California, who will place in nomination the name of William G. McAdoo at the democratic national convention, arrived today from Europe on the steamship Berengaria. He expressed confidence that Mr. McAdoo would be nominated and elected.

"We should have a democratic candidate," he said, "who is progressive and who can offset the ill effects of the present tariff. Mr. McAdoo is undoubtedly that man."

"When McAdoo left office, he took with him a reputation for integrity, honor and capability. Naturally, clients flocked to him. As a great statesman in the west said, 'a man must eat.'"

Not Connected With Klan. Mr. Phelan said he believed McAdoo was not connected directly or indirectly with the Ku Klux Klan, adding that "he would be ineligible for public office if he were, as that organization is illegal."

On the wet and dry issue, Mr. Phelan said he personally favored campaigns in congressional districts to elect men who would vote to liberalize the Volstead act to allow light beers and wines without the saloon.

Speaking of the question of abrogating the two-thirds rule in the convention, Mr. Phelan replied: "It is the general feeling to maintain the rule. It makes the nominations more impressive and satisfactory to the country."

Nebraska Delegation Arrives. The vanguard of the Nebraska delegation, arriving today, brought word that the name of the state's favorite son, Governor Charles W. Bryan, would be placed formally before the convention. The nominating speech will be made by Harry B. Flaherty of Omaha.

In Madison Square Garden, the hotels, campaign headquarters and newspaper offices, an aggregate of more than 1,000,000 feet of telephone wire has been installed to provide special service during the convention. A system of telephones embracing 600 separate lines, constructed for the occasion, required 92 booths, 71 coin boxes and a special force of operators and mechanics. Telephone lines have been lined to many radio broadcasting stations outside the metropolitan area, running as far west as Kansas City.

MAYFLOWER SAILS ON HARMONY CRUISE

plante the "old guard" and meet the approval of Slomp. Spokesmen for the president declared definitely at the white house today that Slomp would return to Washington next week and resume his duties.

The importance of the Mayflower conference is reflected in the personnel of the party, which includes prominent figures who were prominent at Cleveland. The president's guests, besides Butler, are Charles B. Warren, ambassador to Mexico, who was chairman of the resolutions committee at Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hillis, of New York; J. H. Kohn, national committee chairman from Connecticut; Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes; Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis, Secretary of Commerce.

However, Representative Burton, of Ohio, the keynote speaker at Cleveland; Senator Brandegee, Connecticut, and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Reynolds, the party expect to return Monday morning.

In Madison Square Garden, the

civic, fraternal and women's organizations in Atlanta. An advisory committee composed of five leading Atlanta citizens, located in the building of new Atlanta—all of whom were valiant soldiers of the 60's—include Judge George P. Hillier, Dr. Elijah L. Connally, Captain James W. English, Captain Alexander C. Bruce and Robert A. Hemphill. These aged citizens fought through the four years of war and settled in what was then the destroyed Atlanta.

Porsaking the rifle and bayonet for more peaceful implements, they set about with others in reconstruction work. Rapidly the ash heaps and ruins took on new life, yielded to the touch of sturdy pioneers and soon was started on its rebuilding boom which has not ceased up to this good day.

To Honor Warriors. Apart from paying homage to the noble defenders who stubbornly contested every inch of ground before the onslaught of Sherman's firebrands and ruthless soldiers, the celebration will pay special honor to those warriors who, undaunted by the strain of four years' war, laid down arms and rebuilt the city of Atlanta—bigger, better, greater than even its builders dreamed.

Today, the towering skyscrapers, the great business industry, the whole magnificent city, stands as an indestructible monument to heroism, fortitude and courage of southern men and women of the sixties.

An honorary committee of pioneer women includes the following well-known women: Mrs. Joseph Morgan, Mrs. Sid Holland, Miss Annie Forth, Mrs. J. D. Stocker, Mrs. Madison Bell, Mrs. E. L. Connally, Mrs. W. A. Wright, Mrs. W. B. McLaughlin, Mrs. J. N. Fusthoff and others.

On the central committee with Mrs. Boykin will be Mrs. John A. Perdue, Mrs. A. O. Woodward, Mrs. E. E. Hageley, Mrs. H. M. Nicholes, Mrs. W. A. Crossland and others.

Thousands of Atlantans will assemble at Five Points in the afternoon for special exercises including short, patriotic addresses by prominent citizens, eulogies to city builders and defenders of the city in the 60's, appropriate song and prayer services.

Visit to Markers. On the morning of Memory Day visits will be made to historic markers in and around the city where the most intense fighting in the battle of Atlanta took place. Mrs. T. P. Stevens will be in general charge of these visits. One of these markers is placed at "Deerland," the Jack J. Spaulding home on the Confederate line in the battle of Peachtree Creek. Another is at the junction of Collier and Peachtree streets where Major Robert Howell Graham captured a group of federal soldiers and a quantity of supplies. Many other equally as interesting markers have been placed at points in and around the city, and many spots have been preserved intact as mute evidence of the terrific struggle which opened around Atlanta on the morning of July 22, and ended with the evacuation of citizens and the burning and sacking of the city on November 16, following.

During the day of the big celebration members of the local chapter of the U. D. C. will be stationed at convenient sections of the city to sell souvenirs, the proceeds of which will go to the building fund of the chapter house on Juniper street. U. D. C. members will be assisted in this work by the Witches of Peachtree. Women and other organizations. These souvenirs will contain a brief history of the Battle of Atlanta written by Lucian Knight, state historian, illustrated with a photograph of General Hood, famous Confederate general in command of defending forces.

Stage Big Parade. A great parade of military forces in the city, including regulars stationed at Fort McPherson, the 122nd infantry, national guard, and other military organizations will be a feature of the Memory Day celebration. A parade of citizens also is scheduled and will be worked out in later details of plans.

A feature of the celebration will be a visit in the forenoon to the cyclorama by school students under the direction of Mrs. W. B. Brice. Special programs at all theaters in the city will be in keeping with the spirit of the day.

Only tentative plans have been arranged thus far, Mrs. Boykin stated Saturday, and the tremendous undertaking, the most solemn and gigantic in its nature ever attempted by any city in the south, is in its infancy.

The affair will be, it is stated, the first of what is planned to be annual celebrations.

Events of special importance during the siege and final burning of Atlanta are listed as follows:

Historical Data. Celebration of rebirth of Atlanta from burning and destruction in 1864. Battle of Atlanta, July 22, 1864. Surrender of Atlanta by Mayor James M. Calhoun, September 2, 1864. Removal of families under General Sherman's order of expulsion, September 12, 1864. Burning and destruction by Sherman forces before leaving on famous march to the sea, November 16, 1864. War ended April 26, 1865.

Plague Epidemic. WAS OPEN SESAME

Pathe News, Harry Johnson, naturalist, and four black, of our original party of twelve whites and thirteen blacks, remained. We were nearly exhausted.

I visited Ina Paguina, chief of chiefs, of the tribe of Darien. Our first reception was very unfavorable. I treated Ina Paguina for sickness, and later treated hundreds of Indians for disease, and in the process of the epidemic and made my way down the coast to the Colombian border, where there is an American naval station, and, by wireless, urged President Porraz of Panama to send doctors and vaccine by special boat, offering to pay all expenses if necessary. President Porraz responded immediately. The government doctors arrived on the coast, and in one week we vaccinated all the Indians—men, women and children, in the vicinity of the epidemic. This was also the case with the other tribes. The government refused to penetrate the interior of the country and returned to Colon.

Predicted Extinction. But I had gained the Indians' confidence. At my request, Ina Paguina called a council of chiefs and elders of Darien. They came from far distances and from every direction, from the coast islands and from interior mountain valleys. I told them that they must adopt modern education, modern sanitation and modern medical methods, or their race would be exterminated. I pledged myself to them in every way possible.

After long discussion, the chiefs decided that I was their friend and stated in full congress that they considered I had been sent to them as the savior of their race and people. I make this statement not through vanity, but to illustrate the psychology of the Indian that made our later achievements possible.

I told them I wanted to see the white Indians that have existed here long before the coming of the Spaniards. The terrible barbarity of the Spaniards, in the five years of their occupancy, from 1512 to 1517, turned the Indians to bitter revenge and hatred of all white people. This feeling has been handed down and has been transformed into almost a racial religion.

Slew Conquistadores. They killed the Spaniards, pouring molten gold down their throats, and then turned against their own white. Indians and killed them or drove them into the mountains. For years all white children were supposed to be killed, but parents still protected their white children, and the type survived.

Then a law was adopted that no white Indian should be allowed to marry. The law stood, but the type persisted. In discussing these things with the chiefs, I told them that the existence of white Indians proved their close relationship with the white race, and that if the white race knew the truth about the white Indians, they would help them to solve the terrible problems which confront them.

Needs Help of Whites. The Indian realizes that he is fighting a life-and-death battle with disease, on the one hand, and the encroachments of low-type negroes and peoples on the other. These negroes encircle his people, over-run his land and debauch his women. He now realizes that only the help of the white race can save him from these dangers. Immediately the white Indians were made to appear to these chiefs as

Great Indoor Police Circus Assured Heavy Attendance

Two of the fair trapeze performers to appear among the feature acts at the police relief circus to be held all this week at the Auditorium.

Interest in and around Atlanta just now is vacillating between national politics and the big, three-ring circus of McMahon Brothers, which will play two performances daily throughout the week in the interest of the Atlanta Police Relief association.

The big show will be staged in the city auditorium, and is said to be the largest indoor circus ever booked to play the south.

The program is said to be along entirely new and modern lines, in keeping with the times. In such successful circuses of the present day, and without exception the performers are all professionals of the highest order, practically all of whom have at one time or another performed in such circuses as Barnum and Bailey, Ringling Brothers and John Robinson, according to officials of the advance staff.

The auditorium is in readiness for the opening performance Monday afternoon, which will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock. The advance staff has been working several days transforming the floor of the auditorium into a big, three-ring hippodrome for the show, and arranging seats to accommodate the crowds to the best advantage.

Here From Manhattan. The entire company of the big circus, with all of its rigging and equipment, is being brought to Atlanta direct from New York, and the same program will be presented a means of soliciting the aid of the modern races of Indians and brought back three different kinds. All will be turned over to the scientists of the Smithsonian Institution and the American Museum of Natural History for examination.

Dr. Charles M. Breder, scientist attached to the expedition by the American Museum of Natural History, described the Indians as having "golden hair, hazel blue eyes, and white, tender skins." Their skulls, he declared, are of unusual size and shape, being large, round and decidedly jellified.

Mr. Marsh claims the white Indians have "from 15 to 20 per cent greater brain capacity than the average white man."

We have found at least six entirely different races of Indians and brought back three different kinds. All will be turned over to the scientists of the Smithsonian Institution and the American Museum of Natural History for examination.

We proceeded down the coast by small boats, followed by Ina Paguina and his retinue of chiefs. The latter sent messages, generally accompanied by white Indians, asking us to visit them.

At every village at full council meetings the chief and his band of white Indians was openly announced by successive chiefs as removed.

White Indians were restored to all the tribal privileges, and I found that Ina Paguina and two important chiefs were patched up. I selected three most suitable white Indians—one Cuna type—the king—two remarkable, apparently healthy type Indians and three standard San Blas type Indians. These I am bringing to America, if the Panamanian government consent.

I hope to raise sufficient funds to endow proper schools for the Indians under government supervision, conducted by white teachers. Many of the Indians are of a fine type and noble character, with high standards of honesty, loyalty and truth. At others only need a fair chance. They are many traits that could not be emulated by many modern, so-called civilized white people.

White Indians were restored to all the tribal privileges, and I found that Ina Paguina and two important chiefs were patched up. I selected three most suitable white Indians—one Cuna type—the king—two remarkable, apparently healthy type Indians and three standard San Blas type Indians. These I am bringing to America, if the Panamanian government consent.

I hope to raise sufficient funds to endow proper schools for the Indians under government supervision, conducted by white teachers. Many of the Indians are of a fine type and noble character, with high standards of honesty, loyalty and truth. At others only need a fair chance. They are many traits that could not be emulated by many modern, so-called civilized white people.

Progress of Triumph. We proceeded down the coast by small boats, followed by Ina Paguina and his retinue of chiefs. The latter sent messages, generally accompanied by white Indians, asking us to visit them.

At every village at full council meetings the chief and his band of white Indians was openly announced by successive chiefs as removed.

Great Indoor Police Circus Assured Heavy Attendance

Two of the fair trapeze performers to appear among the feature acts at the police relief circus to be held all this week at the Auditorium.

Interest in and around Atlanta just now is vacillating between national politics and the big, three-ring circus of McMahon Brothers, which will play two performances daily throughout the week in the interest of the Atlanta Police Relief association.

The big show will be staged in the city auditorium, and is said to be the largest indoor circus ever booked to play the south.

The program is said to be along entirely new and modern lines, in keeping with the times. In such successful circuses of the present day, and without exception the performers are all professionals of the highest order, practically all of whom have at one time or another performed in such circuses as Barnum and Bailey, Ringling Brothers and John Robinson, according to officials of the advance staff.

The auditorium is in readiness for the opening performance Monday afternoon, which will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock. The advance staff has been working several days transforming the floor of the auditorium into a big, three-ring hippodrome for the show, and arranging seats to accommodate the crowds to the best advantage.

Here From Manhattan. The entire company of the big circus, with all of its rigging and equipment, is being brought to Atlanta direct from New York, and the same program will be presented a means of soliciting the aid of the modern races of Indians and brought back three different kinds. All will be turned over to the scientists of the Smithsonian Institution and the American Museum of Natural History for examination.

Dr. Charles M. Breder, scientist attached to the expedition by the American Museum of Natural History, described the Indians as having "golden hair, hazel blue eyes, and white, tender skins." Their skulls, he declared, are of unusual size and shape, being large, round and decidedly jellified.

Mr. Marsh claims the white Indians have "from 15 to 20 per cent greater brain capacity than the average white man."

SCORES PAY TRIBUTE TO DUB CITIZEN

Dublin, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock for N. B. Baum, pioneer and influential citizen of this city. Dr. Isaac Marcellus, of Macon, officiated at the simple but impressive service and interment followed in North View cemetery. Scores of prominent citizens of middle Georgia attended the services to pay last tribute to one of Georgia's oldest and best known citizens, and to mingle tears of sorrow with those of members of the family over the passing of one who, during his many years residence here, contributed much to the progress of this section.

Floral Tributes. The floral tributes were the most gorgeous seen in this section in many years, many coming from friends in New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Orangeburg, S. C., and other sections of the nation.

Mr. Baum was a member of the Masons, Knights of Pythias and B. O. B. and was 72 years of age at the time of his death.

He was a brother of E. M. Baum, vice president of the Hickey-Freeman company, of Rochester and New York city; of Bart Baum, of the Continental Insurance company, of Chicago, and of A. W. Baum, capitalist, of Dublin and St. Louis, Mo. In addition to his brothers he is survived by his widow, formerly Louise Kohn, of Macon; three daughters, Mrs. F. J. Schiff of Orlando, Fla.; Mrs. E. Dreyer, Miss Jeanette Baum, Miss Adeline Baum and Miss Helen Baum, all of Dublin; a son, Leo P. Baum, of Wilmington, N. C.; two sisters, Mrs. N. H. Thompson of Columbus, Ga., and Mrs. Henry Kohn, of Arlington, S. C.

Noted Philanthropist. Early in young manhood, Mr. Baum came to Dublin from Irwinton, in Wilkes county, where he conducted a large mercantile establishment. He entered business here and within a few years was active head of the largest mercantile business between Macon and Savannah.

Not only was he a pioneer in business circles, but took a leading hand in all movements for the upbuilding of Dublin and the betterment of middle Georgia. Few men ever lived in this section who was as widely known and beloved as he.

The Baum home, erected many years ago, stands at the corner of South Jefferson street and Madison avenue, and has been the scene of many of the most brilliant social events ever held in this section.

No undertaking which had for its purpose the serving of humanity and uplift of conditions generally ever failed to secure the financial and moral assistance of the deceased. His philanthropy and charitable acts were well known to all residents of this section.

Retires From Business. The deceased retired from active business many years ago, owing to failing health, but never lost interest in public affairs.

He was a deep student and noted for his business ability, fine character and unbounded hospitality. His untimely death is a great loss to the community.

Throughout Friday until interment of the body late in the afternoon, a steady stream of callers, former friends and others from all walks of life came to pay last tribute to one of the city's ablest and best-known citizens.

Not Ready With Compromise. The big leaders, George E. Brennan, of Illinois; Ed Moore, of Ohio, and Tom Taggart, of Indiana, have not yet settled down to the main business of agreeing upon a compromise candidate. They are convinced inwardly that McAdoo and Al Smith have no chance. But they are not ready to make commitments regarding compromise candidates until it has been demonstrated beyond question that their judgment regarding the two principal candidates is correct.

Underwood also may be given a chance to show his speed before the real showdown comes.

The field appears to be narrowing down to two men—John W. Davis and Senator Samuel M. Ralston, of Indiana. Taggart is working for Ralston. Ed Moore and some of the others are said to be shifting strongly toward Davis. Moore will lead a preliminary fight for Cox, but if no strength develops, he will pay a few complimentary votes to Al Smith and then pile his strength on Davis.

VENABLE LAUDED IN MEMORIAL ROW

Declaring that the action of Sam H. Venable in protesting against the administration of the Stone Mountain Memorial association is one for which all interested in the work should give him their unqualified thanks, Charles F. Crouch, secretary-treasurer of the Golden Rule Club of America and widely-known Atlanta, has written The Constitution protesting against what he terms unwarranted salaries paid to various employees of the association.

Mr. Crouch says that Mr. Venable should receive "the thanks of the donating public," because he was instrumental in eliminating one employee "who was drawing a salary of $10,400 yearly."

Referring to the work done by Rogers Winter and Mrs. Winter, as publicity agents for the association, Mr. Crouch charges that they are paid an excessive salary, which he puts at $8,000 per annum, and charges further that Hollins Randolph, president of the association, took over Mr. Winter from his work for the association and used him as publicity agent for the McAdoo campaign for the presidential preference campaign in Georgia. Mr. Winter was engaged in this political work for four weeks, says Mr. Crouch, though by the Stone Mountain association, "with the full sanction of Mr. Hollins Randolph," receiving other pay for the aggrandizement of the president and with no mention of rebate to the association.

Crouch's Letter.

Mr. Crouch's letter, in full, is as follows: "Editor Constitution:—In view of the fact that there has been so much publicity given statements relative to allegations that Mr. Sam H. Venable is trying to hinder the carving of the great Confederate memorial on Stone Mountain, and as it is well known by the friends of Mr. Venable that this work is very dear to his heart, and that he has given more of his time, energy and money to the advancement of this work than any other person in the whole world, I am sure your readers are entitled to facts and know you will be glad to give them the same.

"As stated by Mr. Venable, it is his own desire to eliminate useless and extravagant expenditures by the men in charge of the disbursement of these public contributions, and to have the management of association affairs in safe and competent hands. As stated by those opposed to Mr. Venable's alleged interference in these matters, he has already been instrumental in eliminating one employee who was drawing a salary of $10,400 yearly. For this alleged interference he should surely receive the thanks of the donating public.

Surely it shows Mr. Venable at least had a foundation for his charges. Mr. Venable further charges that the enormous salary of $8,000.00 is being paid yearly for publicity agents, a salary more than double any former earnings. This position is held by Mr. Rogers Winter, assisted by Mrs. Winter.

Did Political Work.

"During the presidential preferential primary campaign in Georgia, this publicity agent, who was drawing an enormous salary from the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial association for his full time, was taken over and employed by the president of the association for a period of four weeks for the purpose of acting as publicity agent for the McAdoo campaign in Georgia. While Mr. Winter was giving his full time to political work, using the offices of STONE MOUNTAIN MONUMENTAL ASSOCIATION FOR SAID PURPOSES, WITH THE FULL SANCTION OF MR. HOLLINS RANDOLPH, THE PRESIDENT OF THE ASSOCIATION, HE WAS DOING OTHER WORK, RECEIVING OTHER PAY FOR THE AGGRANDIZEMENT OF THE PRESIDENT, AND WITH NO MENTION OF REBATE TO THE ASSOCIATION.

"These are well known and authentic facts and can easily be backed by authentic evidence.

"I am further reliably informed that Mr. Randolph, as president of the association, recommended and endorsed the payment of $3,000 each month for $36,000 each year) to the sculptor, Mr. Gutzon Borglum, for perfectly models outside of his monthly pay rolls. As this was necessarily rapidly amounting to many thousands of dollars, it is of public record that Mr. Venable suggested the services of a competent engineer to make estimates of the work as advanced and limit payment to results accomplished.

Audit Is Refused.

"Everybody knows it has been impossible to furnish contributors with an audit showing the disposition of their contributions.

"Everybody knows that these funds have been wasted in extravagant compensation to personal friends and for political prestige.

"If the present investigation shall produce from Mr. Randolph the itemized statement of income and disbursements so long desired by those who contributed these funds, then this investigation will have served its purpose.

"Those who know Mr. Venable have never had cause to doubt his sincerity, his loyalty and his generosity, all without thought of personal aggrandizement, and applaud him for his righteous indignation.

"CHARLES F. CROUCH."

PREMIERS CONFER ON DAWES REPORT

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON, June 21.—New ways to a peace understanding in Europe, with the experts' report on reparations figuring prominently, are being discussed at Chequers Court tonight by the British prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, and the French premier, Edouard Herriot. The head of the French government arrived this afternoon to begin again the personal negotiations among the allied premiers which were interrupted when M. Poincaré was defeated.

In private confidential talks tonight and tomorrow morning the two premiers will survey the whole range of European affairs since the armistice, exchange views on the experts' proposals and try to decide how they are to be made effective. M. Herriot will return to London tomorrow and will proceed to Brussels Monday for a conference similar to that with Mr. MacDonald, after which the date for the new allied conference will be announced. It probably will be held the middle of next month.

The prime minister is entertaining the French premier in the peacefulness of his official residence in the Buckinghamshire hills, far enough from London, Mr. MacDonald hopes, to insure privacy and informal discussions, which he insists must characterize his first meeting with M. Herriot. Only one interpreter from Downing street and another from the Quai d'Orsay will sit in with the premiers and only the briefest record will be made. It is not likely that even the usual formal communications will be available to the press.

When Mr. MacDonald learned that French correspondents planned to accompany M. Herriot he reiterated the private and confidential nature of the meeting. M. Herriot, on arriving in England, gave the following brief message to the British people:

"I have the greatest faith in the Anglo-French entente and have worked for it with all my heart. A rapprochement between our two countries has done much in the past, and it is absolutely essential both now and in the future for the peace of the world."

HOUSES SWEEP HILLS FOR TROOPER'S SLAYER

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 21.—U. C. Crawford, a state trooper, was shot to death in the Morgan-Belle county mountains late last night while searching for G. E. Speight, a farmer. The trooper was killed instantly by shots in the head and chest.

Speight was wanted for threatening a county auctioneer who had been ordered to sell his property to satisfy a debt. Crawford and three other troopers went here to join in the hunt for "Happy" Weigle, an outlaw who has terrorized the mountaineers for a week, were ordered to arrest the farmer.

Arriving at the farmhouse, the troopers could not find Speight. Crawford went into a nearby woods to look for him. Two shots attracted the other officers and after a search Crawford's body was found. The murderer removed a watch and some cash from the trooper's body and took his rifle and pistol.

A posse of 25 men with bloodhounds was sweeping the mountains today in an effort to find Speight.

YOUTH WAS SLAIN, CORONER'S JURY SAYS

Central City, Col., June 21.—William R. Christian, 17, of Buffalo, N. Y., found shot to death in a pasture on a ranch near Black Hawk, Col., Thursday afternoon, was slain by an unknown assassin, according to verdict of coroner's jury here late today.

The verdict was returned by the jury after hearing the testimony of six witnesses, one of whom was Jerome M. Lasher, of Buffalo, who arrived here June 10 with Christian after hiking across the country. No motive for the probable murder was ascertained during the inquest.

The murder victim was returned after more than two hours' deliberation by the jury. The body of the youth, who was but 17 years old, will be returned from Central City to Buffalo for burial. The body will be taken back tomorrow.

INJUNCTION BLOCKS DOCTRINAL FIGHT

Gadsden, Ala., June 21.—A temporary injunction was granted by Judge O. A. Steele in circuit court here today to prevent further damage to property of the Friendship Baptist church at Jamestown, in Cherokee county, Alabama, pending a settlement of doctrinal differences between members of the congregation.

In the petition for injunction it was claimed that ten expelled members had seized the books, church roll and all other papers and nailed up the doors and windows of the church. A hearing of the case is set before Judge Bert Haralson at Fort Payne.

McDOWELL GIVEN FORMAL SENTENCE

Clearwater, Fla., June 21.—Frank McDowell, murderer of his entire family, who was convicted of murder yesterday afternoon and recommended to the mercy of the court, came before Circuit Judge M. A. McMullen this morning for sentence. He was given life imprisonment.

J. L. Kelly, representing McDowell made a motion for a new trial, claiming that the verdict was contrary to the evidence and citing seven reasons why a new trial should be granted. The motion was overruled and McDowell was told to stand up for sentence.

Judge McMullen asked McDowell if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him. McDowell said:

"Judge, I have lots of things to say but it would be useless."

The judge then told McDowell that he owed much to his attorneys whose work evidently saved him from the electric chair.

"You are a fortunate boy," said the judge, "to escape the chair. I am sorry for you, Frank, and I truly hope that you are insane, for if you are not your conscience will curse you every hour of your life. It is my duty to sentence you to life imprisonment."

When Judge McMullen told McDowell that if he sane his conscience would curse him the rest of his life, McDowell said it would.

It is expected McDowell will be sent to Raiford about next Thursday.

McDowell was bright and smiling when he entered the court room this morning where he had to wait for an hour before court was called to order. There were several newspapersmen present besides the deputy sheriff. McDowell talked freely with all of them. He said he felt all right and reiterated his previous statements that he is not crazy and has no premonition that he took any stock in what the alienists said about him. He said he thought two or three years in the prison may be beneficial, but thought life would become monotonous after that. He asked many questions regarding the prison and the town it is near, and expressed a preference to working on the prison farm rather than in the factory part of the institution.

Is Nobody's Fool.

Discussing the trial, McDowell said he hated to be called an idiot and a fool and declared that he is nobody's fool. He said the people do not know the truth regarding him. He said he hoped to be restored to health and get a pardon in a few years.

"But, Frank," said a reporter, "you have told many stories, but have never told the real reason for killing your parents. Now, come clean with it." McDowell showed signs of anger and said: "There was no reason. I simply have periodic spells when I do not know what I am doing; at other times I am all right."

Being pinned down for a more definite reply, McDowell was reminded that he planned the murder of his parents ahead of time, administered drugs to them so there would be no disturbance when he shot them, and that nobody believed his story about not knowing what he was doing.

Becomes Angry At Question.

At this McDowell became angry and flashing a scathing glance at his questioner, said: "If you knew what I want to tell you, you would shut up. You are the first person who ever accused me of wilfully murdering my parents."

McDowell in talking about the murder said no sane man would have left the evidence he did. He referred to the Holy Ghost note as a fool thing and said the pistol with blood on it would never have been left by a sane person.

"You fooled the doctors all right," an attorney said to McDowell. "I did not try to fool them," said McDowell. "They thought they knew something which they did not know, and I simply let them have their way about it. I knew I had no premonition."

COURT ORDER AVERTS STRIKE IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, June 21.—The threatened strike of 2,500 union street car employees tonight was averted until Wednesday noon, at least, by issuance of a temporary restraining injunction today by Common Pleas Judge Powell at the behest of the union car men.

The injunction restrains the Cleveland Railway company from doing anything to upset its present contract with the men until after the hearing of the restraining order, which is set for Wednesday. At this hearing the matter of wages, including the 12 cents an hour increase granted the men by three of five arbitrators and rejected by the company, will be considered.

ENDURANCE MARKS ARE SET BY FLYERS AT LOUISVILLE, KY.

Louisville, Ky., June 21.—Two world's records for duration flights with heavy loads are believed to have been established here today by Lieutenant John A. MacReady and Lieutenant Harold R. Harris, flying in an air carnival as part of the Kentucky homecoming celebration.

Flying an eight-passenger army transport plane carrying 551 pounds, Lieutenant MacReady was still in the air three and a half hours after taking off, a feat which officials of the air carnival said smashed old endurance records for that class.

Lieutenant Harris was still in the air two and a half hours after taking off with a load of 1,102 pounds in a Martin bomber. Officials, after comparing records for more than an hour, announced that both MacReady and Harris had set new marks.

New Southern Furniture Chain Planned

American Furnishing Company to Open New Store in Miami, Fla., as First Unit in Big Chain

Atlanta Concern To Open Great System of Branch Stores Throughout Dixie.

Having experienced seventeen years of phenomenal growth as a wholesale and retail concern serving Atlanta and the south, the American Furnishing Company, one of Atlanta's most progressive business institutions and one of the foremost furniture and house-furnishing establishments in the south, will create at once a chain of furniture stores throughout the southern states, according to announcement Saturday.

Officials of the company disclosed that the first of the contemplated chain of branch stores will be situated in Miami, Fla., and will be ready for its formal opening to the public on July 1.

This store will occupy a building consisting of four stories and a mezzanine floor at Flagler street and Tenth avenue, near the very heart of the Miami retail district.

corps, young Mr. Gordon made hundreds of friends who will be delighted to learn that he has been made secretary and treasurer of the Miami branch and placed in active management of its affairs.

In connection with the announcement concerning that promotion of Mr. Gordon, it was further announced that D. E. Shumaker, who has been a public accountant with offices in Atlanta, has been appointed general auditor of the new chain of stores. Mr. Shumaker has included among his local clients some of the largest corporations of the south, and his ability as an auditor has won for himself an enviable reputation among the public accountants of the city.

The well-known high grade lines of furniture and household goods which have won thousands of regular customers for the Atlanta store will be handled by the Miami branch, both retail and wholesale trade being served from its stocks. The structure contains 30,000 square feet of floor space and has been built according to plans especially prepared for the American Furniture Company, which assures a building peculiarly adapted to the furniture business. It has been leased for a period of fifteen years, with the privilege of renewal. It is modern in every respect, light, airy and attractive.

"We have had in mind the establishment of a chain of stores for some time," R. A. Gordon, vice president and general manager of the parent store, stated, "and Miami appeared to be the logical city for the first one. It is a live, wide-awake city, humming with commercial activity and development, and we feel we have made a most judicious choice in opening our first branch in Miami."

The story of how the American Furniture Company has grown from a humble beginning to its present proportions, handling an annual volume of business that reaches a stupendous figure, is a remarkable narrative, and as it is related one readily sees that its destinies have been guided by men whose vision has been clear, and whose business integrity and genius is unquestioned.

Seventeen years ago Mr. W. Reid, born and reared near Madison, Ga., in Morgan county, and Robert A. Gordon, a native of Spalding county, and then the associate of Mr. Reid in a brokerage business, founded the American Furniture Company and first opened its doors to the public

M. W. REID
President of the American Furniture Company and president of its new Miami, Fla., branch. Mr. Reid is known as the American Furniture Company. Together with Robert A. Gordon, Mr. Reid founded the company seventeen years ago.

In the years that followed the public showed a constant appreciation of the commendable policies of the American Furniture Company, and the reputation of the enterprise for integrity and fairness spread throughout the south, attracting customers from practically every southern state. The store, put into practice a liberal credit system, which found a ready response from those with whom it was inconvenient to make cash purchases. This system contributed in a large measure to the founding of new homes whose occupants were made the happier because of their partial relief from the financial stress attendant upon the beginning of housekeeping.

This credit system, together with the wide price range of the tremendous stocks which permitted a customer to outfit his entire home at a nominal cost or offered to the wealthier patron a line of furniture from the finest furnishings of the world, caused a continuous growth in business.

The Edgewood avenue store was soon outgrown and more spacious quarters were required for the proper accommodation of the public. The cramped space on Edgewood avenue was abandoned, and the American Furniture Company took its first definite step upward when it opened a larger and more modern store at 62 Peachtree street. Here there was a quickened increase in the volume of business, and the new quarters were soon found inadequate, so the present building, on the northeast corner of North Pryor street and Auburn avenue, was acquired.

There is perhaps no store in the south having as complete a stock as that found on the eight floors of the

This same policy will be in effect at the branch stores. It is the intention of the management to be in position to furnish any home at practically any price. This has been the aim of the American Furniture Company, and this week, when Robert A. Gordon and A. L. Yelvington, who is vice-president of the Miami branch, go to Grand Rapids and Chicago to make large furniture purchases, it will be the foremost thing in their minds.

Growth of the American Furniture Company to its present stage of expansion is attributed to the big type of the personnel of the organization. Officers of the company are: M. W. Reid, president; Robert A. Gordon, vice-president, and general manager, and H. N. Goldsmith, second vice-president.

Officers of the new Miami store, which will operate under the name of the American Furniture Company, will be M. W. Reid, president; A. L. Yelvington, first vice-president; Robert A. Gordon, second vice-president, and W. H. Gordon, secretary-treasurer and general manager.

A new salesman for the American Furniture Company, Mr. McNeil, is a member of the prominent McNeel family of Marietta, and has a host of friends who wish him success in his new connection.

Good News For Diabetics

The Wonderful Success of the Sanborn Home Treatment and the Many Men and Women of National Prominence It Has Restored to Health.

If you believe to the slightest extent that you exhibit symptoms of diabetes or Bright's disease, lose no time in reading one of the most remarkable books of the day—"Is Diabetes Curable?"

It is marvelous how the Sanborn Home Treatment Builds Up and Makes You Feel Fine and Strong.

It is mailed free to anyone who will send merely their name and address. It describes the Sanborn home treatment and relates the experiences of many men and women of national prominence who restored themselves to perfect health. To the diabetic the month after month finds himself sinking deeper and deeper into the quicksand, there can be no story more morose and interesting than the recital of these recoveries. They are not of obscure people writing testimonials. They are complete clinical histories and experiences of people in the highest walks of professional business and social life.

Thus the Sanborn home treatment, in this remarkable book, answers the question—"Is diabetes curable?" by evidence so overwhelming as to lead the sufferer out of the wilderness of doubt to mingle with the hundreds upon hundreds of cases that have recently been restored to perfect health.

Send for this book. Its 78 pages bound in board covers are a mine of authentic information for those who are interested in the subject of diabetes or Bright's disease. Many of those who relate their experiences in this remarkable book had the clammy hand of death almost at their throats. Their recitals are the grateful tributes to the skill and profound knowledge that brought them out of the Valley of the Shadow.

PUBLIC DEMAND MADE BALLOON TYPE TIRES

"Trust the general American public to ignore traditional rules and regulations," says Manager Smith, of the S. S. Tire company, local distributors for Lee tires.

"When it comes down to a question of comfort, we wear heels instead of suspenders, despite the sloping hang of the trousers, soft collars when fashion preaches the starched variety, and in our motoring run along on under-inflated tires because the car rides more comfortably and the persistent cautions of the tire manufacturer to keep the inflation up falls on deaf ears."

"It is this form of 'cussedness' on the part of motorists that the tire manufacturer has had to face. First he makes a tire with a definite mileage guarantee. The user says, 'I should worry about running my tires soft. My tires are guaranteed.' Then the manufacturers spend millions of dollars trying to tell the tire user how to take care of a guaranteed article. They didn't get very far with that, however. The next thing to do was to cut off the mileage guarantee, which they did. And still the majority of cars continued to roll around on 'soft' tires."

"It became evident that the 'soft' tire had come to stay and it was now up to the manufacturers to give the public what it wanted—a tire that could run with low inflation and still hold up without damage."

"The balloon tire was the result. The tire user in general wouldn't watch recommended tire inflation tables—he wanted to run on soft tires no matter the result so the mountain came to Mahomet and the manufacturer offers him a tire today that he can run on low inflation without having to worry about the consequences. The tables have been turned. The balloon tire user, it is true, has still to watch his inflation but now he must keep it low. To keep it high will be as destructive to the balloon tire as low inflation is to the regular type of tire."

"It will be interesting to see how quickly the motorist responds to the new order of things. It looks like a victory hands down for the balloon tire. We are kept busy these days answering balloon tire questions and pointing them on cars. The motorist has got what he wants at last."

CLARKE IS TREASURER OF FINANCIAL CONCERN

In an article appearing in The Constitution Thursday announcing the organization of the Mortgage Guarantee Company of America, the name of the treasurer, Peter F. Clarke, was omitted. Mr. Clarke is cashier of the American Savings bank and secretary-treasurer of the Fibre and Paper Association, Building and Loan Association, and one of Atlanta's most highly regarded bankers.

Other officers and directors of the company are H. C. Williams, president; Lee Hays, vice president; Joseph A. McCord, Jr., secretary; E. G. Mevady, Byron Saunders and John M. Stewart.

"Hurrah, darling, cried hubby, rushing home one day. 'I've made pounds today over a big deal. Now you can have some decent clothes for Christmas.' 'Indeed, I'll do no such thing,' retorted his wife. 'I'll have the kind other women wear.'—Japan Advertiser."

New Home of Franklin Motor Car Company Has Modern Shop and Service Facilities

Top: Office and service station of Franklin distributor. The entire second floor of this new building is devoted to service. Center: A glimpse of one corner of the well-lighted service department. Below: The mechanical force.

The new home of Franklin, West Peachtree and Pine streets has one of the largest service stations and shops, on a single floor, in the entire southern states. The second floor, with drive-in entrance on Pine street, is devoted to servicing Franklin cars, under the personal supervision of W. M. (Pat) Hull, who has been interested in the Atlanta Franklin dealership, almost continuously since it was first introduced here. The shop is well lighted, well equipped, and well named.

The sales department office is on the first floor, and is under the personal management of General Manager S. B. Dodge, who has been with the Franklin account here for about

It was designed and built for seven-passenger service—with a motor of ample power and stamina for seven-passenger satisfaction.

Then, too, with the auxiliary seats folded away, the Big-Six becomes the most desirable five-passenger car in which you have ridden, with room enough for all the luggage you will ever need.

Big-Six appearance is attractive, distinctive, and in good taste. Its performance, acceleration, flexibility and dependability are known and respected the world over.

No car, regardless of price, surpasses it in quality or completeness of equipment.

If a smaller manufacturer or assembler were to build the Big-Six—of equal quality and workmanship—his price would be $3,500—perhaps more.

But Big-Six overhead is distributed over six times as many units as are built by any Big-Six competitor, hence Big-Six cost and selling price are surprisingly low.

Don't buy blindfolded. Examine, ride in and drive the Big-Six before you buy any other car.

the renegade and the black, and we are not unmindful of the noble men of those dark days—the men who followed the Imperial Forrest in their ideals of white supremacy, as a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night; and we are brave in our petition today, for we know that the Forrests still live by the hundreds of thousands.

Kapt. Homes Sacred.

In that day they kept our homes sacred from the boot of the black and our women untouchable by them in the face of federal bayonets; but of this:

Balm to heal

And faiths so white I would not touch them with unholly hands."

"There are wounds too deep for Gilend. There are true Americans today, the country over, consecrated to white supremacy, and they are as the crusaders, and their name is legion. They are unnumbered and untampered as the whitecaps of the sea, and as unnumbered, their motives are as high and pure as the skies above them, and as deep as the unfathomable depths of ocean. These are the men who will not turn a deaf ear to our pleading tonight."

We raise our voices, for we know that there is the setting sun; for we know that there is the boundless sea; we have sympathy and that these splendid people have felt a brother's quickening love for the men and women of the south since that dark day when unbridled passion put upon America's purest Anglo-Saxon stock that incubus of the black as his political equal; and estranged, for just such time as the infamy endures, the good men of the south from the good men of all sections.

The men of California, Oregon and Washington, whose golden sands are becoming jaundiced beneath the hot winds of the yellow peril, know that legislation and treaties do not suppress and will never fill the call for a white America; and they stand by us tonight when we ask for the white constitution of our fathers. These men—empires builders, with hearts as big and warm as their heartitudes—these women, yes, the girls of the Golden West, will stretch a hand across the desert to us, and Americans for America from the Great Lakes to the Gulf will join in an unending invocation for the glory of our cause.

Give Crowning Glory.

We are asking tonight for a crowning glory for the men who wore the gray and blue, because at that time it will be impossible to take care of the great demand for this kind of work and install furnaces at the same time. It is also a good plan to have furnaces

Uneasy Smiles the Face That Wears a Frown

There's really no need of carrying around a face which is clouded with a sour frown. The lines of discontent, the furrows of worry, the scowl of disappointment, the brow drawn by despair, are open-faced proof that life is cheating you.

Or that you are cheating life!

An abundance of happiness is your birthright. And happiness is obtained only by following the right paths.

Frowners—change your course! Read the A-B-C Classified Section of The Constitution. Become an intimate terms with varied opportunities to save money, to acquire both necessities and luxuries, and to enjoy the happiness they bring.

Follow the course of economy! Read this perfect catalogue of opportunity daily. The things you want and need are listed in alphabetical order under numerically arranged classifications.

It's as easy as A-B-C to rub the lines of discontent from frowning faces.

An Everyday Feast of Good Things

Whiskers are already beginning to grow on the joke about the difficulty and embarrassment some people have in selecting the correct fork from the assortment of silverware spread before them at an extremely formal dinner.

Unless they are perfectly familiar with formal functions they find themselves at a loss to know which implement to use—and our most graceful table accoutrements become to them mere implements of torture.

Nobody likes uncertainty—and The Constitution's
A-B-C Classified Section is one place where it does not exist—whether one is familiar with it or not.

Everybody—the new comer as well as the regular reader—can tell exactly which classified column to use for different courses in life's feast. You simply can't make a mistake because all columns are distinctly labeled to proclaim their purpose. Better still—there are letters and numbers to give you additional help in finding what you want.

You can't make a mistake in the classified section
if you try!

OAKDALE ROAD

THIS block of Oakdale Road contains some of the finest private residences in the city; there are homes here which would be valued from $50,000 to $75,000; the homes we are offering is valued at less than half what these fine homes would bring. IT IS ON THE BARGAIN COUNTER. There are urgent reasons why it should be sold at once; it occupies one of the most select lots in Druid Hills, having a frontage of 108 feet, running back 42 1/2 feet, with ancestral oaks for shade. Opportunities to buy such homes do not exist always and should be looked into whenever presented.

100---Choice Home Sites---100

One 10-Room House and Barn

CLARKSTON, GA.

June 24th, 10 A. M.

THE PROPERTY to be sold is known as the Dr. J. Cheston King property and is one of the most beautiful elevated tracts between Decatur and Stone Mountain, 1,100 feet fronting on the paved highway. This is an opportunity seldom offered—to buy a home site on this popular thoroughfare at your own price and on easy terms.

WORLD'S WONDER

STOP AND visualize what property in this section will be worth a few years hence—Right today, the Stone Mountain Memorial is considered one of the world's wonders. It ranks with the pyramids of Egypt, the leaning tower of Pisa, and other curiosities of the world.

ATTRACTION

PEOPLE WILL come from all parts of the world to see it and the great paved highways which radiate from it to all parts of the United States will swarm with tourists. Within a few years from now, it is predicted, a large and wealthy city will surround the base of Stone Mountain, and large hotels, athletic fields and other recreational grounds will extend for miles into the surrounding country.

EXPANSION

IT WON'T be many years before the territory from Atlanta to Stone Mountain will be city territory. It will be covered with high-class homes and business houses and what is now the Stone Mountain road will be the Main street with numerous community centers along the highway.

U. S. TO WIN EIGHTH OLYMPIAD, ASSERTS EDGREN

America So Strong Change In Scoring Plan Will Not Affect Results of Games

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

The greatest athletic team Uncle Sam ever sent over to an Olympic meet is landing in France, ready for what will probably be the strongest competition we have ever met. The rest of the world has been going ahead in athletic sport. Our Olympic victories of the future will be hard earned. The walk-over days are past.

But chances are that the United States will win again, just as we won at Athens, Paris, St. Louis, Athens again, London, Stockholm and Antwerp. Seven times the stars and stripes has floated above the flags of all other nations.

This country has an almost unlimited supply of athletic material. It has been hard to select four men for each Olympic event without slighting some who deserve places on the team.

Perhaps in some cases, in spite of a lot of difference, local and national, our best point winners may have been overlooked. But the officials have chance and make a good selection. The team will be a credit to the country. Whether it wins by a large point margin or not, it is made up of as fine a lot of young Americans as ever went overseas.

No Weak Spot.

There has been some criticism of the French action in changing the point system a few days before the American team was selected. In former Olympic meets there has been no big point difference between first and second place. Now the French athletic authorities announce that first place will count ten points, second place five, third place four, fourth place three, fifth place two and sixth place one point. There is a lot of difference, in this point counting system, between winning and finishing second, even though only an inch may separate the runners.

Some have charged that this change scoring points was designed to give Finland a chance to beat America. Perhaps it was. But what of it? The Finns are fine athletes. They serve a world of credit for what they have done. If they can turn out more winners of events than we can, and back their winners with point men, more power to them.

But the chances are that America will win a full share of first places, and fill in well with others. We have developed wonderful men this year in some of the field events that have been almost monopolized by Finland of late. Several of our discus throwers have been beating the world record. From Jaakkola to Taipale, the Finns have been strong with the discus. We have been bringing out new shot putters who should beat the Finns. We have a new world record high jumper. We have world record broad jumpers. One has beaten 25 feet five inches within a year. The favorite events that can still be counted as likely Finnish victories are the distance runs, from 1,500 meters up to the Marathon. And even in these America is going to make a very fair showing and may bring home winners.

As for the sprinters, we have a faster bunch of sprinters than we have in years. We may not have another Meredith, but some of our middle distance men may equal the former champion. We have world leaders in some of all distances, we have good all around men for the pentathlon, good men in fact in all events, and a well balanced team without a really weak spot.

Origin of Olympics.

Every now and then we hear of some new athlete in England, France, Sweden or Finland, or down in South Africa, which seems to be the center of the other side of the world in athletics, who has developed championship form. Abrahams, of England, was timed in 9:3 for the hundred yards a couple of weeks ago. That is flying. A Swedish pole vaulter has cleared a new record height of 13:12 feet. Good stuff.

If the rest of the world didn't go ahead for going ahead ourselves. Give America's huge army of athletes a little competition and we are going to see record-breaking all along the line. The material is in this country, and plenty of it. The spirit of competition is strong. We'll never have to send an outclassed team to any Olympic meet.

All the boys need do now is bring home the bacon.

The history of the Olympic games is full of interest. The ancient Greeks were a big, blue-eyed race. Far back in the dim dawn of history they came conquering down from the north and found Greece a fair country to settle in, with plenty of fighting with the Persians and other raiders to make life interesting. The games originated in training for war purposes. Boys and young men were put through a course of running, javelin throwing and wrestling exercises to harden them and make them good fighters. Competition resulted and eventually recognized contests that grew until the Greeks began to hold their games at Olympia, where a great stadium was built. The Olympic games were held every four years, with very few breaks, for fourteen centuries. They must have had some marvellous athletes in that time. It was only when succeeding waves of barbarian invasion had reduced the Greek population and broken its fighting strength, and Rome had conquered Greece, that the Olympic games died out. The Romans prohibited holding of more games in Greece in the second century A. D. because the games kept the warlike spirit of the Greeks alive and made it hard to hold them in subjugation.

For many centuries the ancient ruins and statues of Greece were used as stone quarries for building walls and roads and shacks in a country that had forgotten its ancient glory.

Modern Idea Bigger.

Forty years ago a Greek banker provided money to excavate the stadium at Athens, partly dismantled and partly covered with earth from the hills. He rebuilt the huge stadium, seating 75,000, with the marble from the ancient quarries. The first Olympic games of modern times held there in 1896 and the New York Athletic club and the Boston Athletic club and a long list of other feature sports. We are sending contestants to compete in nearly all of them.

The ancient Olympic games were only for men of pure Greek blood. The idea of the modern Olympics is much bigger. It is for the world. The old Olympics united the scattering states that make up Greece. The modern Olympics should, if the spirit of sportsmanship and friendly competition works out, unite the countries of the world and prove that state lines are only artificial boundaries between real men.

Atlanta's Sunday baseball fans will have another opportunity of witnessing a double-header this afternoon at Fort McPherson. The Commodore Feds and the College Park team will tie up in the first game, while the Georgia-West Point team will play the Perrin Athletics in the second encounter.

The authorities at the fort have placed shades over the grandstands for the benefit of the public and a small admission is charged to sit in the shade.

The first game should be one of the best and most exciting of the season, as both teams are in the City league and are taking the opportunity of catching up on their schedules. The Feds have a much better team than last season, while the College Park team has been strengthened considerably.

LEDOUX IS MATCHED WITH CHARLIE HOLMAN

Baltimore, June 21.—Charlie Ledoux, bantamweight champion of France, and Charlie Holman, of Baltimore, have been matched for a 10-round decision battle at the Sportland Heights open-air arena at Berwyn, Md., next Thursday evening. It was announced here today by a representative of the club management.

Two Straight For Pirates.

Pittsburg, June 21.—Pittsburg made it two straight from Cincinnati today by winning a pitching duel between Meadows and Sheehan, 1 to 0. Sensational fielding cut off Cincinnati scores, while the Pirates' only run came in the fifth when Maranville doubled, went to third on Schmidt's sacrifice and scored on Meadows' bunt.

PLAN TO PUSH WORK ON EDGEWOOD PAVING

Arrangements to rush Edgewood widening and repaving to completion will be made at a special meeting of the street committee of council called for Monday morning by Chairman J. D. Knight Saturday.

Work has been in progress on the project since late last year when the county forces began widening the thoroughfare. Delay in negotiating acceptable contracts for the paving has kept the street partially torn up ever since.

MacDonald Construction company began paving recently and the special meeting Monday is arranged for carrying the entire project to completion at the earliest possible date.

Records found in the tomb of Tutankhamen indicate that there really was a Helen of Troy and there was a Trojan war.

She has tried Cod Liver Oil, but the ill-smelling, nasty tasting stuff upset her stomach and made her feel worse than before.

Doctors and good pharmacists know that Cod Liver Oil is full of vitamins that make flesh, create appetite, build up the power to resist disease and chase away nervousness.

But it's horrible tasting stuff, builds up the power to resist disease and chase away nervousness. It's a wonderful upbuilding medicine for children, especially after sickness, and sixty tablets only cost 60 cents.

Wonderful for Piles Says Peterson

"I Guarantee My Ointment" Says Peterson—Every Box of It.

If you received every week a dozen or more letters like the one below from people who have suffered from hemorrhoids, wouldn't you feel happier than the man whose life is devoted to money grubbing?

"Gentlemen—I have been suffering with a fistula for the past twenty years. During that time I have tried numerous remedies, all of which have failed.

Two months ago I determined to give Peterson's Ointment a trial. The improvement was so decided after using one box, that I have continued, and on the completion of the fifth box am now entirely cured.

"This is written with the view of passing along the good word to other sufferers. Very truly yours, Charles E. Casswell, 282 Third Street, Albany, N. Y.

Besides piles Peterson's Ointment is just as good for eczema, itching skin, sore feet, prickly heat, sunburn, chafing, cuts, burns, bruises, scalds and scores of other ailments as any ointment anywhere will tell you. 50c. per box, $1.00—(adv.)

Would Rather Fight Than Work

"I suffered for years with stomach trouble and could not eat and just hated for anyone to say work to me. I would rather fight. Since taking a course of May's Wonderful Remedy I actually want to work, and talk about eat. I am the last one to leave the table now." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. New Book of Poems By Atlanta Author Now Off the Press

A new volume of poems and prose sketches of the south, written by an Atlanta woman, has come recently from the press of the Walter H. Baker company, of Boston. It is entitled "Folk Lore from Mammy Days," and is the work of Mary Johnson Blackburn. Mrs. Blackburn is one of the best known women in Atlanta and has done notable work in several of the arts. She is well known for her singing and recital work at many entertainments given by the various literary organizations in the city.

Her little volume is centered around the old-time negro mammy, now a figure of a bygone age, but living still in the loving memories of thousands of men and women.

Many of the poems are written around personages and events familiar to all Georgians. For instance, on page 40, there is a short poem entitled "Reminiscence." This was written in honor of former Governor Hugh M. Dorsey. On page 41 is a delightful verse, "Mamma's Warning to the Grooms," dedicated to Frances Connally on the occasion of her wedding. "The D. A. R. Buff-Day Celebration," a delightful piece of dialect prose, was written in honor of Mrs. J. M. High when she was regent of the Atlanta Chapter of the D. A. R. Typical of the whole book, perhaps, is the following, "Intro de Wanderlan."

"I wonder when you gwine to, now, a holidin' Mammy's ban. He takin' my 's' level, I 's' level, Intro de Wanderlan."

I follah when he leads me on, Dex on, and on, tel daylight's gone, He tiddlin' tiddlin' 'round. But soon, he'll walk widout de help of Mammy's feeble hand. Be keerful, baby, how you step Intro de Wanderlan."

He's standin' 'tween 'em—Dex look er dah! Deah Lawd, lo! tight his ban—Keep Mammy's chile from gwine too far Intro de Wanderlan."

NEWSIES WILL BE GUESTS OF CIRCUS ON MONDAY NIGHT

The Constitution newsboys and carriers will be guests of the McMahon Brothers' three-ring police benefit circus Monday night at the auditorium. A special section has been reserved for them. They will assemble at The Constitution building at 7 o'clock and march in a body to the auditorium, led by circus performers.

ARKWRIGHT SPEAKS AT SALES MEETING

The importance of employees of public utilities realizing that their work is a part of the business of servicing the public and not a passing fancy, and the public duty of power companies to see that service is furnished to all who can benefit through use of electricity, were emphasized by P. S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway & Power company, speaking Friday night before the annual conference of the sales department of the company.

The meeting was held at the Capital City club and was attended by practically all the salesmen of the company. Charles A. Collier, general sales manager, presided.

In addition to the address of Mr. Arkwright on the subject of "What the Company Expects of You, Its Sales Department," there were addresses by H. O. Adams, director of central station sales, Electric Vacuum Cleaner company, and William L. Goodwin, operating vice president of the National Electric Lamp company, New York. Mr. Adams spoke on the subject of "Curbing the Lion on the Line Is Worth Half a Dozen Ranges in the Stockroom," and Mr. Goodwin spoke on "There's a Difference Between an Order Taker and a Salesman."

NEGRO Y. M. C. A. BOYS HOLD MEETING TODAY

The boys' department of the colored branch of the Y. M. C. A. will hold a big meeting this afternoon with William N. Sanders, of Nashville, Tenn., as speaker. He was for a number of years secretary of the association in his city. In addition to the address, several of the boys will tell of the summer camp and the outing that will be projected by the association.

During the week a number of renewals and new members have come into the association. Twenty-five meetings were held to consider various community interests. Each day from 21 to 1 o'clock a dental clinic is held for school children. Colored dentists are giving their services free of charge.

BLAUNER'S WILL CLOSE EARLY ON SATURDAYS

The name of Blauner's was not given in a list published in The Constitution Saturday of stores which will close at 1 o'clock each Saturday during June, July, August, and on the first two Saturdays in September. These stores also will close Thursday, July 3, not to reopen until Monday, July 7.

No remedy can cure all ailments of the human body, but an immense number of people suffer from eczema, pains and discomforts when their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the most out of the nourishment out of your food. Without iron your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it. There is one universal remedy known to all that has helped thousands because it contains iron like the iron in fresh vegetables and like the iron in your blood.

NUXATED IRON

is an eminent physician's best blood prescription, standardized, recommended for all anemic and run-down conditions. It has helped thousands of others. It should help you. Ask for it at any drug store.

Solid Car Mazola Sold to Rogers

Receiving daily full carload shipments of various food commodities is not an unusual thing for the L. W. Rogers company. But its receipt a day or two ago of a solid carload of Mazola is one among the many large important shipments it has received during the conduct of its business. This solid carload of Mazola, the popular salad and cooking oil, was received a few days ago from the Karo-Mazola-Argo people, and is now being distributed to its group of 200 stores over the city and the south. This is the first full carload shipment ever received by any company in the state.

With the addition of Mazola, the Rogers company is now handling all the three great products from corn, having already handled for a long time Karo syrup and Argo starch. The buying and selling of these products from the makers of these three commodities is of particular interest to the south because, in the manufacture of its products, great quantities of Karo-Mazola-Argo people, and is now being distributed to its group of 200 stores over the city and the south. This is the first full carload shipment ever received by any company in the state.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS GIVE PICNIC JUNE 26

Knights of Columbus Council 660 will entertain at a basket picnic at Pinecrest Park, Austell, next Thursday. Picnickers will leave on a special train at 9:30 o'clock and will arrive at the park at 10:45.

Tickets will cost $1 for adults and fifty cents for children six to twelve years, and will include railroad fare, use of the swimming pool, dancing pavilion, and participation in all athletic events.

J. McGee, chairman of the athletic committee, has arranged athletic contests and other special features.

ASKEW'S SLAYER TO MAKE APPEAL FOR NEW TRIAL

Motion for new trial in the case of J. E. Chandler, Jr., 19-year-old boy convicted Friday night in the superior court of the murder of Henry Askew, was filed by Attorney Paul Carpenter and Swift Tyler Saturday.

As soon as the record in the case is made out by the court stenographer, Chandler's attorney will file an amended motion detailing reasons why they contend he should be given a new trial. The present grounds are that the verdict is contrary to law and not based on the evidence.

Askew was stabbed to death several weeks ago at Capitol and Weyman avenues in a difficulty with Chandler regarding the latter's hat. The two were riding in an automobile, and Chandler was said to have accused Askew of throwing his hat out of the car. The quarrel and cutting followed.

LIFE-SAVING TESTS FOR LOCAL CLASSES

Fifty Atlanta boys and girls will compete for honors next Friday at Spiller's pool when Earl Moore, Red Cross life saving expert, puts them through the paces and awards life saving emblems to those passing the required tests.

Mr. Moore's visit here is under the auspices of the Red Cross chapter, of which Miss Marion Van Dyke is executive secretary. The junior department, under leadership of Mrs. Louis J. Elsas, has charge of the event.

The fifty applicants for life saving certificates constitute three swimming and life saving classes drilled for several weeks in the latest scientific methods of aquatic rescue by Miss Louise Cramer, Mollie Gregg and Louise Cawthorn. Other classes will be started soon at the Piedmont Driving club.

Methods of breaking death grips, recovering drowning persons from the water and performing artificial respiration are some of the subjects in which the applicants are being instructed. His speech, the report states, "was by far the best ever delivered in the school," which is recognized as one of the oldest and most famous of the New England preparatory schools.

In addition to his oratorical talents, the young man, now in his sixteenth year, took second honor, missing the leadership of a large class by only a few points. He was elected class president and delivered the chief address in distribution of various gifts and prizes.

Smith Bros. Add Gay Truck

Neither King Tut nor Solomon in all his glory ever rode forth in anything so striking as the new checkerboard chariot of the Smith Bros. company. Completely covered with red and chite checkers, this truck creates as much sensation as a circus when it drives through the streets.

W. S. Smith, manager of the store from where the eye-catching truck radiates, states that this is only one of several thousand trucks in America that are thus checkerboarded. The checkerboard, he said, is the trademark of the Purina Mills of St. Louis, manufacturers of Checkerboard Chow, the scientifically balanced feeds for poultry and live stock. The checkerboard is used on all the bars, on the dealers' stores, in the advertising literature, and in the checkerboard itself. Smith was asked to explain the big idea of the checkerboard on the truck and he replied that whenever you see the checkerboard it means your move. The much-talked-of truck is a 3-ton White.

Writes Prize-Winning Essay In State Students' Contest

Recently the Home Economics association of Georgia offered $225 in prizes to be given for the three best essays written on "Home Economics: Essential in Every Girl's Education." The prizes were given as scholarships in home economics, and amounted as follows: $100, $75 and $50.

Miss Mattie Mae Rushing, of Statesboro, was the winner of the first prize, a $100 scholarship in home economics.

BY MATTIE MAE RUSHING.

The standard of civilization of a nation is always determined by the average standard of living in its homes. Since American standards are reckoned according to our life, the standard of living is right living naturally becomes one of paramount interest to every individual of vision and foresight.

Formerly, the girl was trained in the art of homemaking by her mother and grandmother. With the change of home conditions, modern education has also undergone a similar metamorphosis, and the study of home economics is more effectively carried out by the modern girl.

The business of homemaking is recognized, generally, as being a partnership between the husband and wife. The man, however, is in a business sense, the woman is in a domestic sense, and the two are united in the great responsibility of determining the right living in the home.

The women of the past have been the guiding elements of the home; the present day woman must consider. Many of the problems which will be solved by the mothers of the nation.

The house-daughters of today constitute the backbone of the nation's future. They are the future of the nation's future. They are the future of the nation's future. They are the future of the nation's future.

Ignorance and poverty are held in place by the lack of education. Ignorance and poverty are held in place by the lack of education. Ignorance and poverty are held in place by the lack of education.

The most important product of the home is the child. This most valuable asset to the nation, is unquestionably molded by the mother. The mother is the first teacher of the child, and the child is the first student of the mother.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation. The child is the future of the nation.

Edmonton, Alberta.—With the exception of a small amount of barley and green feed, seeding operations are now completed in the Edmonton district, and prospects, farmers say, all point to another year of plenty.

The ground is in excellent shape, and stands for a considerable period of drought without seriously affecting the present crops.

Women of the future will undoubtedly play an important role in politics, and they will know something of the needs of housewives to be able to vote and pass their customers. If they are acquainted with the needs of the home and members of all concerned. A study of source, manufacture, relative importance as related to family needs, and reasonable cost to be expected, are some of the things to be learned, necessary in bringing about more satisfactory conditions. The modern girl is taught all this in the course of home economics, and its true value can not be determined, its influence on the nation is so subtle and deep-seated.

Thus, considering the womanhood of the future from every angle of life, we recognize the value of a home economics education as a very important feature, and the need for a more thorough and far-reaching home economics course goes on to the whole nation, as a paramount factor in the maintenance of American standards of civilization.

THINKS DAWES REPORT SOLUTION OF PROBLEM

Paris, June 21.—"Do you believe in the possibility of an agreement between France, Great Britain and Germany, based on the Dawes report?" the newspaper L'Ouvrier asked the German socialist deputy Breitscheid, whom Premier Herriot received Thursday evening.

"Yes, I believe such an accord is possible," he replied. "Germany has accepted the report by vote of the reichstag and the government is preparing laws for its execution. The other governments have accepted, or will do so. There is the basis for the pacification of Europe."

Her Breitscheid, however, was disturbed by the conditions attached by Premier Herriot to the evacuation of the Ruhr.

"Germany will never understand this phrase," he said. "To my understanding, all the guarantees and all pledges are given in the experts' report and if others are demanded they will be inevitable germs of fresh difficulties and fresh dissensions."

The party believes the best means of obtaining security is a policy of reconciliation between the two nations. While recognizing the difficulties of such a policy, he holds that it is possible to bring it about.

Sudden Disaster Awaits Those Who Procrastinate

You know the "saddened words of tongue or pen"—"it might have been." Imagine a healthy father suddenly denied work for seven and a half weeks; expenses piling up by reason of his enforced stay at home; no cash money coming into the family treasury.

That's what happened to B. C. Fowler, of 231 Ogleshorpe avenue, Atlanta, who was injured in an auto and street car accident on April 17, 1924, near the corner of Gordon and Lee streets. He was riding in a jitney bus, which was struck by a street car, the jitney bus being overturned, breaking his arm and shoulder. He was totally disabled about seven and one-half weeks.

Fortunately for Mr. Fowler, he was protected under the provisions of the $1,000 Travel and Pedestrian Accident Insurance policy which he held with The Constitution. The policy covers $1 per year in addition to the regular subscription rates of The Daily and Sunday Constitution. Under its provisions he was entitled to the extent to the extent of $1,000 against death in certain specified accidents; varying sums for injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for disability.

As stated above, he was disabled for seven and a half weeks—and on June 10 he received a check for $74.29. This check for $74.29 was what he realized on an investment of only $1, and it came at a time when he was doubly needed.

In line with its travel and pedestrian accident offer, The Constitution is also offering the reading public its famous $500 Group Reader Life Insurance policy, the only straight life offer made by an Atlanta newspaper. It costs only at the rate of 15 or 20 cents per week—depending on the risk involved—in addition to the regular subscription rates of The Daily and Sunday Constitution, and its protection in force so long as the policyholder keeps up payments both on the policy and on his Constitution subscription.

The same economy and efficiency of one or both of these great protective opportunities cannot fail to appeal to you. The future comfort of your loved ones depends upon you—take this tip:

Phone or write to visit The Constitution's insurance department, and full particulars will cheerfully be supplied. Over $20,000 paid to Constitution subscribers through its insurance department.—(adv.)

THE CONSTITUTION'S REAL ESTATE REVIEW

CONDUCTED IN THE INTEREST OF THE DEVELOPMENT OF ATLANTA AND THE SOUTH

Seen From the Auction Block

WALTHALL'S OBSERVATIONS ON NATIONAL REALTY MEET.

"There is every evidence that the personnel of the real estate fraternity is being improved in a remarkable degree," said W. P. Walthall, of Atlanta, who was one of the members of his first to attend the recent convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, held the first of June in Washington.

"The first ray of civilization's dawning came when one of our forefathers staked out for himself a plot of ground and called it his own, or prepared to establish his domicile from all comers. In other words, the first evidence of civilization was the definite claiming of a parcel of land by the wild men of prehistoric days. Civilization and culture has progressed with the improvement of real property and the establishment of higher type homes."

"Because of the fact that real estate has played so important a part in the cultivation of the nations," continued Mr. Walthall, "it stands to reason that the profession of buying and selling real property should be classed with the most important among the human callings. And because of this view being taken by an increasingly larger number of people every year the real estate fraternity has been steadily raising the type of its members and bettering its ethics in every possible way. This is evidenced, like the betterment of the legal professions, like that of the physicians and surgeons, the play-actors and others, has been evolved from within the profession itself and for this reason it has been a betterment that will increase along with the cultivation of society in general."

In support of his philosophy, the real estate man pointed to the historical fact that at no time lawyers were referred to as "scriveners," being scribes who were to be of the reading and writing, (an accomplishment enjoyed by few). These scribes wrote wills, deeds and other instruments and documents, by degrees broadening the usefulness of their profession and playing a larger part in the affairs of the world until, through their own inward development, the profession became the body of legal lights reflecting their intelligence and knowledge over the world today. The same might be said of surgeons, whose practice was shared in many years ago by barbers who combined haircutting, shaving, etc., with bleeding and other surgical operations, it is declared.

At the recent meeting of the national real estate association, Mr. Walthall declared there were many evidences that increasing efforts will be made in the future to better the character of real estate men and to improve the profession as a whole. The realtors, it was pointed out, are becoming more and more alive to the sacredness and the vital importance of the transactions they are called upon to conduct, and plans are being made to increase the restrictions and heighten the qualifications surrounding applicants for licenses to do real estate business on the various states of the union.

BROAD STREET PAVING ABOUT COMPLETE.
The coming week will perhaps witness the completion of the paving work on Broad street and this wide thoroughfare will be thrown open to the shoppers not later than the first of July, it is confidently expected. The extensive improvements have been made no Broad street by the street railway company, which has laid new tracks and cross-overs, which will enable the trolley to operate with great ease and dispatch through the congested retail sections. Especially advantageous, it is declared, will be the improvement of the intersection of Broad street with East Point, College Park and Hapeville, whose cars are expected to be handled with greater dispatch than formerly.

The completion of the repaving and repainting of Broad street will also be to the great advantage of automobile shoppers, also, because of the fact that this street intersects either Whitehall or Forsyth. Several of the down town department stores, it is said, will make arrangements to serve patrons from Broad street entrances. The announcement was made in this column last Sunday that Davidson-Paxon-Stokes Company will spend something like $30,000 within a short time opening its main entrance on Broad street.

Another advantage to this section of the city, which will be formally opened to the public within a short time, is the Hunter street approach to the Spring street viaduct. This ramp, with an opening that permits the approach on the ground level to the Terminal station and the Central of Georgia freight station, is now getting its finishing touches and will be completed within a few days, it has been stated.

JETER TO MAKE TOUR OF WEST INDIES.
Fred P. Jeter, member of the well known real estate and renting firm of the Grant-Jeter company, is expected to leave the city today for an extended tour of Cuba and other islands of the South Atlantic. No statement was made by Mr. Jeter as to the extent of his trip, but it is understood that he will be absent from his office for several weeks. He has given a great portion of his time recently to his firm's big business, having taken over and placed upon the company's list several of the new apartments of the better type, and he is said to have earned a period of rest and recreation. Mr. Jeter, though one of the younger members of the real estate fraternity in Atlanta, has assumed a high place among his business associates and the splendid achievements of his career is regarded as one of Atlanta's remarkable business successes. The firm started less than two years ago, with but one apartment on its list, and today is said to have more than seventy-five of the best type of apartments under its exclusive agency.

WEST END BRANCH FOURTH NATIONAL BANK.
The beautiful new building that is being erected for the West End branch office of the Fourth National bank, at the corner of Gordon and Lee streets, is rapidly being finished and it is expected that the office force of the establishment will be taken care of by the end of summer.

This handsome building, of the formal bank type, has attracted much favorable attention by its artistic lines and classic architecture. It is being constructed of concrete and stone and will be equipped with every modern banking fixture and appointment, it is declared.

FISCHER MAKES FISHING TRIP TO SIMONS.
Carl Fischer, well known real estate man of Atlanta, who owns a pretty cottage on the beach of St. Simons Island, is reported to have taken a stay of several weeks during the hot season. Mr. Fischer aside from being one of the outstanding figures in the local real estate and business world, is said to be a faithful disciple of Isaac Walton, and he is also reputed to be a fisherman of the most successful type.

WARD WIGHT REMOVES TO EAST LAKE SUMMER HOME.

Yearning for the wide green lawns and the cooler breezes of his suburban residence in East Lake, Ward Wight, former head of the local real estate board, and one of the most prominent members of the fraternity in the city is said to have removed his household temporarily to that delightful portion of DeKalb county.

HURST REPORTS SPLENDID WEEK FOR THIS SEASON.

Manager Hurst, of the sales department of Calhoun's, who is regarded as one of the outstanding real estate salesmen in Atlanta, gives out a splendid report of many transactions completed by his house during the past week. He also predicts a continuation of real estate activity during the coming weeks, in view of Atlanta's steady increase in population and the undiminished demand for desirable residence and business property here.

WEST END INCREASING IN POPULATION STEADILY.

Since the paving of Peoples street between Lucile avenue and Beecher street, the repaving of Ashby, between Gordon and White street, and following the opening of Rose street improvements to Beecher and the opening of Lenox avenue, from Lee street to Cascade avenue, a large number of pretty homes have been erected and many others are proposed by those who have purchased lots in the many beautiful subdivisions that have developed in that portion of West End. The proximity to Joe Brown, junior high school, the presence of several fine grammar schools, the West End golf club and other features have contributed their portion to the popularity of West End as a residence center, and it is confidently expected that this part of the city will continue to increase its population along with other sections of Atlanta.

JASSELL COMPANY MAKES CENTRAL LEASE.

The Jassell Realty company has leased a modern fireproof building at 681 Whitehall street to the Davis Auto Repair company, according to announcement Saturday. W. S. Davis, manager of the company, states that the company will specialize in repairing, painting and general work on all makes of cars. The building offers excellent storage facilities also, and the company is well known in business circles.

CRAIN BROS. SISTER REARRANGEMENT.

Many friends of H. J. and Allen Crain, of the Crain Realty company, have extended sympathy to them because of the death of their brother, W. H. Crain, who died last week at his home in Newnan, Ga.

POPULAR CONTRACTOR OPENS NATATORIUM.

Announcement has been made by John W. Jenkins, well-known local contractor and builder, of the opening of the "Water Swimming Pool" on Sunday, June 22. This splendid new swimming pool, open to men and women, boys and girls, is constructed of concrete, according to the most approved designs, and is fed by a crystal stream of pure spring water. Mr. Jenkins, in announcing the opening, calls attention to the fact that the pool will be in operation day and night, and extends invitations especially to family parties. A nominal charge is made for entrance to the grounds. The route to the pool is as follows: Moreland avenue to Flat Shoals avenue, thence East to Atlanta to Hightower's filling station, where a sign on the right directs to the pool.

DRUID HILLS CHURCH OFFICERS REELECTED.

Re-election of the entire slate of officers for the next six months term featured the last meeting for the summer of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church held Friday night. Officers reelected were: W. F. Caldwell, president; H. P. Thomas, first vice president; Eugene Towery, second vice president; John A. Craig, treasurer, and Charles A. Ansley, secretary. The next meeting is called for the second Friday in September.

Morehead Convalescing.

J. H. Morehead, Jr., superintendent of retail sales of the Georgia Railway & Power company, is convalescing at St. Joseph's hospital from an operation for appendicitis. He was seized with an acute attack at his office a few days ago and rushed to the hospital for an operation. He expects to resume his duties in about a week.

With W. H. S. Hamilton

Announcement has been made by W. H. S. Hamilton, well-known Atlanta real estate dealer, of the reorganization of his firm's sales force, placing at the head of the staff J. W. Sency and Miles Galloway, both of whom are prominent in the Atlanta real estate world. J. W. Sency was formerly with the Wallace-Woodward Realty company, and is said to have registered a splendid success with that well-known agency.

Miles Galloway was until recently a member of the late firm of Galloway Brothers. He was formerly with W. H. S. Hamilton, gaining much of his real estate and business experience with that agency. Congratulations have been mutually extended to Mr. Hamilton and to his new salesmen, whose likenesses are reproduced above.

J. W. SENCY.

MILES GALLOWAY.

Announcement has been made by the Wynne Realty company that this concern has been appointed exclusive agents for the North Park apartments, the splendid community dwelling at the corner of Fourteenth street and Peachtree street. The same company, it was stated, is also sole agents for the Albemarie apartments, 15 Merritts avenue, just off the famous Peachtree street.

The North Park apartments, which is shown in the above engraving, is a highly modern building, containing all the up-to-date appointments and every luxury and convenience required for present-day dwellings. It has 15 units, of six and seven rooms each, making it ideal for the larger families. This is one of Atlanta's many splendid apartments, being located in the heart of an exclusive residence section, making it highly desirable for the more discriminating renters, and its popularity is demonstrated by the long list of people said to be awaiting accommodations in this apartment.

The Albe-Marie apartment, which is also in a splendid location, is also said to be highly popular with the public, and its dwellings are in steady demand. Morgan T. Wynne, of the Wynne Realty company, is said to give his personal attention to the renting of these and other high class apartments under the exclusive control of his company.

King Auction Co. To Conduct Sale At Clarkston, Ga.

A land sale that is expected to be of great interest to real estate dealers, prospective purchasers of homes, and the public generally, will be conducted by the King Auction company, a well-known Atlanta house, Tuesday, June 24, at Clarkston, Ga. A total of 100 choice home sites will be offered for sale at this time, and one splendid modern residence. This tract and the home are the property of Dr. J. Cheston King, well-known nerve specialist of Atlanta.

This property, which is one of several parcels said to be owned by Dr. King, is located on the Stone Mountain highway, and is beautifully adapted to the erection of high class modern homes.

The sale will begin, it has been stated, at 10 o'clock a. m. sharp, rain or shine, and a crowd will be induced to attend the sale both by the splendid values of the land and prizes that will be offered lucky holders of tickets. A fine barbecue dinner will also be served and a band concert will be given during the day.

The J. P. King Auction company, which has undertaken to "sell the earth," is said to have done much toward accomplishing this end. This concern, headed by J. P. King, one of the best known land salesmen in the south, and backed by prominent capitalists, has disposed of hundreds of acres of land in Georgia and other states of Dixie. H. H. Pierce, general manager of the King Auction company, who is himself a distinguished auctioneer and business man, has also taken part in the sale of much real property in Atlanta and other cities of the south.

The big sale at Clarkston will be one of the most important events of its nature that has been held in that part of the state for several months, and a large crowd of interested persons will doubtless attend this auction.

Local Apartment Activity Is Said To Be Remarkable

"We have closed more contracts for apartment leases during the past few days," said Fred P. Jeter, of the Grant-Jeter company, "than ever before since my connection with the real estate business, which means, according to my viewpoint, that the people are taking time by the forelock, as the saying goes, and making certain of securing the type and location of the homes they want for the coming winter."

Mr. Jeter drew attention also to the fact that for the first time in many years Atlanta has practically a sufficient number of apartments, a fact that he declared made the present demand for quarters in such buildings the more remarkable.

"It is something like the precaution that people are taking more and more each year with reference to purchasing their supply of coal for the winter during the summer months, when they can secure more advantageous rates, selections and deliveries than in the rush which is to come when everybody else is looking for fuel."

Another feature of the remarkable apartment house situation in Atlanta is that this city has more apartments of every type perhaps than any city in the south, and it also is said to have a great many more of the better type apartment buildings than any city east of the Mississippi or south of the Ohio river.

Apartment House Encourages Theft.
This is true despite the additional fact that Atlanta has thousands of private residences of every type, so many of the handsome modern variety that it has earned the nickname "The City of Beautiful Homes" from people visiting the city and driving through its many residence sections.

Notwithstanding that many of the people of this city own homes of the most magnificent type, it was stated, there are leaving the more expensive type of apartments in increasing numbers each season. This is explained, it was declared, by the theory that dwellers in apartment houses, even at the excessive rental rates, can conduct their households more economically than by maintaining their separate establishments.

"An apartment house is the friend of the thrifty," said Mr. Jeter, and in addition to the saving effected by living in community dwellings, it was pointed out, that occupants of apartments are relieved of the responsibilities and annoyances of maintaining a private staff of servants, which also works for convenience as well as economy.

"We have a large list of apartments," said Mr. Jeter, "with dwell-

Wynne-Claughton Office Building

New commercial building that is to be immediately erected at Ellis street and Carnegie way by the Wynne-Claughton Realty Sales corporation at a cost of more than $1,000,000. Demolition of structures standing on the site of this proposed building has begun and construction is expected to begin within a short time.

The demolition of the old structure at the corner of Ellis street and Carnegie way having been completed, Gude and company will begin excavations Monday morning for the new Wynne-Claughton office building which is to be erected at that point. Concrete pouring will begin within two weeks, it is said, and the building is expected to rise rapidly.

Architects' plans for the new twelve-story structure have been announced by G. Lloyd Preacher, vice president of G. Lloyd Preacher and company. A picture of the front elevation of the proposed structure is shown here, and it is said to be a really handsome building of the "flatiron" type, fronting on the Carnegie library and the Central Congregational church, immediately in the rear of the Hotel Winfield. The exterior construction will be of limestone, brick and polychrome terra cotta. The first two floors, to be occupied by stores on the ground floor, with the offices of the Wynne-Claughton Realty Sales corporation above, will have limestone finish. The top story and cornice will be a combination of brick and polychrome terra cotta, giving a most pleasing appearance.

Highly Modern Structure.
Many of the most advanced ideas in modern office building construction will be introduced, G. Lloyd Preacher, president of the company, bearing in mind, he has recently made an extensive survey of the latest developments in this type of building in New York and other large eastern cities, where his company is now doing important work. All offices will have ample light exposure, a large court fronting towards Peachtree providing this. Total floor area will exceed a hundred thousand square feet.

Entrances are provided on both Ellis street and Carnegie way. These lead into a central elevator lobby, where three high-speed elevators will provide service to the upper upper floors. The interior finish will be very pleasing in appearance.

Although definite construction schedules have not been worked out, A. V. Gude, president of Gude and company, states that his company expects to deliver the completed building to the Wynne-Claughton company by the first of the year, ready for occupancy.

LAST SERVICE HELD FOR JAMES BUSSEY

Funeral services for James H. Bussey, 37, of 1365 Peachtree road, who died at his residence Thursday after a short illness, were held Saturday morning in Augusta. Rev. Alfonso Adams and Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, pastors of the First Baptist church there, officiated. Mr. Bussey was the son of the late Dr. R. N. Bussey, of Augusta.

SCHOOL OF HEALTH TO MEET SUNDAY

The regular meeting of the Psychological School of Health will be held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in assembly room No. 2, Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Sunday will be a symposium day, with experiences in healing by different members. Robert Bryan Harrison, director, will preside.

ALABAMA GRAVEL PLANT OPERATES ATLANTA BRANCH

The Atlanta Aggregate company is the name of the Atlanta concern handling the products of the Montgomery Gravel company and the Birmingham Slag company, two building material companies that have furnished thousands of tons of gravel, sand and slag for concrete buildings and the construction of modern highways in this and other cities of the south-east.

The offices of the Atlanta Aggregate company are at 207 Walton building, and "Matt" Bruson, well known in local business circles, is office manager for the concern.

The above concern represents the Montgomery Gravel company, whose branch manager here is W. M. Center, who has much experience in the building material field.

The big gravel company, with home office at Montgomery, has a large modern plant at Arrowhead, Ala., where the gigantic power shovels are capable of raising 4,000 tons of gravel daily from the big beds. The plant is also equipped with giant cranes for lifting and enormous screens for cleaning and assorting the product.

The Birmingham Slag company, located in the heart of Alabama's great furnace district, produces the finest quality of building material of this nature.

Both concerns, under the local agency, have furnished many thousands of tons of building material to Atlanta and other Georgia cities.

Miller's Survey Indicates Continued Activity in South

Despite the huge total of building which has been recorded in the southern states during the past three years and the high level which is being maintained at the present time, the rental situation in this section is in a most healthful condition, with practically all larger centers reporting rents stationary and demand excellent, according to information furnished the survey department of G. L. Miller and company, real estate mortgage bond house of Atlanta and New York.

Twelve and a half per cent of reporting cities indicated that rentals were increasing from 10 to 250 per cent on various classifications of property, while 15 per cent of the cities indicated a decrease ranging from 10 to 20 per cent, with 10 per cent being stationary. The remainder showed no change in levels which have been maintained during the past 12 months or more.

In addition to the very favorable character of the rental report, it is further indicated that present building levels, with a few exceptions, show no sign of recession, and that actual shortage existing in a number of cities will lead to still further increase of building figures in the near future.

Widely-Extended Information

In compiling this report, the survey department had access to information supplied by real estate, bond and building owners' associations in 28 cities distributed throughout 15 of the 16 southern states covered by its usual reports. One Mississippi was not represented, and an absence of large centers in this state renders any information which might be obtained in that direction negligible.

In the residential classification, it was found that 27 cities show stationary rentals at the present time, with five cities increasing and six decreasing. An actual shortage of residences is indicated in 10 of these. The present building program is above normal in 12 centers, normal in 20 and below normal in three. The future outlook is reported as very bright in 20, normal in 11 and decreasing in four.

The figures relating to the apartment classification are very similar to the residential classification, with the exception that 28 cities report stationary levels, while four are increasing and five decreasing. A decided increase of construction of apartments is noted in 12 cities, with three showing a decrease. Apartment demand is very active in all large centers, with many of the smaller cities entering this particular field at the present time.

Commercial Buildings Short.

The principal shortage now apparent in business and commercial buildings is in office structures. This fact is indicated in the rental report which shows rents on office space increasing in nine cities, stationary in 27, while only two are decreasing. These two are merely temporary, it is said, due to bringing in several new structures on the market at the same time, which must be absorbed within the next 12 to 18 months. Shortage of office space is apparent in 10 cities and active construction on this classification is proceeding in 11.

Of the 27 cities reporting on general rental classifications listed above, 20 showed stationary levels, four on the increase and three on the decrease.

The reasons for the present favorable conditions existing in the south are brought out in many of the reports received. The enormous strides now being made along commercial and industrial lines in many centers and the resulting increase in population are in evidence in every part of the section with the consequent shortage of available housing in the face of a record-breaking building activity. This is particularly true of the centers showing an increase in population from 25,000 to 100,000 in the past year.

Commenting upon the results of the rental survey, G. L. Miller, president of G. L. Miller and company, has stated that the results of this survey, which was conducted through official sources in the various major centers of the south, confirm the information which our organization already has obtained through private channels. There is no let-down of income-producing property in the southern section and the demand continues with increasing vigor.

It cannot be now any appreciable decrease in the rental situation in the south to come. The territory is building up along with never-ending demand, and too rapidly for any full in demand to be apparent in the near future. Southern position in the development of the country is being maintained. Every day brings a greater realization of the possibilities of the southern enterprise in immense quantities, new and old, and the people are now and east are awakening to the possibilities of the south as never before.

In the older and larger cities, modern construction is rendering much old property obsolete and making it unsalable, but this merely means that the antiquated buildings must go into the discard and be replaced with newer structures. The process will be a steady one, and the progress of the southern people who have not only stepped with the times, but are actually leading the procession in many instances.

Since the rental situation is so favorable and a considerable shortage is apparent, I cannot see how the building program for the south anywhere on the horizon. The present year is matching last year, with the plan for 1924 and an actual increase for the last six months in 1923 will be just as good or better than 1924."

Atlanta Concern To Build Home for Local Dentists

Announcements made earlier in the present week were to the effect that a syndicate under the auspices of the J. L. Logan Realty & Trust corporation will take over the Wellington apartment building at the corner of Houston and Ivy streets, and remodel the structure for the purpose of developing it into an up-to-date and exclusive dentists' building. Details of the enterprise, however, have just been given out which should prove of interest to members of the dental profession, architects and builders and the public generally. The new concern is to be known as the Southern Dental Syndicate, and a large local bank is trustee for the company.

According to the statement of James L. Logan, head of the corporation conducting the above development, the apartment house will be thoroughly remodeled, giving its interior such changes as will be required to make it in every way a community of dentists and dental surgeons.

The entire inside of the big structure, which is to be the first of two or more units, will be lined with white tile, making it thoroughly sanitary as well as artistically beautiful. The offices will be of standard size, and there will be space for twenty of the foremost members of the dental profession, who will be invited to participate in the enterprise. The equipment will also be of the most modern and best type obtainable, preparations being contemplated for every electrical and hydraulic device and invention needed for the up-to-date practice of dentistry.

Large Laboratory.
In addition to the interior arrangements and the convenience of the appointments, which include rooms for medical and surgical specialists, a large cooperative laboratory and a supply department for dental instruments, etc., the exterior treatment of the building will be the most artistic kind. A Ten Eyck Brown, noted local architect, is in charge of the design for the building.

The plan by which prominent dentists will be invited to join in the enterprise will be through the purchase of their quarters, paying for their fees as they pay rent. It is estimated that each dentist will pay for the space allocated to him something like $25,000, which interest in the structure will, it is believed, have a value of about $15,000. Another feature of the plan, it was stated, is that after the dentists in the building have become established, the structure will be lower the rent to suit themselves. In other words, the building is to pay for itself, through the revenue derived from the rent of the quarters, being deducted from the gross receipts.

"This building," said Mr. Logan, "is predicated upon sound financial and professional ideas, and its success is expected to be assured from the beginning. We expect to prepare professional offices for dentists, which will be of the very highest type, in addition to furnishing everything required for the complete and effective practice of dentistry. For the attention of the dentist, we will provide other features of service, and will be ample waiting rooms for patients, space for parking automobiles and other conveniences," he declared.

The work of organizing the apartment will begin at once, said Mr. Logan.

Miller Salesmen To Be Given Free Trip to Atlanta

Armond Carroll, manager of the survey department of G. L. Miller and company, returned last week from a trip to New York, during which he attended a sales conference of the Miller organization comprising the New York city and country and New Jersey sales forces to the number of 70 men. He addressed the conference on the subject of southern progress and building development.

A large portion of the real estate mortgage bonds which are placed on the market by this large Atlanta bond house cover southern structures, and an entire morning was devoted to giving the eastern salesmen a comprehensive view of the tremendous development which is now in progress throughout the south. Interest among those present was so great over the facts presented that at the close of the session, A. B. Weller, general sales manager, announced that the men who topped the June sales records would be given a free trip to Atlanta to see for themselves some of the unusual progress indicated in the discussions.

An afternoon and evening of the conference were spent in a trip to Asbury Park, where G. L. Miller and company have completed arrangements for financing a large resort hotel to cost considerably in excess of a million dollars. This hotel, to be known as the Berkle-Carter, will be located on the boardwalk, with parks on two sides, and is being erected by a local company which has a capital of a million dollars. A loan will be for a million and a quarter. The architects are Warren & Wetmore, designers of the Grand Central station, the Hotel Commodore and numerous other famous buildings of the nation.

Total new loans announced to the sales force during the sessions aggregated about ten million dollars, covering structures in New York, Asbury Park and several southern points.

A NEW COMMANDMENT I give unto you, that ye love one another: as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. John 13:34, 35.

THE 1924 ASSEMBLY.
The general assembly of Georgia convenes next Wednesday in its regular 50-day mid-summer session.

Many hold-over matters of importance will command the major portion of the assembly's time, among them tax reform, proposed highway and school development plans, constitutional amendments, changing some of the archaic systems of government with which Georgia is afflicted, etc.

Perhaps the most important matter, aside from the purely economic problems, will be the tendency toward a more business-like government, divested of many of the purely political features that are now a retarding element in the material progress of the state.

Last year the extra session of the assembly took some advanced steps in this direction—one in particular that is outstanding. This was the creation of a state auditing department. The Constitution vigorously advocated this department for years, and the good work that has been accomplished in the five months that it has been in operation has amply demonstrated its great value in systematizing disbursements and in effecting economies that a helterskelter system necessarily had overlooked.

It is hoped that at the forthcoming session the biennial session bill, which is of peculiar importance in stabilizing business and in reestablishing confidence in our state government, may be submitted to the people. The general election in November should strongly appeal to the assembly in submitting for ratification such proposed amendments as are worthy, for unless they are submitted at this session two full years will be lost in getting constitutional legislation through. This applies to tax legislation and proposed state bond issue legislation, with equal force as to that changing conditions in the conduct of government.

While the biennial session bill should by all means be passed, the legislature can make no move that will appeal more to the people than to submit a four-year-single-term for governor measure, thus taking an advanced and a definite step toward the elimination of so much campaigning in Georgia and the embarrassing influences that must of necessity prevail when a governor is almost compelled to begin campaigning for the second two-year term before he actually takes the oath of office for the first term.

A change in the date of inauguration for governor is also desirable. As it is a governor is elected in Georgia in September—the primary being equivalent to an election—but is not inducted into office until practically ten months thereafter, or the last week in the following June. This is embarrassing to the governor serving and to the governor-elect. It also strikes at efficiency.

The primary law in Georgia needs serious amendment and the sooner the better. The quadrennial presidential primary should be incorporated and provided for as is the biennial September primary. In order to economize and to relieve the state of an endless chain of politics in general election years the 160 county primaries should be unified and held on the same day.

On the whole the assembly has much before it in the way of a constructive nature if it will only measure up to the opportunity to do something of real benefit to the people.

NEEDED: DIPLOMACY.
Genuine diplomacy—which is not subject to any vacillating interpretation—was never needed to a more marked degree in keeping the nations of the earth linked together in a friendly chain than at the present time.

That there is slowly but surely incubating a strained and more or less threatening relationship between the governments of the United States and Japan is undeniable. This could easily have been averted and the results sought in the exclusion clause of the immigration law accomplished at the same time. There was a most astounding lack of diplomacy on the part, first of the Japanese ambassador at Washington and then of the United States senate. The ambassador was unfortunate—unwittingly no doubt—in the employment of words in protesting in advance of the passage of the bill against the clause. The senate was equally as unfortunate in losing its cooler judgment and rushing hot-headedly and impulsively into an action of contemptuous affront to a friendly, powerful and most helpful nation—without any real necessity for it on the part of the proponents of Japanese exclusion. Cool diplomacy—genuine diplomacy—could have saved this situation.

Now comes a break in relations between Great Britain and Mexico, whereby the British representative at Mexico City is withdrawn and the affairs of that nation in Mexico turned over to the United States for adjustment.

This break does not necessarily contemplate war—although more insignificant matters than this have caused some of the bloodiest of wars—but it does mean that business and trade relations of a most helpful character to Mexico, and indeed to Great Britain, will be discontinued, and therefore the break will be economically a most costly one.

But the point is, this severing of relations between Great Britain and Mexico was unnecessary. The condition could easily have been averted with the same results accomplished and without the loss of dignity to either nation, had some real diplomacy been shown.

The British representative protested against some action shown by the Mexican government toward a British woman, who is a subject of that nation. His protest is alleged to have been couched in anything but diplomatic language. This angered the Mexican foreign office and but for the good offices of President Obregon the British representative would have been expelled. Both sides perhaps acted impulsively, but the result is that a British trade expedition seeking to help Mexico has been withdrawn and in other ways Mexico will pay a costly price because it resented alleged undiplomatic language.

What the world needs is a better quality of diplomacy. The world war could have been averted with genuine diplomacy instead of listening to hot-headed opportunists.

Diplomacy can accomplish and maintain peace without the sacrifice of principles or honor; but impulsiveness usually loses the point sought and often ends in bitter and tragic struggle.

BUNKER HILL.
On June 17, 1775—one hundred and forty-nine years ago Tuesday last—the battle of Bunker Hill was fought.

Two months prior to that time, "the shot heard 'round the world" was fired in the skirmish at Concord between the embattled farmers and the British soldiers. Whether raw, untrained troops of the colonists could stand against the king's men with a chance of success gave cause for anxiety after Concord. But when Bunker Hill was fought, although the colonists were defeated, the question was answered in the affirmative.

Twice the British advanced and twice were thrown back with great loss of life. At the third charge the Americans, whose ammunition was exhausted, were obliged to yield. They retreated from the battle scene, now a part of the city of Boston, to Bunker Hill, a short distance to the north. The colonists lost 453 in killed and wounded and the British loss was about 1,050.

A granite obelisk marks the spot where the battle was fought. The cornerstone was laid June 17, 1825—the fiftieth anniversary of the battle—by Lafayette, the French soldier, who was then on a visit to this country, and the oration was delivered by Daniel Webster. The monument was completed in 1842, and June 17, the following year, was dedicated in the presence of President Tyler and his cabinet. Daniel Webster again delivered the oration before the fifty thousand persons assembled.

When we think of the victories of the American arms against the apparently all-powerful British, of King's Mountain and of Cowpens, of the chivalry and the heroism of the Puritan and the Cavalier—when we think of what it meant in breaking the yoke of imperial bondage and in the establishment of a great democracy—under a republican system of government—in this western continent, we must have a greater love and a more reverential conscience for the immortal constitution, which that victory gave to a new world of free people.

How rapidly we are straying from the constitution that guarantees to us liberties of thought and speech and press and of religious worship! A dedication of our very hearts and souls to the constitution of our fathers is one of the crying needs of the hour.

"MOTHER'S BOOTLEGGER."
Press dispatches from New York City carry the following story: "When William Trumm stepped out of a house on Central Park West this afternoon a well-dressed young woman grabbed him by the collar and propelled him over to Patrolman Murphy. 'There,' said the young woman, 'that's mama's bootlegger.'"

This was the report made by Murphy when he took Trumm into the station house after he said he found three points of whisky in the man's pocket. The young woman, Gertrude McInerney, 23, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., asserted that Trumm had been bringing whisky to her mother and decided to end it.

There is something pathetic in this—and more, there is something in it that is significant and well worth thinking about.

Here is a woman—a mother—living in a fashionable section of a great city, and perhaps of culture and refinement, who had evidently been patronizing a "bootlegger"—of the hip-pocket-flask variety—to such an extent that a home-life, maybe otherwise perfect, had been embarrassing to a young daughter; not unlikely demoralizing.

The story impresses two facts—that the bootlegging traffic, in carrying hooch to the homes, has made drinkers of many women, old as well as young, mothers as well as daughters; and that the old traditional sanctity and purity and beauty of too many homes are being dissipated by this modern evil that is eating at a nation's morals at its most vital points.

This is not an argument against prohibition, as provided in the fundamental law—it is an argument for it, and for it in its most rigid sense. It is not an argument for a return of the barroom, which women of culture and character did not visit—it is an argument against booze drinking, whether in a sloppy or a gilded gathering place on the street corner, or in the seclusion of a private drawing room.

The greatest menace to American morals today is the dapper-looking bootlegger who hides the small flasks of "liquid death" on his person and moves around from house to house, hotel to hotel, office to office, peddling his wares to those who will buy—and drink.

This condition, not brought about per se by the 18th amendment, but through a flagrant lack of enforcing that amendment, is particularly distressing in that women, mothers and perhaps mothers-to-be, are drinking more than at any time in the history of the country. The bootlegger is primarily to blame, it is true; but back of it all constituted authority is to blame for concentrating its greatest activities along other enforcement lines than that of stopping the walking hip-pocket bootlegger from carrying on his nefarious game.

Enforcement of the law should be rigid, without fear, favor or compromise.

And until it is enforced to a far greater extent than at present, thousands of American homes that used to be happy and properly fitted for raising children will remain shrouded in gloom and despair and perhaps worse.

When the mother slips the bootlegger in at the back door domestic happiness slips out at the front door. And the bootlegger carries a world of misery along with him.

It is a serious problem. The young woman—the daughter—in this instance deserves commendation, even though it must have severely hurt her pride.

GEORGIA TOBACCO.
News of the promising development of tobacco culture in south Georgia is one of the most cheering features of the present agricultural situation.

The news comes from Valdosta that the curing season, which is just opening in the tobacco area, will put between three and four million pounds of the weed in the five big warehouses located in Lowndes county.

The growing of tobacco on anything like a commercial scale is a new venture in Georgia, and the present area, located in the heart of south Georgia—a section which has suffered greatly from the ravages of the boll weevil and other drawbacks during the past few years—looks like a refreshing oasis of prosperity in the midst of disappointment and defeat.

Georgia tobacco has not only won the esteem of buyers from North Carolina, but it is now announced that numbers of experienced North Carolina growers are buying lands in south Georgia and will engage in tobacco culture on an extensive scale. While there has been a market shrinkage in cultivated areas in nearly all parts of the south during the past four years, it is encouraging to see a robust expansion in the tobacco section—the only section in which any considerable amount of new land has been brought under cultivation.

The growing of tobacco has long been a source of wealth to other states—North Carolina and Kentucky for instance, and its development in Georgia will therefore be looked upon with keen and hopeful interest.

COUNTRY LIFE.
It is the habit of many town and city people to smile at the news written by the rural correspondents for the weekly newspapers—when the denizens of the city condescend to read such news—and the paragraphs of the city press have long found in the life and happenings of "Shady Grove" and "Pleasant View" an inexhaustible mine of what they are pleased to regard as original, unconscious jokes.

The news written by the country correspondents has, however, a real value—the value of brevity and originality—the flavor of first-hand contact with life and a simple philosophy that is hopeful and refreshing. The very names of the places from which such news is sent present to the mind a soothing picture of life delightfully peaceful. What a cheerful world is conjured up in the imagination by the mere mention of "Dewey Rose," "Happy Valley" and "Myrtle Bower," and who is so sordid as not to feel a touch of envy for the fortunate dwellers of "Garden Spot?"

Writers of the most terse and pungent English in the world can receive valuable lessons from the country correspondent. He has reduced brevity, which is said to be the soul of wit, to a fine art and can tell a long and gripping human-interest story in two lines.

"Bud Spivey and family spent Saturday night with Jim Bickers and family," may appear to the hasty and superficial reader to be lacking in embellishments. In fact some readers might even be so unappreciative as to consider this item as more or less lacking in news value.

Absurd! The country correspondent has given you credit for the possession of an imagination and has left you ample room to exercise it—something many ambitious writers of modern fiction have not learned to do.

If you have an imagination that is capable of being aroused you can see much in the little two-line story of the Saturday night visit of the Spiveys to the Bickerses. You can see the preparations in each home for this event—the eagerness of the children, the dressing up, crowding into the family flivver, or buggy, or such other conveyance as may be used; the arrival at the Bickers home, and you can hear the barking of the spotted dog on the front porch, the crowing of the big, red rooster in the barn and the shouts of welcome as Tom and Susie Bickers rush out to welcome Sam and Mollie Spivey.

The children run to play. Tom tells Sam that he knows where a "mush rat" has its den in the creek bank and they run down the field trail to look for it, kicking up the dust as they go. Susie tells Mollie that she won first honor in the third grade, the women saunter through the kitchen, Mrs. Spivey packing now and then to tell Mrs. Bickers what a nice lot of canned fruit or jam she has, and stroll out into the garden, where Mrs. Bickers tells Mrs. Spivey how much Paris Green she has used up trying to kill the potato bugs; and the men, in shirt sleeves, walk leisurely across the fields to look at the crops, talking politics or telling fish stories as they stroll.

There is an abundance of good reading—reading full of meat, and bread, too—full of food for the imagination—full of the alluring repose and sturdy simplicity of country life—in the news sent by "Golden Hair" from "Dewey Rose."

That Chicago scientist who stated a few days ago that the sun's rays are not as hot as they used to be is either suffering with cold feet or entitled to the championship in the national liars' club.

The city candidate must seek his supporters in a more or less formal manner. Out in the open country the rural candidate must snuggle up to "his'n."

"Well, I'll declare!" is all that Daves said when told of his nomination. On some other occasions he is reported to have put a little more pep in his speech.

When Old Man Patrick Henry yelled for them to give him liberty or give him death he was not familiar with the Chicago publication of that name.

What has become of the belled buzzard which served to supply the newspapers of the state with space fillers for some forty-odd years?

"United States has been frozen out by Russia and China," reads a headline. Rather unexpected happening when the temperature is loafing around 100 in the shade.

Savannah is spending her summer vacation on a hand-shaking, get-acquainted tour of the country. That combines both pleasure and business.

Love's Morning Star

I.
Draw near, Sweetheart,—the Night is dark and long;
Grief in my dwelling is the only guest;
Morning is but the memory of song
And Love's divine unrest.

II.
Draw near, Sweetheart—divided of the years Far-fading in the all-enfolding Past; Death needs the Light that glimmers through Love's tears
To vision Heaven at last.

III.
Sweetheart of Life, when Life was all unknown,
Its sorrows veiled, its triumphs hidden far,
I shall not tread the last dim way alone,
With Love Death's Morning Star!

De Vierkleur van ons dierbaar land
Die waart voor o'er Transvaal.
(The four-color of our dearest land Floats over Transvaal again.)

There you have a song with all the dynamite of Dixieland or the Marcellaise. They are singing that song today on the veldt of South Africa, deifying the English outlander, and taunting the premier of the dominion, Jan Christian Smuts. For the Boers have gained a victory and the nationalist party has ousted Premier Smuts from the saddle. The Boers favor secession from the British empire and there are riders going from farmhouse to farmhouse calling upon the burghers to "keep their powder dry."

Since 1901 they have kept the peace with the invader. For twenty-three years they have borne the "yoke of Albion," but they have not been idle. Politically they have organized and worked for the day when they could make their demand for secession one of legitimate parliamentary procedure and confront England with the phrase, "We are the Dutch Reformed Church, which Smuts himself subscribed at the Versailles conference: 'Self-determination for small peoples.'"

A valiant race these Boers, sturdy and rugged. Dutch and Huguenot stock, unbending and stubborn. England knows them. Her armies melted like snow before the sun when the Boers were to be subjected. Campbell-Bannerman stated in the house of commons that he would ruin the Boers, Bible and all. But he found that task not an easy one. It was the hardest struggle Britain ever undertook. The mightiest empire on earth was defeated by a small republic of farmers and burghers. And it was finally the plan worked out by the German emperor, and of which the Dutch Reformed Church, which Smuts himself subscribed at the Versailles conference: "Self-determination for small peoples."

The diamond fields of Kimberley and the gold of the Witwatersrand were the spoils which the English wanted for themselves. They did not hanker for the prairies. The first Boer settlers had built a farm-republic in Natal. When England began to cast covetous glances to those fertile prairies, the Boers went on the great "trek." Oom Paul Kruger among the trekkers, and settled in the limitless fields of Transvaal and Orange Free State. They fought the Kaffirs and the Hottentots, the Matabeles and the savage Zulus. But they established themselves firmly. Peace and serenity had come over their new land when diamonds were found and gold was discovered. Then the urge of empire came over England again and she sought to conquer the Boers. She tried to do so by a pretext of wishing to protect the blacks against Boer exploitation, she invaded the Transvaal and the Orange Free State and conquered the settlers.

England must decide a grave question. The Boers want their country free and untrammelled. They inherit it that spirit from their Dutch ancestors, who fought Spain for eighty years. The validity of self-determination is the test that will be flung into the face of the mistress of the oceans. She has known liberal moments in the past of her history. Never will Britannia be within grasp of greater glory than when she will have the opportunity of giving the Boers the land of their fathers. England will make herself a great ally and friend in Transvaal and the Boers will revive the chorus of their national anthem, sung only in secluded corners during the last twenty years:

"Ons vyande is weg gelus
N blink en blyer dan
(Our enemies have gone away
Now dance a joyous day.)"

The question of "What is a Walloon?" that arises from the issuance of the United States of a special Huguenot-Walloon New Netherlands centenary postage stamp and coin and the holding of New York's New Netherlands celebration, one answer might be "a Belgian." according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The name 'Walloon,' says the bulletin, 'is little known on this side of the Atlantic, even less so than 'Flemish.' It runs from the Rhine, merged in the national name, 'Belgian.' It is a fact, however, that instead of the Belgians having racial unity they consist of two peoples approximately equally divided, speaking languages differing almost as widely as Swedish and Spanish. But though racially and linguistically the Belgians make up a sort of house divided against itself, politically and religiously they constitute as staunch a national entity as does French-German-Italian-speaking Switzerland, and they have stood together through the centuries under various rulers."

WALLOONS PLUS FLEMINGS EQUAL BELGIANS.
"The Walloons may be said to form the French-speaking half of Belgium, for though a very few in out-of-the-way districts know only the French-lexic of Walloon language, modern French has replaced that speech for the vast majority of the Walloons. The other half of the Belgian partnership is made up by the Flemings, whose speech, Flemish, differs very little from Dutch. The Catholic people of Flanders, however, have been divided from their kinsmen, the Protestant Dutch, by a religious gulf for hundreds of years and prefer to cleave to their fellow religionists, the Walloons."

"An almost straight line can be traced on the surface of Belgium separating the Walloons from the Flemings. It runs from Aix-la-Chapelle, just inside the German border, westward to strike the French boundary a short distance southeast of Ypres. There is little to indicate this line to the eye of the traveler who crosses it, but his ear will soon tell him that he has passed from one language zone to another. The line marks what was once the edge of a dense forest covering the rough land of southern Belgium."

LANGUAGE LINE
CROSSES BELGIUM.
"To this line the old Walloons—the Belgae of Julius Caesar—were pressed by the southward-faring Teutons who took possession of and cultivated the plains and swamps of northern Belgium. These immigrant Teutons, from whom the Flemish people sprang, did not penetrate the forest country, and there the Walloons remained entrenched. Save for isolated groves the forests has disappeared today, giving place to mines, factories, farms and gardens; but the Flemish-Walloon racial line is almost as sharply marked as it was fourteen hundred years ago.

"The Walloons, in their native land today, are practically all Catholics; but there were religious differences among them in the seventeenth century, and it was fugitive Protestant Walloons who played a prominent part in peopling America. While the Spanish were endeavoring to retain and govern the Netherlands hundreds of thousands of both Walloon and Flemish fled to the newly set up Protestant Dutch republic, just as some of the Huguenots fled from France to England. It was Walloons from among these fugitives who, like the Pilgrims and French Huguenots, emigrated to America."

WHEN NEW YORK WAS "NEW AVESNES."
"In the first ship sent to the present territory of the United States by the Dutch West India company, the New Netherlands, which landed in the Hudson river in 1623, Walloons led by Jesse de Forest were passengers. The eight families left on Manhattan, which was named 'New Amoyes,' constituted the first settlement of that now famous and valuable island, and the first homesteaders, in fact, in the middle of the century and succeeded in bringing more Dutch than Walloon immigrants, and though the latter played important parts in the new land, they were eventually swallowed up in the Dutch and Huguenot communities just as New Avesnes was swallowed up by New Amsterdam.

"Since they came into existence from a merging of the old Gallic Belgae and the Romans, the Walloons have given leaders to important historical movements. Charlemagne and Charles Martel may be considered among the original Walloons. Peter the Hermit, preacher of the First Crusade, who started one of the most important of religious expeditions, was socially that the world has never known, was a Walloon; so was Godefroy of Bouillon, who led this initial expedition of Europe's chivalry to the Holy Land."

WALLOONS LED BELGIAN REVOLUTION.
"As a people the Walloons have also been leaders. The revolution of 1830 which separated the Belgians from their temporary connection with Holland was led largely by the Walloons. The new Belgium, then set up, was begun as a French-speaking country. Recognition of the claims of the Flemings since, however, has brought about the passage of laws placing the two languages on an equal footing."

"Liege, one of the earliest Belgian towns to suffer from the German invasion during the world war, is the center of Walloon or 'the Walloon country,' as the French-speaking portion of Belgium is termed. Much of the region is dotted with fine old chateaus and the newer country places of wealthy city dwellers. Roughly, Walloon is Belgium's factory, while Flanders is its garden."

Political Accidents
BY M. ASHBY JONES, D. D.

We have a new political slogan, "Keep Kool Koolidge." It has not been officially stated whether this exhortation is addressed to Mr. Coolidge or to the voters of the United States. If we are to judge from the president's past record of unruffled calm, undisturbed deliberation, and undisturbed New England temperance, there is really very much danger of his temperature rising to fever-heat during the coming campaign. So the slogan must be an appeal to the electorate. Here, again, there is a question of interpretation. Is it a plea that during the coming campaign our people shall imitate the serene occupant of the presidential chair, or shall they may say, with some degree of assurance, that whatever else the American people may do in this election, they will not reach any very high temperature of enthusiasm even if Coolidge, even though they may elect him to succeed himself. So, by the process of elimination, we are forced to conclude that the slogan is an appeal to the American people to keep the Kool Mr. Koolidge where he is.

Of course, no one knows, though there will be many wise ones who will claim such knowledge, whether the American people will elect Mr. Coolidge or not. However, one can say with some degree of certainty that, if it had been known in 1923 that Mr. Harding would not live out his term of office, Mr. Coolidge would never have been nominated as vice president. It was clearly after-thought. Indeed, we can strongly suspect that had Mr. Harding lived, he would have been re-nominated and that Mr. Coolidge's name would not have even brought up the rear on the ticket.

Choosing a President.
I am not discounting Mr. Coolidge at all by making these comments. I am simply thinking of the large number of political accidents, which have taken place in our so-called "choice" of presidents. The name of Warren G. Harding, the name of Warren G. Harding, flashed over the wires as the nominee of the republican party; it shocked the nation with amazement. We are told that a little group of politicians, "gang a-gley," and accidentals will happen in the best regulated political families, the preacher's proposal is, "let us pray."

Well, the next inning of the big game is to be played in New York this week. How little thought and talk there will be about political ideas, and principles. The most popular word which will be used will be "availability." That means vote getting. Bands will play; heated sophomoric oratory will fill the air; and a great many of the politicians will play out the game. But since the election is so late, and since the politicians "gang a-gley," and accidentals will happen in the best regulated political families, the preacher's proposal is, "let us pray."

THE BATHING SEASON.
People to whom limbs are less only and arms are something else will presently consider whether and where they are going to bathe this season. So the bathing season is on. It was, used to be the bathing season, and a fellow had to summon the shrewdest diplomacy to get through the season without the dreaded sea-sickness. With the coming of the bathing season and for two or three months people become quite reckless about getting their feet wet.

Several questions of hygienic bearing follow the coming of the swimming season. Let us answer them in advance and save time.

How early may a swimmer venture into the water? So far as health is concerned, as early as he or she wishes.

How long should one remain in, and how often may one go in swimming? Unless one is feeble-minded and incapable of knowing when one is cold, weary or sunburned, these questions, too, are a matter of individual preference. Stay in as long as you enjoy yourself and go in as many times a day as you like.

May a young woman go in swimming—may an expectant mother go in swimming—may a grandmother go in swimming? Well, why not?—it is only Mrs. Varris who sees anything objectionable about it.

Should one go in on a full stomach? As a rule it is better not to indulge in any vigorous exercise soon after a meal, and going in swimming is vigorous exercise for those who swim or try to swim. Going in bathing, however, is another story and is all right immediately after a meal.

How can one avoid or prevent accidents? One can avoid or prevent accidents by being careful. It is because of prolonged exhausting efforts that one is so often in danger of the possible risk one should attempt no spectacular feats and when the water is very cold make the swim a short one.

What can one do with one's ears while in swimming? Keep the cold water out of the ears by inserting in the ear canals a loose packing of lamb's wool (not cotton) and covered with vasoline. This is especially advisable when there is perforation of an ear drum or chronic middle ear disease, for the sudden cold water will cause the sudden onset of vertigo, seasickness, nausea and helplessness in the water.

Is the danger of infection from polluted water entering the nose avoidable? This happens more frequently in swimming pools used by patrons who have had no nose infection in this way in open air swimming in natural waters. The only effective protection is the use of a rubber nose plug. It is a small, soft, rubber plug which is inserted in the nostril and which will prevent water from entering the nose.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Can't Outgrow 'em.
Does anyone outgrow adenoids (L. S.)

Ans. No. But some misguided fellows prefer to let the adenoids and except the faulty development of adenoids cause—deformities of palate the face, jaws, teeth and chest. Some times in adult life adenoid tissues undergo a natural shrinkage, but mean-while irreparable damage is done.

Plenty of Veins.
What takes care of the blood after a varicose vein has been removed? Why do they remove the veins? (Mrs. N. H.)

Ans. There are plenty of deeper veins in the leg to take care of the blood all right. They remove the dilated veins because they never be of further use and if left in the leg will only cause trouble.

Adhesions.
Can a person have adhesions without having had an operation of any kind except for piles? (T. L. D.)

Ans. Adhesions are usually the result of inflammation, two surfaces which should be free become adherent or bound by bands of scar tissue left by the excessive use of cautery. So operation has nothing much to do with the question. Rarely is an operation the cause of subsequent adhesions. It is equally advisable to have an operation to remove adhesions if they are found to be responsible. In certain conditions operation is done for the express purpose of forming adhesions for remedial effect, and is rather difficult to make sure that the desired adhesions shall occur. It is an error to imagine that operations are the usual cause of adhesions. It is equally advisable to have an operation to remove adhesions if they are found to be responsible. 'CONNIE GOES HOME' COMEDY HIT AT LYRIC

Isabelle Lowe Cast as Original Baby Vamp in Bright Romance.

A better brand of comedy than has been seen recently in this theatrical center is offered at the Lyric theater this week in "Connie Goes Home," a diverting romance that makes Pumpkin Center's idea of the stage the butt of a little delicate satire and gives Miss Isabelle Lowe an interesting assignment in compound impersonation.

The comedy was written by Edward Childs Carpenter around the plot and the characters first introduced to the public in a story by Fannie Kilbourne in The Saturday Evening Post.

Connie, the girl Miss Lowe will represent, is a young actress whose specialty is child roles. Although she is 20, she earns a living on Broadway because she can look and act 12. At the time the story opens child parts are scarce along the Rialto, Connie's bank roll hardly makes a bulge in her stocking and she and her chum, played by Ramona Weaver, can hear the splash of breakers ahead.

Mansfield as Tempter. Connie, an orphanage product, decides to go home. She has only half enough money for the trip. Temptation, disguised as Rankin Mansfield, offers the only alternative. Connie gets out her socks, short dress and tam and makes up to qualify for a half-fare ticket.

The conductor sees through the deception and the girl finds herself stranded 1,000 miles from Nowhere, broke and hungry. Then romance enters the story, listed in the cast of characters as Wilfred Lytell. He falls for the baby stare and takes the forlorn infant home to uncle, a keen-eyed old millionaire played by Gus Forbes.

It happens that Jimmy's expectation of inheritance is known to a dashing temptress who is to be played by Lorraine Bernard and who is to be at this week in some brand-new Bernard fashion sensations. She plots the immediate downfall of the new juvenile queen of her intended victim's heart.

In this plot she has the cordial cooperation of the original and the maiden's principal, a gay Lothario whose villainy was made to measure for William Loyd, who plays the part.

To save Wilfred from Lorraine's snare, Isabelle abandons the trappings of childhood and does the siren act herself. The denouement is loaded with surprise.

Marion White and Robert Smiley complete the cast.

'THE CHARITY BALL,' ATLANTA'S OFFERING

Played by John B. Litel and the Baldwin Players.

Plum pudding is a treat on Thanksgiving day. Turkey means Christmas; colored eggs, Easter time. But they are all seasonal, of special delight, at given times. So is it true of most things—except a good show. And then no matter whether it is Christmas or July, Easter or football days, that show is a treat.

So it is with "The Charity Ball," which is to be offered by the Baldwin Players at the Atlanta theater this week. "The Charity Ball" is a good show. It is a show that is known and that has won for itself from one part of the country to the other recognition and praise.

It is doubtful if the Baldwin Players have ever had a show like "The Charity Ball" to offer, filled as it is with fun and happiness and real honest-to-goodness "stuff" of the kind that makes the hardest-boiled critic admit it's the thing.

John Litel will have an opportunity such as he has not had for weeks, and every member of the cast will be called on to fill a really worthwhile role. A few Atlantans in addition will be asked to fill in on the side.

Miss Gladys Hurlburt, too, will have a role fitting her marked ability with added opportunity to display the beauty and taste in dressing by which she has so popularized herself.

The Atlanta theater is one of the coolest theaters in the city during these hot, hot days and nights, and every effort is made—and successfully at that—to add comfort to the patrons who are flocking to the theater in ever-increasing numbers.

"The Follies Girl"

"The Follies Girl," a story of bright lights, "jazz," beautiful clothes, laughter and tears, has been chosen as the vehicle in which Margaret Livingston will make her debut as a star.

"The Follies Girl" is a comedy drama, intense with human interest and offering great opportunity for excellent "I don't care" characterization by Miss Livingston, as well as giving her some big dramatic scenes.

Miss Livingston played the lead in the well known "Leather Pushers" series. She will be remembered for her work in "Divorce," "Love's Whirlpool" and "Wandering Husbands."

The excellence of Miss Livingston's work in "Wandering Husbands" won a contract for her with Regal Pictures as star in a series of pictures.

The scenario of "The Follies Girl" is by Bradley King.

'JANET OF FRANCE' BIG HEADLINER AT LOEW'S

International Comedienne
Tops All-Star Bill at Loew's Grand.

"Janet of France," the international comedienne whose name has blazed in the white lights of the big cities, a chic, winsome, singing comedienne, who has captured the hearts of all who have heard her, comes to Atlanta this week, opening a special six days' engagement as headliner on Loew's Grand vaudeville bill.

"A Little Touch of Paris" is Janet Martine's offering in this city, and, assisted by Charles W. Hamp, she will present one of the cleverest acts ever seen in Atlanta. Janet Martine is French to the fingertips and is as fascinating as the glitter of gold. Her career has been just as colorful as her petite self. Her first part was that of a chorus girl in the famous Follies Bergere in Paris. Then later she came to America to go into the movies, where she played for a year and a half. Following this she has been showing vaudeville patrons glimpses of Paris and Montmartre.

"Janet of France" is one of the real big headliners in vaudeville today and another of the "big time" acts that have come to Atlanta and Loew's Grand since the inauguration of the full-week policy at the local house. Whenever the name of Janet Martine is mentioned, there is instantly brought to the mind the famous masterpiece "Mr. Boozie." It is Frank Terry's masterpiece on the vaudeville stage and will be the feature of the act in which the eminent actor, author and screen star makes his personal appearance at Loew's Grand this week. Mr. Terry, in addition to the great "Mr. Boozie," has a collection of songs, dances and humorous chatter that will score a great hit in Atlanta.

Ko Ko Carnival and company, featuring Al Koko and his famous bounding contest, is feature No. 3 on the vaudeville bill. Al Koko is one of the funniest clowns in vaudeville and with the assistance of three people, two men and a woman, there will be offered to vaudeville fans a landslide of fun. This is a merry, rollicking skit without a single dull moment and an act that promises to keep the audience laughing incessantly.

Beulah Kennedy and Billie Davies in "Fun in One" offer an attractive combination of songs, dances and comedy that is certainly different. These two attractive girls have always scored a hit and should prove most popular in this city.

Conrad, Tafan and company in a vaudeville classic have an act that rounds out the entire offering in what will prove to be one of the best vaudeville bills of the year.

In addition Colleen Moore, the winsome screen star, will be seen with a notable cast in "Through the Dark."

Charlie Chaplin.

High amid the snow-capped, ice-encrusted peaks of the Sierra mountains in northern California Charlie Chaplin has created an exact duplicate of the famous "Chilcot Pass" gateway to the Klondike gold fields in the days of the gold rush to that Alaskan mecca for so many thousands.

Here Chaplin is filming the big scenes in his forthcoming feature length comedy for United Artists corporation. Here, in startling realism, are being depicted the hardships endured by the pioneer gold seekers as they struggled through Sierran passes in their mad rush for Klondike wealth. Here a thrilling biography, portraying tragic comedy against a background of dramatic intensity, is being placed on the celluloid.

Chaplin himself, in the role of general director, is everywhere. In his famous comedy garb, with the big floppy shoes, the baggy trousers, the trick hat and cane, he mingles with the hundreds of "hardboiled" men who are being depicted in the picture, mixing with the mob in the big scenes and spurring them on. A more rugged bunch of hardened men hardly could be imagined than these thousand movie extras imported into the Sierran peaks.

Former Local Stock Stars SUMMER OPERA SEASONS ARE LAUNCHED In New York Productions

By S. F. G.

Bert Lytell, big brother of Atlanta's own Wilfred at the Lyric theater, is making a new picture this summer with Claire Windsor. It is called "Born Rich," and has little in common with the sheik picture in which Atlanta last saw the bushy browed star.

Marcus Loew sailed for Europe last week to supervise personally the preparations for filming "Ben Hur" on an elaborate scale. Ramon Novarro, Enid Bennett and Fred Niblo, the director, were in the Loew party.

Edward Childs Carpenter, author of the comedy at the Lyric theater this week, heads a group of 10 New York dramatists who incorporated last week to build a theater of their own in Gotham. Owen Davis, whose plays have always been popular here, is another of the group.

Owen Davis, incidentally, is in Europe arranging for production of his new comedy, "The Nervous Wreck," in London with an all-American cast.

Boots Wooster, former Lyric leading woman, is rehearsing at the New York Belasco theater as one of the principals in John Meehan's new play, "A Man's Job."

Selma Royle, who was John Litel's first leading woman with the Baldwin players, is a member of the all-star cast which is attempting a revival of "She Stoops to Conquer" in New York. Elsie Ferguson is the star; Miss Royle plays the part of a maid. The production is not making much money.

Democratic Delegates in New York next week will have 37 plays from which to select their extra-convention entertainment, thirty-two dramas, 10 comedies and 14 musical shows are now running there, not counting vaudeville, burlesque and movies.

Leo Carrillo is reviving "Lombardi Limited," in San Francisco.

Sunday closing is in the issue in a warm political fight in Erie, Pa., with practically all the religious, social and civic organizations of the city lined up one way or the other. Erie has Sunday amusements, although the city ordinances expressly forbid them.

Famous Players corporation is negotiating with the holders of patents on a new color photography process which, it is said, makes colored motion pictures not only distinct but cheap enough for liberal use. The process is called "Technicolor."

"The Gentle Grafter," first play by O. Henry ever to reach the stage, is to be presented in New York on his birthday, September 11, after a preliminary tour opening in Greensboro, N. C. in August. Part of the profits are to go to the O. Henry memorial.

The famous author was a cousin of James A. Hollomon, associate editor of The Constitution.

Rosa Raisa, who sang here in concert last season, is prima donna of "Nerone," the operatic spectacle at Milan, Italy, which is attracting tourists from all over the world this summer. Arthur Toscanini, also known here, is director. Small chance is seen for an American production, as it would cost $250,000 to duplicate it on this side of the water.

The New York Civic Opera association sponsored four performances of grand opera, opening with "Carmen" Thursday, at the Polo Grounds last week.

Florence Easton and Lucrezia Bori were the featured stars in the opening bill of summer opera season at Ravinia last night. Special trains were operated from Milwaukee and Chicago. Chicago and Metropolitan artists are to sing. The Chicago symphony is the orchestra and Gennaro Papi conducted the opening, which was "Cavalleria" and "Pagliacci."

De Wolf Hopper opened a season of comic opera at Poli's theater in Washington, D. C., Monday with "The Mikado."

Musically, the war is over at last in London. Wagnerian and Strauss opera, with a cast of German singers, has been produced for the first time since 1914 and cleared a substantial profit for all concerned. Atlanta has heard no German opera in a number of years.

A Massed Chorus of 8,000 male voices was a feature of the diamond jubilee of the Chicago saengerfest which was held at the coliseum last week. The three days' singing cost $80,000, including prizes to composers and the expenses were met in full by gate receipts.

Minna Gombel, former Lyric play-last week at the Saint Charles theater, in New Orleans, playing dramatic stock, in "The Cat and the Canary."

Miss Isabelle Lowe's trick horsemanship during the horse and pony show at Piedmont park last week recalls the fact that her nerve and mastery of fractious steeds gave her the opening to the theatrical career which has led her to leading ladyship of the Lyric players.

It was in Boston some 12 years ago that a play was being rehearsed which required that a child ride a circus horse down a flight of steps onto the stage. Six or eight little girls were tried out, but either let the horse or their own fears run away with them on the really dangerous descent. Miss Lowe was visiting the uncle who owned the theater, and because she had been riding horses almost before she could walk, pleaded for a chance. She did it gracefully.

That earned her other chances at child parts until finally she was the leading role in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," and has been a leading woman ever since.

Blanche Sweet is another film favorite making preparations to flit abroad. The popular Ince star, who has just completed work in "Those Who Dance," a coming First National release, is due to arrive in New York this week from Los Angeles. She will spend two weeks in Manhattan, sailing aboard the Olympic on June 14. Accompanying Miss Sweet is her husband, Marshall Neilan, the director.

Gloria Swanson has bridged the gap between the bourgeoisie and royalty in a few short days at the Paramount Long Island studio. In "Manhandled," her latest Paramount picture, now she is her highness, Princess Marie Tavarina Sagala, only daughter of the ruling Archduke of Vlatava, for her coming release, "A Woman of Fire."

Donald Hall, who recently completed an important part in Paramount's "Unguarded Women," has been cast for the role of the court physician in the Gloria Swanson production, "A Woman of Fire."

Lorraine Bernard, fashion plate of the Lyric players, has used all the plumage of six young ostriches on a new gown she has designed to wear in "Connie Goes Home," this week. The gown is a pink and orchid creation modeled along the lines of one Irene Castle has ordered to introduce to New York later in the summer.

Bonnie TeBeau, youthful prima donna of the Forsyth musical stock company, is one of Atlanta's sweet girl graduates in this merry month of June despite the fact that she deserted class room studies three years

BONNIE TE BEAU SHARES HONORS WITH HODGES

The "Gingham Girl" Is This Week's Offering at the Forsyth.

All those excellent comic bits and melodies that made "The Gingham Girl" one of the most successful and talked of musical comedy hits in New York in recent years have been included in the Atlanta presentation of it, to be staged by Jimmie Hodges and members of his musical comedy company at the Forsyth theater all this week.

"The Gingham Girl" is one of those kind of plays in which Jimmie Hodges is at his best. Just as the play made stars of its leading part in New York, so does it offer Jimmie Hodges the best part in which he has appeared since coming to Atlanta four months ago, and that's saying something, for Jimmie Hodges is tremendously popular with Forsyth patrons.

The play has been branded as one of the best musical comedies ever to be presented along Broadway. It has a simple appeal. Its atmosphere of the rural, throughout which is interwoven a lot of catchy songs and sparkling lines, makes it appealing in every sense.

The company has been equipped with costumes equaling in brilliance and splendor those worn in the original production, and the scenic effects contrived for its presentation have never been surpassed in Atlanta. Miss Bonnie TeBeau will be seen in another alluring role this week, a role in which she has more opportunity to show to Atlanta she is an actress of worth, and a star of beauty and charm.

The King sisters, who have made a name for themselves in their song repertoires, will furnish more of the same kind that their audiences like. But Jimmie Hodges is the center of things, as he has been in all of the productions of the company here. With all that the play provides Mr. Hodges to work with, his performance should be everything his admirers could desire.

"The Gingham Girl" will be presented in its original form, including every scene and every important bit of dialogue. Some of the surplus matter has been eliminated so that the play can be crowded into an hour and fifteen minutes, but nothing has been taken out that matters. Three performances will be given daily, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon for entrance into college this fall is she wishes to enter.

'THE HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME' AT METROPOLITAN

Lon Chaney's Greatest Picture First Time at Popular Prices.

Lon Chaney, admittedly the finest interpreter of unusual character roles on either stage or screen and whose work as the fake cripple in "The Miracle Man" stands out as a bit of remarkable acting, to say nothing of his other wonderful impersonations, has added another striking characterization to his already long list in his appearance as "Quasimodo," the stunted star in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the massive picture production, based on Hugo's classic, which begins an engagement at the Metropolitan, being presented for the first time at popular prices—matinee 35 cents, night 50 cents—with special performances for children daily 9:30 a. m. to 11:00 a. m. Admission for children 10 cents.

There is probably no actor behind the footlights, or before the camera, today who has mastered the art of make-up to the extent Lon Chaney has. His Fagin, in "Oliver Twist," was an example of his proficiency in this line. Besides being a player of intelligence, with a keen sense of the requirements of a role, Mr. Chaney is an acrobat and contortionist, abilities which he is often called upon to use in his characterizations.

Some idea of the regard Mr. Chaney has for detail of make-up and why his Quasimodo, in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," is so remarkable and impressive in this line may be gathered from the fact he was on the "hot" at Universal City, where the mammoth production was made, each morning three and one-half hours before the remainder of the company, his work of transforming himself into Hugo's unique character requiring that amount of time. No effort was spared by Mr. Chaney to make the deformed

The Hunchback of Notre Dame

with LON CHANEY
Directed by CARL LAEMMLE

MUSIC

A special musical score has been written by Enrico Leide, from the music derived from the old French traditions, of which "Masquerade" by Lacomme will form the background to depict Quasimodo's character. As a prelude the Metropolitan Orchestra will present selections from the "Sicilian Vespers" by Verdi.

CHILDREN

Under the terms of the contract we have for the presentation of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," we can not during the regular hours—11:00 a. m. to 11:00 p. m.—charge an admission of less than 35c for matinee, 50c at night. However, in order to live up to the terms of our contract, and still arrange for every child in Atlanta to see this wonderful picture for 10c, we will have daily—9:30 a. m. to 11:00 a. m.—special children's performances; admission for children to these performances only 10c; after 11:00 a. m., children same as adults.

COLLEEN MOORE STAR IN LOEW'S PHOTOPLAY

Winsome Screen Actress Has Great Role in "Through the Dark."

To play probably the most difficult role ever presented on the screen, Mr. Chaney said, "a role that called for the greatest artifice in facial transformation, contortion of the body, poetic, yet life-like impersonation, I put into my work all of the talent and capabilities I possessed. Never have I worked so hard or so faithfully in presenting a characterization. At all times I had the help and encouragement of Carl Laemmle, who had impressed upon me the fact that neither time, effort or money was to be spared in making "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" the greatest picture production ever turned out. Not only were we to be supplied with the biggest and most artistic settings ever used in a film play, as near perfect atmosphere for the unfolding of Victor Hugo's story as possible, but we were cautioned that the portrayals of the various roles would have to be on the same high artistic plane. The perfecting of this exactness in every detail required a long time, and the cost was stupendous, but I believe the results have justified everything that was done."

The musical score written for the Hunchback by Enrico Leide is an original one derived from material gathered in the old French repertoire. It contains bits of humorous music as well as dramatic passages of strong appeal. The theme chosen to characterize Quasimodo, the Hunchback, is "Masquerade," by Lacomme, a semi-lively composition of comical nature with an underlying strain of pathos and sadness. Due to the length of the feature picture the short subject had to be eliminated from the program. A brief prelude, however, will precede the opening scenes of the Hunchback.

'CODE OF THE SEA' IS HOWARD FEATURE

A Story of the Sea, Its Folks and Their Habits.

"Code of the Sea," a new Victor Fleming production for Paramount, featuring Rod La Rocque and Jacqueline Logan, which will play at the Howard theater all this week is a roaring action-tale of the sea, written for the screen by Byron Morgan, author of all of the late Wally Reid's automobile successes.

"Code of the Sea" is the story of a young man with a yellow streak, a coward just as his father was before him. There comes a night, when a violent storm at sea, with strong gusts of wind and driving rain arises. The yacht Neroid, with Jenny (Miss Logan) as a passenger, is trying to stagger to port against the fury of the demonic elements. At the same time the passenger ship Northern, captained by Jenny's father (George Fawcett), has lost its way.

By wireless, McDow (La Rocque), commander of a lightship, learns of the plight of both. The Northern commands him to stay at his post so that it can bring its human cargo to shore, and simultaneously the Neroid flashes that it is sinking.

Duty requires McDow, the coward to stay at his post. The code of the sea is that no lightship can leave its moorings until relieved. Jenny on the Neroid faces death. On the yacht only a handful are endangered, while on the Northern there are hundreds dependent upon his decision.

And it is this decision which supplies the smashing, spectacular climax for the greatest sea story ever filmed. Your ship of joy with its cargo of thrills will come in when you see this picture.

Besides George Fawcett, others in the strong supporting cast include Maurice Flynn, Luke Cosgrove, Lillian Leighton and Sam Appel.

An overture which really may be termed unique and extraordinary, will be presented by the Howard orchestra this week under the caption "Around the World With the Howard Symphony Orchestra." The music is played in conjunction with special cartoon and scenic shots, opening with the orchestra in the pit and then traveling with them, out through the music entrance, into the lobby in front of the Howard and thence around the world by boat leaving New York and returning via Frisco and Chicago, right back to the Howard theater again "while you wait."

Mr. Risinger's score for "Code of the Sea" uses Bill Wrigley's dreamy waltz ballad, "Sailing on Lake Ponchartraine" as the love motif. Greig's "Stormy Night on the Coast" from the second "Peer Gynt" suite, Wagner's storm music from "Flying Dutchman" and two Victor Herbert numbers, "Badinage" and "Al Fresco" are included in the score.

RIALTO'S FEATURE IS 'THE GUILTY ONE'

A Mystery Play That Will Keep You Guessing.

Remove all the mysteries from life, and this old world would surely be a dreary place to live. It is the mystery of what is just over the horizon that makes us keep going. It is the eternal quest for that which is new, new questions to unravel and new sights to see that makes living a sport. The thought of what may happen on the morrow keeps up our hopes.

Hence the constant popularity of detective stories and mystery plays such as "The Guilty One," which is to be shown at the Rialto theater this week.

The mystery play early in its lines or action asks a question who committed the murder, the theft or whatever it may happen to be. The puzzle is eagerly picked up by the audience's minds. Here is something for them to think about and keep them absorbed to the end.

In "The Guilty One," a wealthy and popular man-about-town is found murdered in his home. From this point on the picture builds to a dramatic climax, the equal of which, perhaps, has never before been seen on the screen. The names of a socially prominent and highly successful young architect, his wife and young brother-in-law are mentioned in connection with the shooting. You see the husband run from the house, sheltered by a driving rain, on the arrival of the police. You see him scurry home and tell his wife what has happened.

Then the detectives arrive. The brave little wife struggles valiantly to establish the fact that her husband has been at home all night. Here you have a battle of wits. But the sharp eyes of the police see through the lie, and the husband is taken into custody.

At the station you have a grilling cross examination of brother and husband. Circumstantial evidence damns them both. Gradually the heavy finger of suspicion rests upon the husband. It looks like the chair for him.

And then you see the wife musing over the testimony offered by her brother, husband, blackmailer, servants, officers. Her imagination, fired by a sudden thought, aids her in quick deduction.

And then the climax! It's the most gripping scene you've ever witnessed—a whopper!

Elinor Glyn's "3 Weeks."

(At Alamo No. 2.)
One of the most compelling love stories in the world's literature will be seen at Alamo No. 2 beginning Monday, when the film version of Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks" is shown.

The novel created a sensation upon its publication fifteen years ago by its daring analysis of the love passion. It has continued to be a big seller through all the years that have elapsed since.

This novel dealt with the fervid love story between an Englishman, Paul Verdayne, and the Queen of Sardalia, of whose identity he was in ignorance and who had been estranged from the king by his dissolute behavior and his cruelty towards his subjects.

Director Alan Crosland has supplied a wonderful cast of players, entrusting the leads to Aileen Pringle, Conrad Nagel, Stuart Holmes and others of equal prominence. The inevitable Harold Lloyd will be shown on Friday and Saturday in "Safety Last."

The Paramount.

(For Colored Only.)

Lillian Gish's triumphant success, "The White Sister," is announced for its premiere at the Paramount theater on Monday.

"The White Sister" was made in Italy with the cooperation of the Italian government. It has been characterized as one of the most beautiful films ever screened.

In addition to the superb acting of Miss Gish, who plays the role in which Viola Allen starred in "The White Sister" has many thrilling, spectacular scenes. The eruption of Mt. Vesuvius supplies the climax for this powerful picture, which was directed by Henry King, best known for his work in "Tobacco David."

"The White Sister" is an inspiration picture, of which company Charles H. Duell, Jr., is president, and is released through Metro.

Buffalo Head.

A buffalo head, five feet high, said to be the largest ever mounted, has been shipped from Canada to Thomas H. Luce as a trophy of the mammoth buffalo stampede staged in the north for the forthcoming "western." "The Last Frontier."

During the stampede, in which ten thousand buffalo took part, a few of the animals were shot with high powered rifles. Due to the rapid increase of the buffalo herd in the Wainwright National Park the Canadian government last fall was forced to slaughter two thousand head and permission was given to Luce prior to the killing to shoot several head for his film spectacle.

The head has been hung in the corridor of the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

Polyanna of the Orange Blossoms.

This is the third Glad Book, which tells the story of a boy who has made many friends than any other girl character in the role of happiness which she has played so well. The first two volumes, "Polyanna" and "Polyanna Grows Up," were written by Mrs. Eleanor H. Porter, one of the most popular and beloved authors, and the passing of whom brought regret to a wide list of readers.

But the third volume is written by Harriett Loomis Smith, who wrote the "Friendly Terrace Series."

It has been eleven years since the publication of "Polyanna," by Mrs. Porter, which was read by everybody, everywhere, from schools to hospitals, but the new readers of this charming story might be interested in the information that after this long time "Polyanna," the Glad Book, is selling at the rate of 1,000 copies a month in the cheaper reprint, $27.00, of the regular edition and about 800,000 of the reprint have been sold. This surely is all that is necessary to say in regard to the popularity of this lovely young heroine.

This book has also been translated into five foreign languages, including the Japanese.

It will probably not be amiss to say that the two Polyanna books, including their library circulation, are giving pleasure to about fifty million readers, all of whom were some what surprised not long ago to receive the following announcement:

"Mrs. Thomas Chilton announces the marriage of her niece, Polyanna, to Mr. James Treggill."

There is no doubt but that "Polyanna of the Orange Blossoms" will be the same Glad girl as a little bride that she has always been, and where her lot may be she will always play the Glad game.

So here comes the bride, the little Glad bride, to whom we are extended the best wishes of fifty million friends that she may, as Jimmy's bride, be just as sweet and as happy as she has been in the past as just Polyanna.

No sweeter love-story has ever been written than that woven around Polyanna and Jimmy, for the time they really come in the Glad game played itself, for she was an ambitious girl who wanted to become famous in the literary field. She had written many stories, typed them carefully, for she knew when the editor saw them that each one would win a prize. But it was the old story "worn out from calling on editor here and editor there, and coming back every time like a broken pigeon."

And then love came and now Polyanna says that if she ever decides to write any more romances that they will be unlike the ordinary ones.

Most books wind up with a wedding, as if that were the end of things. But with me it is just the beginning—the beginning of everything." (L. C. Page Co., Boston, Mass.)

NEW FICTION RECEIVED.

Money to Burn. An adventure story by Reginald Wright Knapp. This is not only a well written story, but it is a first-class mystery story which will be thoroughly enjoyed. (Chelsea House, New York.)

The King of No Man's Land. By Arthur O. Friel, who has selected the most interesting characters of the most attractive location possible to weave a story that is filled with thrills from the first chapter to the last. (Harper & Brothers, New York.)

The Red Pirogue is a tale of adventure in the Canadian wilds, as related by Theodore Goodridge Roberts, author of a number of exciting books. This is another interesting story for any time and at any place—just you and the book is all that is necessary to be entertaining.

The Commandment of Moses. By Stephen McKenna, author of "Vindication" and "Sonja" stories that were widely read for their clever style and for the unusual pen portraits for which the author is well known. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

The Test of Donald Norton. By Robert E. Pinkerton, whose latest story is woven around a young boy who was 14 years of age before he found his way out of the great woods to the outside world, and what happens in the story which is one of real human interest and appeal. (Rexley & Lee Co., Chicago.)

On the Lot and Off. By George Randolph Chester, author of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," now playing inside, admission $2, with a sign "To Box Office" can be found on the cover of this book. Mr. Chester knows how to write a book and how to advertise it, therefore his books are always best sellers. (Harper & Brothers, New York.)

Lights Along the Ledges. By Elizabeth Stanley Payne is a refreshing book with a strong sound of the sea, in fact the author's hobby is stories of the sea, of boats and the charming people that she invites when she is ready to put out for one of her famous voyages. (The Penn Publishing Company, Philadelphia.)

"JUST FROM GEORGIA."

The above is the title of Frank L. Stanton's daily column in The Constitution. It is read daily and enjoyed by people even in foreign lands. He sings a song each day, and the reader attunes it to his own heart, but we have borrowed the title at this time for another reason. It is this time.

Best News Stories of 1923 is always welcomed by its many readers and those who have been waiting to know if they are among the winners have been watching for its announce-

Another interesting feature of this handsome book is the work of a man, from his viewpoint, etc., in the foreword it is said that "women enter upon gardening enthusiastically and pursue it gracefully with ardor and intelligence. But with men it is quite different, for them it is a splendid sport, a recreation from the daily affairs of life."

He alludes very pleasantly to Mrs. Francis King, whom he calls that delightful garden author and lover, and who claims that gardening is an art, while he calls it a sport, and tells why. He discusses how we have made a business of nearly all our games which were in the beginning intended for recreation and which proved so beneficial from every standpoint.

He tells a little story in connection with a magnificent estate located in that beautiful little city of La Grange, and now the home of one of Troup county's most prominent and wealthiest citizens, Fuller E. Callaway, in which its first owner, Mrs. Blount Ferrell, was ordered by her family physician, Dr. Ridley, whose family is one of the oldest in Georgia, to make a garden, the order being accompanied by a rake, spade and a hoe. So she laid out Ferrell Gardens and lived to be a beloved and useful as well as the oldest citizen at the time of her passing.

The story of Magnolia Gardens, near Charleston, has become known the country over, and every year there is an annual pilgrimage to see the most beautiful azaleas in all the world.

The cultivation of a garden may be a hobby but it is the opinion of the medical fraternity all over the world that it is the best hobby selected by mankind. The love, the pride and the cultivation of a rose garden is the best tonic known. It can please the eye by its beauty and give interest and health to an invalid's daily life by its time and care which it demands.

Mr. Wright gives all the information that is necessary for gardening, and the reader can follow the little advice: "Do not take too serious; it is the finest of sports; it is unwise to make a garden your master, enjoy your garden, but have a sense of humor about it. It is not the whole of life but it is a necessary part of a full life."

Plant a garden and spend a part of every hour at the care of it. (J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia; price, $7.50 net.)

MISCELLANEOUS BOOKS.

The Youngest Dramatist. A study of 50 dramatists, by Ashley Dukes. The following is the table of contents which in itself will be an inspiration to the reader:

Forerunners (30 dramatists from D'Annunzio to Zola)—Among those with whom the reader is familiar are Sir James Barrie, Arnold Bennett, Eugene O'Neill, Chekov, John Galsworthy, Maxim Gorky, Henrik Ibsen, Maeterlinck, John Masefield and others.

Realists: Among whom are St. John Ervine, Muro, Eugene O'Neill, etc.

Comedians: Expressionists and poets and historians are included.

Gene Sarazen's Common Sense Golf Tips. "Correct your faults; better your game." In connection with a very pleasing picture of the most famous golfer in the world, there are 21 illustrations.

Francis Quimet says: "Gene Sarazen ranks as one of the greatest golfers of all time. Gene is a player who belongs to the school of modern golfers and his viewpoint should be well worth reading." (Thomas E. Wilson & Co., New York.)

The Book of Every-Day Heroism. "The World Knows Nothing of Its Greatest Men." This volume belongs to the Sunrise Inspirational Books, by John P. Faris, who tells the story of the homely heroism of numberless, nameless homely heroes "who live simple and unpretentious lives, and in their common quietude play the part of the hero." (Lippincott's, Philadelphia.)

Stories, Plays, Poems, Essays. Selected from the Published Works of Stuntz in the Special Courses in Writing, Columbia University, with an introduction by Frank Allen Patterson, associate professor of English. Published by Columbia University Press, New York.

All of the selections have already appeared in various periodicals. The story "The Trial in Belcher's Store" has been published for the sixth time. "The Fat and the Land" is recognized as among the best stories appearing during the past six years.

The object in making this collection is to give readers of modern literature a selection of the best work represented by the initial efforts of young writers.

Copy is recommended not only to the general reading public as containing interesting stories, but anyone who is interested in writing will find it of special value, and it should be an encouragement to young short story writers to start out in this new field and do their best.

The Writers' Club at Columbia University is the originator of this publication. It presents a good representation of them and their work. They have the inspiration to do their best and trust to luck for the publication. And they have been fortunate, for not a month goes by without some of their poems or essays finding their way into print.

A very appealing poem is by Marion Nadelstein from the American Hebrew:

"Deen in my heart
Lies memories of little paths
I found in my journeyings.

Paths that were
That glided like green and golden snakes
Through tall grasses
And always led to some forbidden orchard.

Now the only paths I walk
Are the little twisted paths
Of memory.

VICTOR RECORDS
IN NEW RELEASES

John McCormack represents the voices this week with two melodies both waltz songs, "Marchetta," entitled a love song of "Old Mexico," is emotional, while "Indiana Moon" is familiar in its conception, beautifully handled.

Paderewski is doing a great work in bringing Chopin into millions of lives through his records. This week the great pianist records two of his compositions, "Etude in C Sharp Minor" and "Masurka in A Minor," both subtly and profoundly poetic.

"The Happiness Boys"—Billy Jones and Ernest Hare—are a combination new to the records. Their first act is "Oh! Eva," introducing the character of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" with comments from the audience, followed by the song "Oh! Eva." Just as one is in the mood for more, turn the record and play "Hard-Boiled Rose" by the same clever pair.

Johann Strauss is recorded this week by Victor Symphony orchestra, consisting of two full sets of the "waltz king's" Viennese waltzes, "Wine, Woman and Song" and "You and You," the latter from "Die Fledermaus." It is embroidered with Black Art.

Two fine slow waltzes are recorded this week by the S. S. Leviathan orchestra and the Troubadours, "Night Whistling Effects," agreeably modulated, and a vocal refrain, "Sunrise and You" is a melody waltz on two well-known melodies, introducing "Smilin' Through."

Barney Rapp and his orchestra make two records, "When Dixie Stars Are Playing Tuck-a-Boo," a light-moving fox trot, and "I Need Some Pettin'."

GAVAN SURPRISED
FOR CELEBRATION

When J. Charles Gavan, well-known book store man, entered his home in the Grand de Leon apartment, a few evenings ago, he met the real surprise of his life. It was Mr. Gavan's birthday—although the number is a secret—and his wife had arranged a surprise party for him.

Fourteen of his most intimate men friends, seated around the table with only the lights flickering from the candles on a big cake lighting the room, began singing "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," to celebrate his birthday, just as he entered the room.

Mrs. Gavan had most tastefully arranged the home setting, the rooms being decorated with cut flowers and ferns, with a profusion of pink carnations. After Mr. Gavan was escorted to the table to join his guests, each one in turn gave an original toast and later presented him with a simple and more or less humorous gift. For two or three hours fun and witticisms held sway, each man having his say, and each with something interesting to say about the host. Press Huddleston acted as toastmaster and kept the guests "on their toes."

Many Lovely Gifts.
Later in the evening after a number of handsome gifts had been received from other friends as well as a large number of letters and cards, Mr. Huddleston presented to Mr. and Mrs. Gavan two very handsome silver goblets, suitably engraved.

The entire evening was an enjoyable affair, arranged in unique and gracious manner by Mrs. Gavan as a surprise to her husband. While he was receiving the compliments of the day, Mrs. Gavan likewise was receiving many pretty compliments on the manner in which she carried out the occasion, the elegant dinner being one of the things that appealed largely to the guests.

Those present were Dr. Leo F. Huddleston.

MISS HAUFF SINGS
FOR PHILATHEA CLASS

Miss Madeline Hauff, well-known Atlanta singer and opera student, will sing for the Central Baptist Philathea class Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The class is one of the largest in the city, with H. W. McLarty as teacher.

Rebe Daniels has bobbed her hair. The discovery was made the other day when she appeared at the Paramount Long Island studio to prepare for departure for Nassau, where scenes are to be made for "Sinners in Heaven."

The Youth Of the Church

Realizing most keenly that the "young people" are the hope of the world, and recognizing that there exists a great untapped field among the youth of their church, the Woman's Missionary council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at its recent session held in Tampa, Fla., asked that the year 1925 be known as "Young People's Year." This was a splendid move.

It is in Christian lands alone that we find a church that cradles the babe in arms of love and guides its steps through childhood and youth in the paths of righteousness until a noble manhood and womanhood is developed.

The youth of the world belong to God, and the purpose of the church should be to throw the arms of love about the multitude of the young and woo them to the heart of God.

There is no more important question to be decided than this: What shall I do with my life? It is to be decided by the young people. In fact, the great issues are all decided by youth; for the great questions are those which sit around the hearthstone of the heart.

It is the duty of the church to seek in every way to bring all young people to know and love the Lord's service, for the church needs a world vision if there is ever to come a world redemption, and this vision can best be grasped by the young people.

The young people need for this day a sense of world comradeship and brotherhood, for just in proportion as this spirit enters into the hearts of the young and controls their lives to they find peace.

Young people are wanted—young people with a purpose—but they must be met with a challenge. They should be made to feel that the world needs their strength and wisdom to guide and govern the home, the church and the state.

Do any of the churches utilize the young people power? There are vast resources of youth in manhood and young womanhood and to reach and use them is the task of the church.

To the young people of the church God continues to say, "Behold, I set before you an open door;" and God waits for them to hear and answer the voice that came to the prophet in his vision: "Who will go for us?"

MRS. FRANK ATLER.

Woman's Auxiliary Annual Meeting.

Nearly every pledge over-subscribed and every pledge paid, was reported by the treasurer at the thirty-second annual meeting of the Georgia branch of the Woman's Auxiliary which met at the same time as the diocesan convention in Savannah, May 4-6. Preceding the opening business session, the entire delegation attended the opening of the diocesan convention, the celebration of the Holy Communion, and heard the bishop's annual address. The united thank offering custodian reported in hand a total of $1,910.61, and the secretary of boxes reported that 25 boxes to the value of $761.08 had been sent during the year, 12 to China, five to West Virginia, three to North Carolina, two to Virginia, two to Florida and one to California. Two speakers who had been invited to address the diocesan convention, also spoke at the auxiliary session, the Rev. Elwood Lindsay

Haines, of Liberia, who spoke on the William H. H. Ramsaur Memorial, and the Rev. W. H. Milton, D. D., of Wilmington, N. C., whose subject was "Woman's Work in the Fire Fields of Service." Mrs. W. N. Pratt of Savannah, was elected president, and the delegates elected to the meeting during the Provincial Synod, to be held in Wilmington, N. C., October 21-23, are Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. F. P. Reese, of Savannah; Mrs. Jackson H. Harris, of Augusta; and Mrs. J. W. Quiner, of Douglas; alternates, Mrs. Arthur Hazard, of Augusta; Mrs. J. P. Stewart, of Waycross; and Mrs. Thomas Purse, of Savannah. Immediately following the closing reading of Bishop Lloyd's words in the auxiliary handbook, a member arose and announced that she wished to subscribe $50 for a scholarship to the Ramsaur Memorial as a thank-offering for direct answer to prayer.

Books are wonderful help to a man—especially handbooks and pocket books.

HARMLESS LAXATIVE

All Children Love Its Pleasant Taste

Mother!

Your Constipated Child Needs "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry Mother! Even a fretful, feverish, bilious or constipated child loves the pleasant taste of "California Fig Syrup." This gentle, harmless laxative never fails to sweeten the stomach and open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. It doesn't cramp or overact. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup. (Adv.)

10,000 Women have voted the Sanitation Ticket

10,000 Atlanta women, and many thousand more, have voted the ticket for sanitary washing by sending their family wash to the Laundry.

Summertime is the most important time of the year to think of sanitation. Know where your clothes go. Send them to your laundry, with its big, airy, scrupulously clean plant, where they are washed clean through and through with mild white soap and rain-soft water.

Everything considered, the cost is a great deal less than you pay the insanitary, unreliable wash-woman.

Guard the family's health. Send your family wash to your Laundry.

Lutherans Present Japanese Pageant For School Funds

The woman's work of the Church of the Redeemer for the last six months has revolved around the program of the women of the whole United Lutheran Church of America. These women saw and felt the great need of a school in Japan where workers for our denomination could be trained. With earnestness and enthusiasm they assumed the task of providing a girl's school. The initial funds necessary for this undertaking amounted to $175,000 to be raised in two years.

Among the different means used in raising this amount, and perhaps the most effective one, was the presentation of the Japanese pageant, entitled "The Way," written by the wife of the first regular pastor of this congregation, Mrs. E. C. Cronk. In the presentation of this pageant alone our local women were enabled to send $100 to the treasurer of the Synodical society. Our children through their organization, "The Light Brigade," are also helping to reach this goal. The Light Brigade meets every week and has studied Japan and her children for the past six months. This work of our children is under the direction of a trained worker in the Women's Missionary society. The goal of $175,000 at this time is almost reached, with more than $150,000 in hand.

MRS. KARL L. REISNER.

Dr. Ayers At College Park.

The Ayers circle of the College Park Woman's Missionary society had as guest of honor at an informal social on last Thursday afternoon Dr. T. W. Ayers, of Hwang Hei, China. Following this society's custom of naming its circles for some missionary actively engaged on the home or foreign field, this group chose the name of "The Ayers Circle," the members pledging themselves to assist in the success of their adopted missionary's work by frequent letters, occasional gifts, and constant united prayers.

Dr. Ayers was introduced by Mrs. J. D. Smith, chairman of the circle, and cordially welcomed by Mrs. H. E. Wall, president of the society. A special feature of the occasion was the presentation to Dr. Ayers, by Miss Lorena Waller, of a purse containing several gold coins as a token of the love and esteem in which he is held by this circle.

In an informal talk, Dr. Ayers told of his initial work in establishing in China the first hospital owned and operated by Southern Baptists. Under Dr. Ayers' able superintendency, this hospital, from its humble beginning in a small, poorly built room used as a place and the saving and storing of wood, has grown into a splendid plant with every building constructed in accordance with the most improved hospital plans and supplied with the latest hospital equipment. Dr. Ayers went to China as the special representative of the Baptist women of Georgia, and through the many years of his sacrificial service as a medical missionary, Georgia women have upheld him with their prayers and with their money. They have rejoiced to feel that through him they have helped to cure the sick, heal the broken-hearted, and to lead into the way of salvation many of the Sinner's little ones on this suffering, sin-sick world.

Dr. Ayers is at home on furlough. They reached America just in time to attend the Southern Baptist convention recently held in Atlanta, and also to be present at the graduation of their daughter, Mary Lee, who has been a student at Bessie Pitt college for the last four years. Since coming to Atlanta, Mrs. Ayers, who for some time had not been well, has been undergoing special treatment in the Georgia Baptist hospital. All Baptists of the state will be glad to know that her condition is improving.

Miss Mathews Weds Robert P. Rankin.

Mrs. Susie Lee Mathews announces the marriage of her daughter, Susie Lee, to Robert Preston Rankin, on the 14th of June.

Plans Mission Study

MRS. C. W. KING.

Mission study chairman of the W. M. U. of the Atlanta association, who has planned a mission study school at the Baptist Tabernacle June 23-27.

Social Gathering At St. John's.

On Tuesday evening the Guild of St. John's church gave a most delightful entertainment to the parishioners and friends of the church. It was entirely informal but full of the very kindest and Christian feeling. A supper of three courses was served and plenty was provided for all. When all were seated at the various tables in the spacious rooms, Benjamin Neely, the senior warden, asked for quiet, while little Cress Fox said in blessing, "When I grow up, I will all enter into the spirit of the occasion and laughter and general good feeling was the ruling feature of the feast. Prominent men from the guild, assisted by several young ladies of the Young People's Service League, served the tables and no complaint marred the round of continued merriment. "Eat" at an end, the program was cleared and the program put on.

This was begun with a rhapsody solo, entitled "Dance of the Dolls," by Regina Pudney, a child of eleven years. A round of approval greeted this and she responded with a second, called "The Spanish Dance." Regina's playing for one of her age is indeed remarkable and the very generous applause from all present showed how highly her execution and performance were appreciated.

Master Frazier Moore followed with an instrumental piece and his performance received merited recognition from those present. The next number was the "Butterfly Dance" by Doris Caldwell. This made a hit with the spectators and repeated encores brought her out again in the "Parade of the Wooden Soldier." This child is only in her fifth year but shows grace and ease and bids fair to become an artist in the special dance. After this the young people of the parish, some eighteen in number, danced the Virginia reel. This carried many an older person present back to their earlier days and these revived memories brought forth a good round of generous applause. During the evening Mr. Hunter, with his double quartet of male voices, rendered various catchy and amusing songs. Visitors were in attendance from Decatur, Atlanta, other churches and parishes. All were impressed with the forward movement, active spirit and life of St. John's church. Much credit is due Mrs. Freeman Doss, president of the Woman's Guild, and the earnest members who assisted in carrying this get-together meeting through to a most successful termination. A lawn festival is in view for the coming month.

Mission Study School Planned.

A mission study school, under the auspices of the W. M. U. of the Atlanta Baptist association, will open at the Baptist tabernacle Monday, June 23, and continue each successive morning including Friday, the 27th, from 10:30 o'clock to 12 m. Classes—"The Honorable Japanese Fan," taught by Mrs. G. V. Whitton for Sunbeam leaders. "Ann of Ava," taught by Mrs. J. H. Cain, of M. A. S. and Y. W. A. and counselors. "A Decade of W. M. U. Service," taught by Mrs. C. W. King, for women. Tests will be given on these books and seals awarded those who do the necessary work. There will be singing of missionary hymns, a short story, morning, followed by presentation of some phase or plan of work for the Atlanta association, or a brief discussion of methods of study before going to classes for the study period. Classes will adjourn promptly at 12 o'clock. These books may be purchased at the Baptist headquarters in Palmer building, third floor. Prices—"Decade of W. M. U. Service," Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 60 cents. "Ann of Ava," Paper, 50 cents; cloth, 75 cents. "The Honorable Japanese Fan," Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 65 cents.

Although primitive water wheels are still used in China and Japan, more than 75 per cent of the mills are equipped with power grinding machinery.

City Missions Board Meets.

The June meeting of the Methodist board of city missions was well attended, notwithstanding a steady downpour of rain. Sixteen churches were represented.

In the absence of Mrs. S. F. Boykin, president, Mrs. A. L. Norris, vice-president, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Lynch, of Druid Hills church, gave a helpful and inspiring talk on "Keeping Sweet," reading various selections from the Scriptures to emphasize her remarks. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved. Mrs. John Manget, treasurer, gave the financial report. All bills paid and a balance of $190.54.

Mrs. Rapp, chairman of house committee, reported the gift of a dresser and bed to be used in the "Wesley home." The gift was accepted with thanks.

The head of new business, plans were discussed for the vacation Bible school. The sessions will be held at St. Luke's church on Pearl street and will be in charge of Mrs. W. P. Jack of Emory university. Miss Mary Nichols, resident worker, gave a report of the activities under her supervision. She closed the session's work with a May party to the girls, six having completed the work in the sewing class. After a program of songs and a Scripture recitation, the girls were given certificates and a luncheon was served. The girls wore white voile dresses, which were their own handiwork.

Miss Howard, head resident, told of the supper given by the board to the volunteer workers of the conference of Y. W. C. A., held in Washington, D. C. Miss Howard spoke of her plans in regard to carrying her campaign to Cape Hatteras.

It was voted unanimously to send Miss Howard, as the board representative, to the conference of mission workers, to be held at Lake Junaluska in July.

Miss McKinney, who will assist in the Bible school, was introduced. The unfinished business was left in the hands of the efficient committee. The meeting was adjourned with prayer.

A Benefactress To Children.

The many friends of Mrs. Andrew Stewart will be glad to know she is resting comfortably. Mrs. Stewart has made a brave fight and it is hoped she is on the road to recovery. It was she who made possible shelter, food and kindergarten training for many little ones out in the Bellwood district near the Exposition mills. Money thus spent draws a dividend in two worlds. In the present world Mrs. Stewart gives these children a chance of becoming law-abiding, self-respecting citizens, being an asset to their government. In the eternal world, who she stands before the bar of justice, how gladly will the hands of these little children go up for Mrs. Stewart and the last dividend will be better than the first, for it will be eternal.

This woman, who has been entrusted with wealth, chooses thus to give a part of it to the helpless, to the innocent, and in doing so, it is twice blessed in the giving and in the receiving.

MRS. T. L. LEWIS.

Love and Friendship Hath No Bounds.

A message comes from Opelika, Ala., asking for the prayers and sympathy of the Federated Church Women. This reader of the page is a "shut-in" and feels the cord of sympathy and love reaching over to our sister state. Later we hope to get a fuller, broader view of her gladly showing, though confined within four walls, the presence of God is there, and the sunshine and pure air is there, while the vision of eternity grows brighter and nearer as the years go by.

MRS. T. L. L.

Briefly Told

The department of home missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is doing a most helpful work in providing training and teaching through their schools for pastors. It is expected that one-fourth of the pastors of the church will attend these schools this summer.

It will soon be time when the church workers will enjoy the privileges of Blue Ridge missionary conference. This is the Northfield of the south, where people of all denominations and all countries visit and mingle with each other and make their contributions to the study of the task of Christianizing the world. Remember the time, June 27 to July 6, and help make the conference this year the greatest of all the Blue Ridge conferences.

The social service federation composed of the social service superintendents of the North and South Atlanta districts are holding interesting and helpful monthly meetings at the First Methodist church. At a meeting held recently, talks were given by Mrs. J. Houston Johnston and Burr Blackburn. Both talks were on subjects of most vital interest.

It will be of great interest to the friends of Rev. M. B. Stokes to learn that he has been recently appointed by Bishop Boaz, conference superintendent of Sunday school work of the Korean conference. Rev. Stokes, while on his furlough last year, studying at Emory university, gave freely of his time and help to the churches of the north and south Atlanta districts.

The Daughters of the King. Four new members of the Daughters of the King were admitted to the order at a beautiful service of admission held in the Church of the Incarnation at 8 o'clock Sunday, June 8.

All Saints chapter, Daughters of the King, assisted Rev. Mr. Bicknell in a service at the Home for Incurables Sunday afternoon, June 15. Mrs. Osmond and Mrs. Davis, of other chapters, were also there to help with the service which seemed to give much comfort and satisfaction to the patients in the home.

June 15, being the third Sunday in the month, was observed by every chapter of the Daughters of the King throughout the world in the taking of their corporate communion.

Mrs. W. J. Neel, of Cartersville, president of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of Georgia, known and loved throughout the state, will be the honor guest at a luncheon given Thursday, July 3, at the Atlanta Woman's club by the W. M. U. of the Atlanta association. In the absence of Mrs. W. A. Hartman, superintendent, Mrs. Harry Etheridge, assistant superintendent, will preside. About 300 women including members from all the 60 Baptist churches and members of the W. M. U. state and city boards will attend the luncheon.

From Southern Baptist headquarters at Nashville, Tenn., came the announcement that the W. M. U. have paid in the $15,000,000 of the $75,000,000 campaign, which that organization assumed as its share in the launching of the campaign five years ago. Now the general officers of the union announce that the women will undertake to pay the $7,000,000 additional which they oversubscribed in their pledges. Let our women remember that the obligation of redeeming a self-made pledge far transcends any obligation of meeting a perfectly just apportionment.

Tango Club Dance At Hurst Hall.

The members and friends of the Tango club will dance at Hurst hall on Wednesday evening, June 28. The Rainbow orchestra will furnish the music. Dancing begins at 8:30 o'clock. Professor Edward S. Hurst will be in charge.

Missionary Societies Held District Meet at Marietta

The Woman's Missionary societies of the Marietta district held their annual district meeting at Waleska, Ga., June 5 and 6. Mrs. L. M. Autrey, district secretary, presided most graciously, in fact, so well that the presiding elder, Brother England, who was present, came near to embarrassing her and delighting the rest of us with his unique compliments in her behalf.

Mrs. Autrey met some of the visitors at Marietta, and motored them over the hills to Waleska. Oh! the beauty of those hills—

"The manifold deep shades," the glints and tints of shimmering green, the billowy rolls of fertile fields, the mystic heights of woodland. It was a glorious drive that early morning.

Guests of Rhinehart. The guests were entertained at the dormitory of Rhinehart college, one of our own Methodist schools for mountain boys and girls. Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey C. Sharpe were our host and hostess. After knowing them and realizing all that the ladies of Waleska had done in providing food, linen, etc., for our comfort, I wished I were a mountain girl. I wanted to go to school at Rhinehart.

New acquaintances were made and old ones renewed in the shortest possible time. Mrs. Autrey, noted for promptness, ushered us into session.

At the regular weekly missionary meetings every woman knows there is always more to do and talk about than can ever be adequately covered. Imagine fourteen societies in assembly each one with reports to make, information to give, inspiration to impart and problems to discuss! These dear district secretaries are to be commended for their patience and sweet disposition. Mrs. Autrey had the moral support and presence of Mrs. J. C. White, of the South Atlanta district and Miss Bert Winter, of the Elberton district. Those hands could have been more firmly upheld than hers, with these two: Mrs. White, all gentleness and encouragement on one side, and Miss Bert Winter, all fire, energy, enthusiasm and helpfulness on the other?

Then there were Mrs. Wallace Rogers with pictures and explanations of the needs in our mission houses and schools, and Miss Bertha Tucker from Korea. When one has been taught to reverence a woman who is doing the Lord's work, as I have, she feels somewhat awed and a bit sanctified were to be in the presence of a real live missionary. To hear Miss Tucker speak in all love of the little Hermit nation, of the needs and problems there, the heart swells with gratitude that God has chosen such great souls as Miss Tucker to use in the spreading of the good news even into the by-ways of the nations of earth.

"America's Hour." The Canton women people presented "Striking America's Hour." The wonderful truth of America's responsibility to the light gripped our hearts as never before. The pageant was beautiful.

Everybody was made sad because of Mrs. M. E. Tilly's illness throughout the entire time. The children were at a loss without their beloved leader.

Mrs. W. F. Wells, of Hapeville, gave for the noon devotionals, God's gospel of love as found in the minor prophets. For the sake of the numbers of children who were present on the second day she told the story of "David, the Giant Killer."

At meetings of this kind everybody makes mention especially of the leaders and noted speakers. Let me speak in behalf of the women of the auxiliaries who labored so long and well that the report of each society should show the 10 per cent increase or at least an approach thereto, that new societies should be organized and ministered, that the work might in all its departments go forward. Isn't it wonderful?

Out the window of the assembly hall could be seen Bird mountain, so named because of the multitude of little feathered folk who make music there all day long. The women coming from over the hills with their different tunes, yet each blending in the whole melody were like them.

"Not one discordant note was heard. In tune with one another. Each little happy singing bird. Made music with his brother."

Duke Home In Charlotte, N. C.

A recent issue of Vogue carries pictures and notes on the home of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Duke in Charlotte, N. C., which was decorated by Mrs. Emmott Buel, a former Georgian, who is one of the most notable and artistic decorators in the country and who resides in New York city.

The Duke house is one of charming interiors. The black-and-white tiled entrance hall is built around three old Italian architectural paintings in tempera, which is the reason for the soft biscuit colored walls, while copper-colored damask gives the warmth to the hall.

Between the windows, which reach to the floor, are marble-topped walnut commodore holding plaster pink urns, above which are mirrors painted in old blue and gold. A pair of graceful Directoire sofas placed under the paintings are upholstered in striped silk in blue and copper color and the cushions at either end are of old blue velvet. Two bronze column lamps with shades of marbled paper are set on small tables at one end of the hall.

The drawing room is of exceptional proportions, but is expressive of charming informality. The paneled walls are painted sky-blue, gold lines outlining the inner mould of the panels, with curtains of soft rose satin. Chintz slipcovers on the furniture, a taupe-colored rug, part of the furniture in rose and blue, taking their tones from the two handsome paintings by Huet, and hanging over the Adam mantel is an old English portrait of a lady. The sun room, which is entered from the drawing room through means of long French windows, has a white and black tiled floor corresponding with the entrance hall. A snuff-colored marble mantel is ornamented with an alabaster clock. A Persian rug partly covers the floor, and there is always a brilliant profusion of flowers from the gardens surrounding the home, which add an effective note of color to this room.

The harmonious blue walls, casement cloth curtains, painted furniture, go to make up its decorative features, and a Directoire linen which covers the furniture shows blue, mauve, and gray designs on corn-colored background, and the twin lampshades are of pleated primrose-yellow book-linen.

The Georgian period of the dining room produces its own particular charm. Green-yellow chairs covered in darker green damask, striped yellow damask curtains, and a rug in egg-plant purple go to make a most charming effect. Over the Adam mantel hangs a large mirror which reflects the beauty of the furnishings. A very wonderful needlework screen shuts from view the door opening into the butler's pantry.

French gray walls, deep blue taffeta hangings, slip-covers of blue and mauve chintz, amethyst glass lamps with shades in faded pink offer a feeling of restfulness in the bedroom, which opens on a balcony.

Mrs. Duke is a former resident of Atlanta, and she was Miss Nannaline Holt, of Macon, one of the most beautiful women in the south, who is a leader in the social life of New York city. Mr. and Mrs. Duke also have a beautiful home on Fifth avenue, and own an estate at Soperville, New Jersey. Their only daughter is Miss Doris Duke, who is a young girl of charming personality.

Miss Scott Honors Miss Anderson.

Miss Elizabeth Scott entertained a group of close friends at luncheon at her home on Westminster drive on Saturday in honor of Miss Louise Anderson, the guest of Miss Sue Brown Sterne.

The exquisitely appointed luncheon table was beautifully decorated in white and yellow summer flowers, and the mints and ices carried cut the color scheme.

Miss Scott wore a smart short dress of white silk with black trimmings. Miss Anderson wore a white sport suit of heavy silk crepe. Miss Sterne was costumed in a sport model of heavy crepe in white with Japanese embroidery.

Parties Planned For June Visitors Feature Calendar

The forthcoming week will be made exceptionally gay by the presence of so many charming June visitors, for the social calendar is filled with parties planned in honor of them. Sunday concerts at the social clubs and hotels, tea-dances at the Georgian Terrace and Biltmore, weekly dances on the roof gardens at the Capital City club and other social gaieties will feature in the entertainment of these summer visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Ellison Adams, of New York, who are with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter F. Clarke, are on their first visit to Atlanta since their marriage in the spring, and will be complimented at a series of entertainments. Mrs. Royal Ingersoll, of Washington, D. C., who is on her summer visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Van Harlingen; Miss Valinda Hill, of Durham, N. C., the attractive guest of Mrs. Clark Howell, Jr., who is being feted at informal parties; Miss Mary Shedd's popular guest, Miss Frances Stahlman, of Nashville, Tenn., another lovely visitor; Miss Louise Anderson, of Port Gibson, the guest of Miss Sue Brown Sterne; a former Atlantian, Miss Katherine Wooten, of Washington, D. C., who was prominent in social and literary circles of Atlanta and after going to the national capital became prominently identified with the intellectual and exclusive social life there, is being entertained at informal gaieties during her short visit here; Miss Jeannette Kidd, of Baltimore, a charming member of the younger society contingent, who is visiting Miss Mary Reid; Mrs. Michael Hoke's attractive guest, Miss Frances Pollock, of Kingston, N. C., who has been the central figure at informal affairs for the past week and will continue to be entertained during her stay in Atlanta this week; Mrs. James Thomas, of Knoxville, Tenn., and Mrs. Minnie Tucker Baker, of Raleigh, N. C., the guests of Mrs. Charles E. Harman, who came for the Harman-Lindsey wedding; Mrs. Graton Phillips, of San Francisco, Calif., and Mrs. James Beresford, of Stamford, Conn., who are visiting Mrs. Asa Candler, Jr., at Briarcliff, her home in Druid Hills, and who came to Atlanta to attend the Candace Thompson marriage of the past week; Mrs. D. W. Whitmore, of New York, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Haynes, who has many friends in Atlanta, made upon her former visits here; Mrs. Howard Fischer, of Buffalo, N. Y., who is visiting her mother, Mrs. M. L. Baldwin; Miss Frances Biddle, of San Francisco, Calif., student at Washington seminary, will spend part of the summer with Mrs. H. B. Chamberlin, of 1695 Peachtree road; Mrs. Calvin M. McClung, of Knoxville, Tenn., and Miss Betty Bonner, of California, Mrs. Julian Fields' guests, make an interesting personnel.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams Are Honor Guests.

Mrs. Peter F. Clarke entertained at an informal tea Saturday at her home on Peachtree place in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. F. Ellison Adams, of New York, who are her guests. Mrs. Ellison before her marriage was Miss Penelope Clarke, popular and admired Atlanta belle.

Their reception rooms were attractive in their decoration of summer flowers, artistically arranged on the mantels and bookcases.

Mrs. Clarke was assisted in entertaining by Miss Joan Clarke and Mrs. William Earle Wood, Jr.

The tea table was overlaid with a cover of Venetian lace and centered with a large silver basket of pink roses. Silver candlesticks holding unshaded pink tapers were placed at intervals.

Mrs. Clarke wore a gown of French blue crepe.

Mrs. Adams was gowned in sprig-colored crepe.

The guest list included a number of Mrs. Adams' friends and their husbands.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dodd entertained at dinner Friday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Adams at their home on Lombardy way.

Chattanooga Belle To Wed Dr. Dunn.

Of wide interest throughout the south is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Clara Elizabeth Whips, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Dr. William Miles Dunn.

Miss Whips is the daughter of Mrs. Edward Williamson Whips, of Chattanooga. Miss Whips is a charming young woman, possessing a graceful personality, and is beloved by a wide circle of friends. She is a graduate of Agnes Scott college and is an accomplished musician. She graduated in music from the New York University School of Music, and will be a delightful acquisition to Atlanta's social and musical life.

Dr. Dunn is the son of Mrs. S. A. Faulkner, of Lancaster, S. C., and is a representative of distinguished North and South Carolina families. Dr. Dunn is well known in Atlanta's medical profession. He graduated from Davidson college, in North Carolina, the Johns Hopkins Medical college, in Baltimore, and Massachusetts General hospital.

He is a member of the Capital City club and the Piedmont Driving club and is a popular member of society circles and the medical profession.

The marriage of Miss Whips and Dr. Dunn will be an interesting social event of Saturday morning, July 12, taking place at the First Presbyterian church in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Dr. Dunn and his bride-elect will be at home after August 15, at the Georgian Terrace hotel.

Mrs. Edwin Romberger will entertain Wednesday at bridge for Mrs. Adams.

Report on Real Daughters

Real Daughters are very near all D. A. R. members, and Georgia Daughters will be interested in this report read by Mrs. John R. Whitehead, Albany, national vice chairman.

The work which has been accomplished by the national committee Real Daughters since the congress of 1923 has been most encouraging.

The enthusiastic activities, the wide-spread interest and diligent research work made by the vice, state and chapter chairmen to get in touch with and bring into membership the living Real Daughters of the American Revolution, and to locate and mark the graves of those deceased with the D. A. R. Real Daughters' bronze tablet, has marked the year's work with success.

Cabaret & Co., makers of the official markers, report that they have made and shipped 26 markers since the last congress, 1923, as follows: Three markers shipped to New York, one to Missouri, one to Ohio, two to Michigan, two to Texas, one to Utah, one to West Virginia, one to Illinois, one to Kansas, one to Pennsylvania, one to Alabama, one to Tennessee and five to Minnesota.

State chairman writes: "We expect to place two markers Flag day, 1924, and we shall have all graves in Minnesota marked with the Real Daughters' tablet." Grave of one Minnesota Real Daughter will be marked in 1924 in Nebraska.

The report from the office of the treasurer general, dated March 20, 1924, shows that there were 19 living Real Daughters at that time. New York 4, Massachusetts 4, Connecticut 2, Pennsylvania 1, Ohio 2, Iowa 1, Wisconsin 1, New Hampshire 2, Michigan 1, and Oklahoma 1. Nine have died the past year.

The list of Real Daughters receiving pensions are 15, and the average age of these is over 80 years.

Each year the ranks grow thinner, and within a short space of time the opportunity to tenderly care for these memory of Real Daughters—the living links of the American Revolution itself, will have vanished.

It is a source of constant pride and joy to the D. A. R. that the last years of these women—sacred charges of our organization—are brightened by the attentions and comforts given in local tribute to the heroic deeds of the fathers who fought in the Revolution.

On March 9, 1924, the Throntekia chapter, Albany, Ga., marked the grave of Mrs. Sarah G. Asho Hall and Mrs. Mary S. Jones Culiff with the official bronze marker, and the occasion was made memorable by the beautiful tribute paid these Real Daughters by the president general, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, as she dedicated and placed the memorial wreath over each tablet and as the bugler sounded each a golden link was forged between 1776 and 1924.

Florida—No Real Daughter living or dead, but in Pensacola, Fla., Dorothy Walton, wife of George Walton, is buried, and the following inscription on the tombstone: "Died in Pensacola, Sept. 12th, 1832, aged 73 years. Mrs. Dorothy Walton, a native of the state of Georgia, a matron of the revolution, consort and relief of George Walton, a signer of the Declaration of Independence."

The papers of Mrs. Kitty Gale, Arkansas, were lost in the mail, and she died before being admitted to the national society.

When the state chairman, New York, inquired of Mrs. Henry B. Daughter, 90 years of age, what she wanted she replied: "A tea kettle to hold a quart, a tea pot and a black and white gingham dress." These gifts were provided her.

It is most gratifying to learn of the interest shown in Real Daughters by D. A. R. chapters, to grasp the opportunity to enroll them as honored guests at chapter meetings, to observe their birthdays and on special occasions by tokens and gifts, and finally to perform the last sad duties in marking their graves with Real Daughters' bronze tablets.

Apparently the feature work of the national committee of Real Daughters of the national society, will be to search out and locate and mark the graves of the deceased Real Daughters with the official markers. Feeling that we can pay no greater tribute to the

Atlanta Girl Scouts Will Hold Joint Summer Meetings

Following the custom of the past three summers, Atlanta Girl Scout troops will hold joint meetings during the summer months with the various captains in charge, each chosen for her special ability in the particular activity which she is to lead.

Miss Louise Cramer, who will lead the swimming club, is an expert swimmer herself and besides leading the Girl Scout Swimming club is one of the instructors in the life-saving classes conducted under the auspices of the Junior Red Cross. Girl Scouts who can swim well are urged to join the life-saving class. The others should join the Thursday morning swimming club for instruction in the strokes.

Mrs. C. J. Cofer, who will lead the Glee club, is well known for her interest in music and Troop 22, of which she is lieutenant, is known as "the singing troop." It is hoped to make the Girl Scout Glee club a permanent organization and a valuable addition to the musical life of Atlanta.

Miss Ruth Crusselle, who will lead the "See Atlanta" Hiking club, has made a special study of the interesting places around Atlanta and has planned a program of hikes of particular interest to scouts working for the Pathfinder merit badge.

Mrs. Karl Karston will be in charge of the Girl Scout day camp, assisted by some of the other leaders. Mrs. Karston has had training courses at Camp Juliette Low for the past two seasons and has also conducted her own troop camps. The day camp will be conducted along regular camp lines, with pioneering, outdoor fire-building and cooking, nature study, map making and other outdoor activities. These joint meetings are open to any registered Girl Scout in Atlanta and the nearby towns, who should enroll for the clubs in which they are most interested at Girl Scout headquarters, 84 Marietta street, any day between 9:30 and 1 o'clock. The schedule of clubs follows: Swimming, Spiller's pool, Thursday mornings, advanced class at 9 o'clock; beginners' class at 9:30 o'clock; begins June 26; fee, 15 cents for use of pool, lessons are free. Glee club, Eggleston hall, corner of West Peachtree and North avenue; Wednesdays, 9-10 a.m.; begins June 25. "See Atlanta" Hiking club, meet at Girl Scout headquarters on Wednesdays at 9 o'clock; begins June 25. Day camp, Alexander woods, on Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; opens June 26.

When President Coolidge announced the appointment of a national committee on out-of-door life, charged with developing a national policy which will co-ordinate all activities in behalf of outdoor recreation, and formulating a program to serve as a guide for future action, he insisted that we must put the chance for outdoor pleasure within the grasp of all our people. His act is national recognition of the importance of directed play as a means of character, vocational and social development.

The Girl Scouts offer to the 200,000 girls between the ages of 10 and 18 years, who compose their national membership, the opportunity for wholesome, constructive recreation under capable leadership. They are endorsed locally by the Community Chest as one of the foremost social agencies doing preventive work.

Georgia Tourists Are Entertained.

Gainesville, Ga., June 21.—The members of the "Get Acquainted" tour of Georgia under the auspices of the Savannah board of trade delightfully entertained on Tuesday morning at breakfast at Brenau college, as guests of the Rotary club.

The guests were welcomed by Dr. H. J. Pearce, president of Brenau college and the Rotary club. Talks were made by R. L. Meador, of Gainesville, responded to by Mayor Sea brook, of Savannah, and Gordon Sausser, chairman of the Savannah board of trade.

The personnel of the "Get Acquainted" club, including the Gainesville Rotary club, numbered two hundred and fifty men. The occasion proved very delightful. At 11 a. m. the guests boarded the train for Atlanta.

DeKalb County Mothers To Meet.

A mothers' meeting, under the direction of the DeKalb county public health committee, will be held in the Decatur Presbyterian church Monday afternoon, June 23, at 3 o'clock. This meeting will be addressed by Miss Verna B. Thornhill, director of the hygiene and propaganda unit, United States public health service, the subject, "Mouth Hygiene." Miss Thornhill, together with Miss Mary A. Knight, of the same unit of public health service, are giving instructive and timely assistance to the DeKalb county school clinic recently opened in Decatur. All women are urged to attend.

Buckeye Woman's Club Meeting.

The Buckeye Woman's club will hold its last meeting of the season on Tuesday afternoon, June 21. The members are asked to assemble promptly at 4:30 o'clock at the pavilion at Grant park.

There will be a short business session, which will conclude with the installation of the new officers by Mrs. Edwin M. Helbig, president of the club.

Tuesday's meeting is in the nature of a picnic. The husbands and children are to be the guests and a picnic supper will be served at 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Pond Honored At Reception In Tennille, Ga.

Tennille, Ga., June 21.—The Colonades, home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Franklin, was the scene of a large and brilliant reception on Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. Franklin entertained in compliment to her guest, Mrs. Lyander C. Pond, of Salt Lake City. Gladioli and hydrangeas were used with artistic effect to carry out the color scheme of pink and green. Receiving with the hostess and honoree were Mrs. Louella Kendall Rogers, mother of Mrs. Franklin, and Miss Julia Franklin, her daughter. The hostess wore a gown of turquoise georgette beaded in roses; Mrs. Pond was strikingly handsome in jade green georgette elaborately beaded. Mrs. Rogers wore black crepe de chine combined with Chantilly lace, and Miss Franklin was dainty in a white sequin robe over blue. About 300 guests were invited and during reception hours the home was thronged with visitors from Tennille, Sandersville and other places of the county and state.

Receiving the guests at the door were Mrs. C. P. Brown, Mrs. O. M. Adams, Mrs. George Franklin, Miss Alice Traflet Smith, Mrs. W. B. Stokes. Introducing guests to the receiving line were Mrs. J. M. Brown, Miss Louise Brown, Mrs. Wilbur Smith, Mrs. George Riley and Mrs. J. E. Howell.

Directing to the guest book were Mrs. W. H. Colgate, Mrs. S. C. Knox and Mrs. D. E. McMaster. The guest book was in the form of an old-fashioned girl, with covers beautifully hand-painted by Miss Julia Franklin. At the table where the guests registered, Misses Christine and Grace Carroll presided and later the book was presented to Mrs. Pond to carry to her western home as a memento of the occasion.

In the dining room, pink and green candles glowed in crystal candelabra on the table alternating with compartments of mints in these colors around the central decoration of gladioli. Presiding here were Mrs. T. Wells Smith, Mrs. B. F. Jacobson, Mrs. H. C. Carroll, Mrs. D. R. Thomas, Mrs. J. N. Scott and Mrs. C. V. Smith. Serving Neapolitan cream and cakes were Mrs. L. D. Woods, Miss Aileen Pritchard, Miss Elizabeth Brown, Miss Kathleen Roatright, Miss Mary Smith and Miss Mattie Smith. The punch table occupied an attractive nook on the spacious colonnade and the guests were served by Miss Rosa McMaster, of Waynesboro; Miss Rosabel Brown, Miss Adeline Lee, Misses Virginia and Helen Stephens, Miss Mary Buggett and Miss Marguerite Smith.

Throughout the afternoon delightful music was furnished by Mrs. Rose Smith, Miss Margaret Thier, Miss Annie Mary Smith, Mrs. W. R. Smith, Miss Will Brantley, Mrs. Colon Sessions, Mrs. C. R. Hutchins, Misses Helen and Grace Little, piano and violin.

Miss Huff, Bride-Elect, Honored at Bridge-Tea.

Misses Kathleen Rodgers and Ruth Burroughs entertained at a bridge-tea on June 14 at the home of Miss Lou Huff, a charming bride-elect of July.

The house was decorated with a profusion of spring and summer flowers attractively arranged. The handsomely appointed table held as a central decoration a lovely basket of gladioli and spengelia.

Miss Rodgers received her guests wearing a lovely model of white Eleuella crepe. Miss Burroughs wore a sport model of white and yellow Roman crepe. Miss Huff was beautifully gowned in an afternoon frock of blue Russian crepe trimmed with Venetian lace and white tassels.

The guest of honor was presented a handsome pillow of filet lace over rose satin. The top score prize, which was won by Miss Huff, was a shower rossette of orchid and white. For consolation two Madeira handkerchiefs were given. The cut prize was a hand-painted powder jar and puff.

The guests included Miss Nell Richards, Miss Kathryn Huff, Miss Elizabeth Miller, Miss Minimal Rodgers, Miss Lorene Oakley, Mrs. Ben Dorsey Caswell, of Sanford, Fla.; Mrs. Ernest D. Kitchen, Mrs. Marian G. Perry, Mrs. L. Lawson Bell, Mrs. Emma Thornton Mayes and Mrs. Edward P. Rodgers.

Many pre-nuptial parties are being given for Miss Huff.

Mrs. Marian G. Perry and Mrs. Ernest D. Kitchen entertained the bridal party at a matinee followed by a tea Saturday afternoon.

Misses Elizabeth Miller and Nell Richards will entertain at bridge July 5. Miss Wynette Manning will honor Miss Huff July 12. Mrs. Ben Dorsey Caswell and Miss Kathryn Huff will give a bridge-luncheon on July 4.

Miss Morris Weds Mr. Brooks.

Augusta, Ga., June 21.—A very lovely and interesting social event of the week was the marriage of Miss Retta Morris and Arthur Eugene Brooks, which was solemnized Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Miller Morris, on the Wrightsboro road.

The attractive home was beautifully adorned with fragrant mid-summer flowers of varying tones of pink. The ceremony was read before an altar of delicate green and handsome gladioli blossoms in all their exquisite loveliness.

Miss Harriett Moran rendered the wedding march announcing the entrance of the bridal party with the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin." Miss Sara Morris was her sister's only attendant.

The bride looked charming in an artistic gown of orchid georgette elaborately headed in iridescent and worn with a becoming picture hat in black bedecked with burnt goose feathers. Her flowers were bride's roses showered with lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a charming costume of powder blue crepe hemstitched and elaborately trimmed in Irish lace, with a large white picture hat band with delicate shaded pink ostrich plumes, and her flowers were vari-colored peonies caught with pink tulle.

Dr. W. L. Pierce read the impressive ceremony which was followed by an informal wedding breakfast for the two families and a few friends. Mrs. Brooks is the elder of four charming daughters of Mr. and Mrs. T. Miller Morris and has a delightful personality and fascinating manner. Mr. Brooks is one of the best known young men in the city.

Miss Hopkins Weds James Ira Rorke At Home Ceremony

Covington, Ga., June 21.—Of interest to a wide circle of friends was the marriage of Miss Leah Mae Hopkins, of Covington, and James Ira Rorke, of Tallapoosa, Ga., which was a quiet event taking place at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Hopkins, in North Covington, Monday evening, June 16, at 7:30 o'clock.

Rev. Walker Combs, pastor of the First Baptist church, performed the impressive ceremony.

The bride was married in a becoming midnight blue suit. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Hopkins, of North Covington, and is a pretty young woman of the blonde type, with pleasing personality.

The groom is a prosperous young business man holding a responsible position with the Western Union Telegraph company.

Mr. and Mrs. Rorke left for a motor trip to Tallapoosa, where they will be the guests of the groom's mother for a short visit before leaving for Tampa, Fla., where they will make their home for the present.

The only guests attending the marriage were Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Dingler, Mr. and Mrs. P. Lester, C. Flowers, of Stone Mountain, grandfather of the bride, and Dr. A. S. Hopkins and family.

More Kindergartens Urged By State Association Head

Mrs. C. A. Ver Nooy, of Athens, president of the Georgia Kindergarten association, who will lead a movement in Georgia to incorporate kindergartens in the state school system.

Mrs. C. A. Ver Nooy, of Athens, president of the Georgia Kindergarten association, says:

"The Fisher education bill passed in England during the great war guarantees to every child in England the right to all the education of which he is capable. Should Georgia do less?"

The nursery and nursery schools of England have taken the best features of the kindergarten. Shall we not be loyal to the spirit of the kindergarten?"

The program of the demonstration is for a five-year period, financed by the commonwealth fund and directed by the child health association in Athens. This committee is made up of members from the staff of the American Child Health association and the commonwealth fund.

The program of the demonstration stresses the importance of the preschool age and points out the great opportunity the kindergarten furnishes for the teaching and creation of proper health habits.

The urgent need of state kindergartens and the part they would play in raising the standard of health and education was also discussed as was the kindergarten program of the Athens pre-school circle, which features child health and parenthood training.

College Museum Draws Attention Of Girls' Clubs

The Camp Fire Girls, Scouts and Bluebirds of the Atlanta Woman's club visited Emory university on Friday in a body and viewed the different articles in the college museum. The group was received by Mrs. W. F. Melton, secretary of the club, and carried to the various departments of the college, which interested and appealed to the young ladies.

Mrs. Tom Brooke, chairman of the junior department, was assisted in arranging the party by Mrs. Paul LaBlanc, Miss Nell Enloe, Mrs. Heywood Simmons, Mrs. M. D. Forham and others. About twenty-five girls enjoyed the trip and were greatly benefited by the study of entomology and natural science. Refreshing drinks were served and a delightful afternoon was enjoyed.

The leaders of the junior department are especially anxious for the members of the club to attend the great ceremonial which will be staged by the Camp Fire Girls of the city Monday night at Piedmont park at 8 o'clock. At this time the national executive, Miss Florence Heintz, will be present and address the organization.

Miss Mary Lou Wilson, Atlanta executive, will stage the ceremonial, which will be one of the largest ever put on in this city.

A group of national officers of the Camp Fire Girls who have been attending a camp in Macon, Ga., will visit Stone Mountain while en route south, going from there to Camp Highland and on to Atlanta, where they may attend the demonstration Monday night.

Several of the officers of the Atlanta Woman's club visited Camp Highland recently and witnessed a most impressive ceremonial, when a large number of girls played the organ in the Camp Fire organization.

Lovely Ohio Girl Entertains Junior Chamber of Commerce

Miss Lucile Sauer, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who entertained the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce upon the occasion of its visit in that city several weeks ago. She is a beautiful and attractive young girl.

On Wednesday, June 25, the general assembly of Georgia will convene for its annual session. Mrs. Sanford Jacobs, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, says: "I earnestly hope that the women of Georgia will impress upon their representatives, both by personal interview and letters, the need of voting for the bills endorsed by the league."

The bills that the league is endorsing were adopted at the state convention in January and are as follows: A tax bill drawn along the lines suggested by the tax commission of 1923 appointed by Governor Walker; a bill to abolish the fee system as a method of remunerating county officials of Georgia; a bill to obtain an appropriation for the Shepherd-Townsend work in Georgia. There has never been an appropriation made by the Georgia legislature for this much needed work.

The league also, when the children's code commission is made, will lend its support to the things that the commission considers necessary.

Mrs. Gay says: "If the women throughout the state who are interested in this work will urge upon their representatives that they vote for these bills, it will greatly lessen the work of the chairman steering them, as a legislator is more responsive to the wishes of the people 'back home' than he is to a small group of Atlanta women to whom he feels no responsibility."

Luncheon at Club Institute. The luncheon at Mercer Institute for Women at Macon last Friday was in charge of the Georgia League of Women Voters.

Mrs. L. L. Hendren, state president, presided. Among the speakers were Miss Viola Ross Napier, of Macon, the woman representative from Bibb county; Mrs. Sanford Gay, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, and Mrs. R. J. Turman, chairman of efficiency in government in the Atlanta League of Women Voters.

Miss Napier presented a plank of the Macon League of Women Voters, and is still interested in the work. There will be a special board meeting of the Atlanta League of Women Voters for headquarters, 504 Conolly building, next Tuesday, June 24, at 10 o'clock. All the members of the board are urged to be present as plans for finances and other important matters will be discussed and decided upon.

News From Headquarters. Heartened by the fact that the republican party platform included virtually all the league's suggested planks, the National League of Women Voters will ask democratic approval of similar proposals at the national gathering of that party in New York next week. League headquarters have been established at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, the suggested planks have been presented to leaders and a request has been made for a hearing on the proposals before the convention resolutions committee.

Special stress will be placed by league officials and the members of the official convention delegation on the suggestion for inclusion in the democratic platform of a plank delegating United States participation in international affairs through the medium of the world court. Principal of the other planks to be presented call for prompt ratification of the child labor amendment, adequate appropriation for public welfare agencies of the government, creation of a federal department of education, and the extension of the merit system through all executive branches of the government, including the prohibition force, as the means of enforcement of law.

The convention activities of the league will be directed by its officials and a committee comprised wholly of democratic women, many of whom have official connection with the convention.

Notes From Camp Takeda Are of Wide Social Interest

Gainesville, Ga., June 21.—Miss Pauline Trimble, director of Camp Takeda, has recently returned from an extended trip through the southern states in the interest of the camp.

The following young women composed the camp staff for the season, beginning July 1: Miss C. B. Brannan, Columbus, Ga., head counselor; Miss Alice Chapline, Hot Springs, Ark., director of athletics; Miss Kathleen Gaines, Gainesville, Ga., instructor of horsemanship; Miss Loree Florence, Augusta, Ga., health counselor; Mrs. R. L. Marchman, Camp Mother, Marianna, Fla. The following departments, art and crafts, swimming, canoeing, kodakery, dramatics, etc., will be in charge of experienced counselors, named below: Misses Grace Angus, Huntington, Ind.; Annie Mae Allison, Birmingham, Ala.; Margaret E. Brokaw, Buena Vista, Fla.; Frances Carter, Palatka, Fla.; Margaret Edna Lake, Lake City, Fla.; Mildred Ford, Montgomery, Ala.; Rose L. Fraser, Savannah, Ga.; Tris Johnson, Biloxi, Miss.; Margaret Dacy, Biloxi, Miss.; Annie Ruth Junkin, Natchez, Miss.; Miss M. Lowder, Hampton, Va.; Annie Claire Mayfield, Columbus, Miss.; Estelle Montgomery, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Virginia McPherson, St. Augustine, Fla.; Mattie Stanford, Kissimmee, Fla.; Nina Mae Stephens, La Belle, Fla.; Ruth Templeton, Gainesville, Fla.; Lois V. Tilack, Toledo, Ohio; Lucy Catherine Williams, Du-than, Ala.; Lulu Mae Williams, Newnan, Ga. Miss Jessie Carol Stevens, of Dothan, Ala., was the winner of the first place in a recent theme contest conducted by Camp Takeda. The camp motto, "Make Play Worth While," was the subject, and many excellent papers were written by girls from several states. Among the successful contestants for part scholarships were: Misses Gladys Malcolm, Gainesville, Fla.; Marjorie Williams, Atlanta, Ala.; Velma Bell, Augusta, Ga.; Elizabeth Reeves, Route 2, Concord, Ga.; Dorothy Dowling, Moultrie, Ga.; Emma Beard, Blakely, Ga.; Winifred Goode, St. Augustine, Fla.; Delia Money, Biloxi, Miss.; Mary Engle, Lake City, Fla.; Eloise Montgomery, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Catherine Bentley, Dothan, Ala.; Alice Weir, Biloxi, Miss.; Ione Stony, Concord, Ga.; Marie Dorris, Benton, Ill.; Anna Goldsborough, Biloxi, Miss.; Virginia Hanley, Defiance, Ohio; Edna Alterhouse, Defiance, Ohio; Dorothy Louise Beall, Moultrie, Ga. Miss Alice Chapline, of Hot Springs, Ark., an alumnae of Brenau college, arrived recently at Camp Takeda, Gainesville, Ga., to take up the duties as head of the athletic department. Miss Chapline has a charming personality and her affiliation with Camp Takeda last season won for her the enthusiastic admiration and love of all the girls in camp.

Woman's Civic Club To Meet Wednesday

The Woman's Civic club of West End will hold its regular business meeting on Wednesday, June 25, at the club rooms at 324 Grand street, corner Gray. A large representation is urged to attend as there will be many important affairs to come up at that meeting. On account of the funeral of Mrs. Culbertson, held pioneer of West End, the Friday "tea day" of the 13th was postponed and the rooms closed.

Friday afternoon, June 20, the rooms were opened to many delightful bridge parties and other games; also a few dropped in to spend the time in a social way. The rooms were kept open all evening and many ladies and club members took advantage and spent the hours in pleasant companionship.

Miss Smith Is Guest at Biltmore Tea.

Mrs. H. A. Stockton entertained at tea at the Biltmore Saturday for Miss Estelle Smith, a bride-elect.
The handsomely appointed tea table was overlaid with an exquisite lace cover. The central decoration was a large silver bowl filled with garden flowers. Silver candlesticks held unshaded tapers and silver bon-bon dishes held mints.

Miss Smith was lovely in gold-colored georgette headed in silver. Mrs.
Stockton wore brown crepe de chene.
Covers were placed for eight guests.

Educational Theme To Feature West End Woman's Club Meeting

December will be devoted to a study of the influences of art on Christianity and the influence of Christianity on art. During December the art department will hold an exhibition and sale.

Primitive art and old masters will be the subject for January, and following that in February, medieval art and artists. Modern art and contemporary artists will be studied in March, while April will be devoted to various schools of art.

Pottery, ceramics and statuary is scheduled for May. June will be devoted to painting in art, murals and precolonial. Another exhibition will close the year's work as planned.

The Arts Committee will be fully announced for next month. Miss Brooks is offering a splendid course in this department and members are enthusiastic over the work outlined.

Oconee, 15 miles south of here, about three years ago.

Mr. Lang is planning to interest a number of sportsmen in Macon and Savannah in the building of a large month fish pond which will be stocked with choice fish and a fleet of motor boats for members. Membership at Sun Hill has been limited to 100.

Just when the time is ripe—when you delight in their refreshing coolness and comfort—we announce

A SALE of Cotton Frocks

At Prices Far Below What You Ordinarily Pay For Garments of Like Quality

THERE are approximately twelve hundred of them in all, representing for the most part a big purchase made just last week at most substantial price concessions. To these have been added here and there a few garments from regular stocks—rounding out size assortments and giving all the wider range to the scope of styling. These of course have been reduced in like proportion to those especially bought.

It would be difficult to estimate the savings that will accrue to those who take advantage of this sale—they vary with the different groups offered. We believe they would be found to run—on an average—very little, if any, above half what the dresses were originally intended to sell for.

Take the two latter groups, for instance—the $10.00 and $15.00 ones—the manufacturer's business was just undergoing a reorganization that necessitated quick clearance, and so by taking the entire lot—more than two hundred dresses—we secured them at a good deal less than half their normal pricing. They are passed on to you at proportionate savings.

As to quality, beauty, variety and choice, exquisite styling, we just can't see how the lot could be improved upon. And when you see what values they represent, you'll supply the entire summer's needs eagerly!

Five Sale Groups Offering Remarkably Wide Choice Along With the Fine Savings

Group 1

$3.85

A GROUP made up principally of voiles and ratines—some linens included also. Plain colored voiles in thoroughly attractive effects showing many uses of laces and other trimmings. Fancy ratines—practical, serviceable and good looking. Linens in several shades and styles. And they are certainly low priced at$3.85

Group 2

$5.00

HERE'S a group that contains some exceptionally pretty models. French voiles with neatest hand-drawn work—mercerized, linen finished pongee revealing a variety of styles, and the popular black and white combinations in voiles—white with black floral designs. A goodly range to choose from—values that will please$5.00

Group 3

$7.50

FRENCH voiles, Normandy voiles and linens make up this group. Hand-drawn work, wide lace bands, narrow lace edges, tucks, colored pipings and so on and on. They are wonderfully beautiful and in variety that will assure pleasing choice. There are also out-sizes of particular attractiveness in this group at...$7.50

Group 4

EXQUISITE plain voiles in handsome beaded effects—figured voiles with solid colored trimmings—Rodier crepe in plain colors—and they are all dresses of rare beauty. They are in fact too beautiful for printed descriptions—showing a multitude of the unique and fetching touches that take every woman's eye. Choice at$10.00

Group 5

THE real charm of the dresses in this group will be found by a close inspection of the details of finish. They are hand-finished as you'll realize when you observe them closely—the little loops for buttons, the stitching done in colored thread—the drawn work, etc., done by hand; and how much it adds! Voiles, Rodier crepes and handkerchief linens$15.00

The savings here are interesting and worth-while to be sure—but doubly so when you consider the wide scope for choosing and the high standard of quality and delightful beauty of the garments included.

Make sure of reaping the full benefit of this fact by being here early for your choice!

Continuing for another week our special demonstration of the

Binner Corset

The way a corset fits is an all-important matter. Often the position of a boning, or the shape of a gore, or an elastic insert, will make all the difference between a comfortable corset and one which it is a trial to wear.

That is just the reason for special demonstration such as this. Miss Doan, who is an expert in the art of corset fitting, will see that you get just the model that suits you. She is a special representative of the Binner manufacturers—and will demonstrate to you the many excellencies of this well-known line.

Binner Corsets are beautifully made from the highest quality materials. Come in and let us show you the new models now being displayed in our Corset Department.

Attractive June Bride

Mrs. King Whitney, of Geneva, N. Y., whose marriage Wednesday afternoon was a prominent social event at Sacred Heart church. The lovely bride was formerly Miss Virginia Louise Mahoney, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William J. Mahoney, of Ponce de Leon avenue.

Smith-Burgess

Wedding of Social Interest

Sincere and cordial interest centers in the marriage of Miss Edna Lois Smith, of Greshamville, and Robert Thomas Burgess, of Greenville, S. C., which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Smith, Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

The home was beautifully decorated with white and pink flowers and a rich background of greenery. Burning white and pink tapers at intervals among the greenery cast a brilliant glow over the bridal party. Rev. A. P. Foster, Sr., pastor of the Methodist church, was the officiating minister. Mrs. F. B. Freeman, cousin of the bride, played the beautiful wedding music and wore an attractive model of blue Canton crepe.

Little Miss Bertice Smith, flower girl, wore a dainty frock of white organdy. Miss Agnes Burgess was maid of honor and was dressed in a beautiful blue Canton crepe and wore a corsage bouquet of white petunias.

W. E. Smith was groomsmen. The bride was very handsome in a stylish coat suit of castor tulle with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies. Mr. and Mrs. Burgess left immediately after the ceremony for a wedding trip and on their return will be at home in Greenville, S. C.

Miss McDougal Weds Mr. Slayton.

Of cordial interest was the marriage of Miss Eunice McDougal, of Alexander City, Ala., to George Fred Slayton, of Montgomery, Ala., formerly of Cataula, Ga., which took place at the home of the bride's parents Sunday, June 15.

Mr. Slayton has been connected with the Central of Georgia for several years, and is now located in the joint ticket office of Montgomery. After June 22 Mr. and Mrs. Slayton will be at home at 419 Montgomery avenue, Montgomery, Ala.

Miss Marchman

Weds Mr. T aylor
At Home Ceremony

White Plains, Ga., June 21.—A marriage marked by its beautiful simplicity was that of Miss Gladys Marchman to James Edward T aylor, of LaGrange, Ga., which occurred on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. E. A. Cottrill officiating.

Baskets of garden flowers in Dresden shades were used throughout the lower floor.

The ceremony was performed before an improvised altar of southern smilax and white hydrangeas and the lovely scene was made more impressive by the soft glow of unshaded tapers.

Proceeding the ceremony, appropriate wedding selections were rendered by Mrs. Oscar Thomason, sister of the bride. The bridal party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march and during the ceremony "Where My Caravan Has Rested" was softly played.

Miss Carleton Weds Carl Newton Seals.

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Carleton, of Kingsland, Ga., announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna Alta, to Carl Newton Seals, on Wednesday afternoon, June 18.

The wedding was a quiet event, taking place at the home of the Rev. T. B. Kemp, in St. Mary's. Only relatives witnessed the impressive ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. T. B. Kemp.

The bride was unattended and wore a dainty frock of powder blue silk with hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Seals left immediately in their car for Cuba and points in Florida, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Shepard-Musser Marriage Is Solemnized in Griffin, Ga.

Griffin, Ga., June 21.—The marriage of Miss Rebecca Shepard and Robert Lester Musser, of Harrisburg, Pa., which occurred Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lipscomb Shepard, was characterized by simplicity and elegance. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Yarbrough in the presence of relatives and friends.

The drawing room was in a color motif of green and white. The improvised altar in the French window was banked with palms, ferns, and all white pedestals held baskets of calla lilies on either side of which was a five-branch candelabra burning white unshaded candles. On the mantel were vases of white roses with their pretty foliage and silver candlesticks with white tapers.

Miss Mary Leila Patterson sang "Because" and "At Dawning," before the ceremony and Adina Combs was the accompanist. Mr. Combs played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bridal party came down the stairway and entered the drawing room, where the ceremony was performed.

Mrs. Davis Williams, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and entered first. She was gowned in flesh georgette with a bodice in crystal. Her hat was corn-cobbed, faced with pink and trimmed in pink gardenias. She carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas. Miss Frances Shepard was her sister's junior maid of honor. She wore white organdy and cream lace over pink with white picture hat flower-trimmed, and carried pink sweet peas.

The bride was lovely in an imported gown of dark blue canton crepe with front draperies of cream French batiste embroidered and trimmed with cream lace, with small blue tulle to match with a cabochon and green and gold ornament at one side. A cream fox fur, cream stockings and black satin slippers completed her costume. She carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and swinsons. The bride entered with her father, Mr. Thomas Lipscomb Shepard, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. Evander Shapard, III.

A reception followed. The bride's table was overlaid with a cluny lace piece, the central decoration being a large silver basket of calla lilies and lace ferns encircled by silver candlesticks holding pink unshaded candles. Pink and white mists filled silver bon-bons. Pink Radiance roses and pink candles in silver candlesticks decorated the mantel. On the buffet and serving table were baskets of coral gladioli. Punch was served in the hall, which was prettily decorated in larkspur and delphiniums and pink unscaped candles. In the living room where the presents were displayed, daisies and pink Columbia roses were effectively arranged.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shepard, the bride and groom and the bridal party received the guests. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Edward Davis, Mrs. Ezra Mann, Mrs. Edward Bridges, Mrs. J. P. Nichols, Jr., Mrs. Pinckney Price, Jr., Miss Mary Fields, of Bradenton, Fla.; Miss Jeannette Nichols, of Fort Valley, Mrs. Evander Shapard, III, Miss Emily Boyd, Miss Mary Hammond, Mrs. Louis Langford, Miss Edith Tucker, Miss Marion Gresham, Miss Nelle Bridges, Miss Eugenia Bridges, Miss Jessie Pearl Rice, Miss Mary Leila Patterson, Miss Mildred Gaisert, Mrs. Evander Shapard, Jr., Miss Dorothy Oppenheimer, of Tampa, Fla., Misses Carolyn and Lucile Bruner, Miss Frances Shapard.

Mr. and Mrs. Musser left for Atlanta, and were entertained at dinner at the Biltmore by Mr. and Mrs. Evander Shapard, III, leaving that evening for Savannah, from which they sailed for New York. Mr. and Mrs. Musser will visit Philadelphia, Washington, D. C. and several cities in New York before going to Harrisburg, Pa., where they will make their home.

Mrs. Musser, as Miss Rebecca Shepard, was a lovely young woman, very popular with a large circle of friends, who regret that her marriage will take her away from Griffin to live.

Pre-nuptial Events.

Those entertaining for Miss Shepard recently were Miss Nelle Bridges and Miss Mildred Gaisert, joint hostesses at afternoon tea; Mrs. Edward Davis and Mrs. Ralph Jones at bridge; Mrs. Pinckney Price, Jr., with a buffet luncheon; Mrs. Davis Williams with a bridge party at the Country club; Mrs. Thaddeus Hankins, at bridge, and Mrs. Sam McCracken at bridge at the Country club.

Mr. Howard A. Van Orman entertained at dinner Sunday evening in compliment to Miss Shepard and Mr. Robert L. Musser. Completing the party were Mr. and Mrs. Davis Williams and Miss Florence Gresham.

Miss Mullryne Weds Benjamin Spinning At Home Ceremony

One of the prettiest of the June weddings was that of Miss Catherine Tattall Mullryne and Benjamin Spinning, which was solemnized at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening, June 14, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. F. M. Mullryne, 638 North Jackson street. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Ashby Jones in the living room before an improvised altar banked with palms, ferns and white gladioli. The cathedral candelabra on either side of the altar held white lighted tapers, which cast a soft glow over the bridal party.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Annie Barton sang "O Promise Me," accompanied by Miss Emmeline Sikes. Miss Sikes played Mendelssohn's wedding march as Miss Jessie Muldrew, bridesmaid, entered with the groomsmen, Leon Cheatham. Miss Muldrew was gowned in orchid georgette fashioned with cream lace. Her corsage bouquet was pink rosebuds and valley lilies.

Miss Frances Thebaut, maid of honor, entered with Thomas Mullryne, brother of the bride, who acted as best man. Miss Thebaut was gowned in pale green georgette, trimmed with cream lace and French flowers and wore a corsage bouquet of pink rosebuds and valley lilies.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march the bride entered with the groom, and was radiantly lovely in her simple gown of white satin, made on a very youthful model, fashioned with antique lace. A panel of satin was caught at the shoulders and fell in straight lines to the bottom of the hem. Her only ornament was a platinum and diamond bar pin, a gift of the groom. Her veil of misty tulle was worn with a coronet of orange blossoms and caught with sprays of the blossoms, forming a soft train. She carried an exquisite shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies. The bride's book was kept by Miss Harriet Gilmer.

An informal reception was held immediately after the ceremony. The bride's table was in white. White tulle, beaded in lilies of the valley, formed the top of the canopy, over which fell a shower of narrow white satin ribbons, each ending in a spray of the lilies. Four streamers of the tulle fell from the canopy and were caught to the edge of the table with a spray of the blossoms. In the center of the table was a three-tiered bride's cake, surrounded by tiny pink rosebuds, hiding the favors, which were attached to white satin ribbons, the ribbons radiating from the center over a circle of lace ferns. Four silver candelsticks holding white lighted tapers were set at intervals between the tulle streamers.

Mrs. Mullryne, the bride's mother, was gowned in black satin evening gown, which she wore a bouquet of Ophelia roses and lavender sweet peas.

Mrs. W. C. Lamb, of Jacksonville, Fla., sister of the bride, wore pink georgette and a corsage bouquet of pink rose buds.

Miss Sophie Mullryne, sister of the bride, wore powder blue georgette and a corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Frank E. Goatherd, of Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. Charles Anderson, of Augusta, Ga.; Miss Eriehel Blount, of Wrightsville, Ga.; Miss Alice McAnulty, of Chicago; Mrs. T. H. Lagerquist, of Chicago; Mrs. W. C. Lamb, of Jacksonville, Fla., sister of the bride, wore pink Catherine Lamb, of Jacksonville, Fla. The bride's going-away gown was of tan summer charmeuse with accessories to match.

During the evening Mr. Spinning and his bride left for an extended wedding trip. After visiting Washington, New York and New Jersey, they will return by boat via Savannah.

Mrs. Spinning is the youngest daughter of Mrs. F. M. Mullryne, and the names of her forebears—Robert, Caswell, Irvine, Tattall, Mullryne, are identified with the early history of Georgia and the Carolinas.

Mr. Spinning, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Spinning, of Red Bank, N. J., is a prominent young business man of Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Spinning will be at home to their friends, 638 North Jackson street, after July 10.

Miss Sturges To Wed

John Romaine White.

Augusta, Ga., June 21.—Social interest is felt in the approaching marriage of Miss Irma Olive Sturges and John Romaine White, which will take place Wednesday evening, June 25, at 6 o'clock at St. James' Methodist church. The only attendants will be Mrs. S. Watson Talbot and Henry Gardner. The bride will enter with her mother, Mrs. Myrtis Palmer Sturges, who will give her in marriage. Dr. B. F. Fraser will read the ceremony.

Miss Stearnes Weds

D. P. Miller.

Mrs. Effie Stearnes announces the marriage of her daughter, Alice May, to D. P. Miller, on June 18, at the home of the bride's aunt, Dr. Ruth Meekel, Rev. W. Lee Catts performing the ceremony in the presence of a group of friends and relatives. After July 1, Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be at home to their friends at 404 North Boulevard.

Weds R. C. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Thompson of Monticello, Fla., announce the marriage of their daughter, Nina, to Rube Coggins Jones, of Canton, Ga., on May 29.

Miss Mary Gertrude Sheron Weds Joseph Noel Schweers

Augusta, Ga., June 21.—One of the interesting social events of the season was the marriage of Miss Mary Gertrude Sheron and Joseph Noel Schweers, which occurred today at high noon at the Sacred Heart church, which was beautifully adorned with all palms and masses of summer flowers through which gleamed innumerable candles. Miss Alice Dolle at the organ and Miss Marie Brenner with the violin rendered lovely musical selections. The ushers, N. G. Hester and J. F. Cooney, were followed by the maid of honor, Miss Helen Mulherin, who wore a lovely gown of orchid georgette crepe finished with bands of amber lace and ruffles of orchid ribbon. Her hat was of two tones of orchid crepe. She carried an arm bouquet of pink flowers centered with orchids.

The bride entered with her father. Her wedding gown, of soft white georgette, was draped over taffeta and effectively beaded in pearls and finished in scalloped effects. With this was worn a picture hat of white faced in flesh and trimmed in soft white ostrich feathers. Her flowers were bride's roses showered with lilies of the valley.

The groom was attended by his brother, J. B. Schweers. Father MacCreedy performed the ceremony. The bridal party and a few friends were entertained informally at a buffet luncheon at the home of the bride, on Ellis street, where palms, ferns and quantities of pink and white flowers were used with charming effect. The bride's table was exquisite in its adornment of pink and white roses with unshaded candles in handsome silver candlesticks, with a centerpiece of white and pink roses in plateau effect. The bride's going-away suit was of poudre blue roshanara crepe, embroidered in gray, and hat of gray straw.

After a trip to Savannah and Tybee Mr. and Mrs. Schweers will be at home with the bride's parents.

Mrs. Schweers is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sheron.

Mr. Schweers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Schweers, a grandson of Captain J. O. Connor.

Miss Robbie Videtto

Weds H. A. Robinson.

Augusta, Ga., June 21.—Characterized by social interest was the marriage of Miss Robbie Videtto and Henry Allen Robinson, solemnized June 17 at high noon at the First Baptist church, which was decorated for the occasion with quantities of lovely mid-summer flowers combined with southern smilax and tall palms and ferns through which gleamed innumerable candles. Mr. McIntosh and James Pinaro rendered the music.

First to enter were the ushers, George Johnson, Charles Bickert, of Athens; Allen Symm, of Decatur; Ferner, of Decatur. They wore white linen suits and bride rose boutonnieres, advanced to the altar, where they stationed themselves on either side and awaited the maids.

Next were the two junior maids, Miss Laura Johnson and Miss Meara Keary, both wearing lovely gowns of soft rose-colored georgette with triple bands of white lace, and banded in pink marabout.

The two bridesmaids, Miss Laura Hunter, of Atlanta, and Miss Dorothy James, of Salem, Va., wore jade green georgette with triple bands of lace and finished about the bodice with green marabout.

The maid of honor, Miss Mary Brazer, of Savannah, wore a beautiful gown of virgin blue georgette lace with white marabout. All the maids wore white brocade bonnets edged with marabout to match their gowns, with flat short streamers of broadened ribbon in the same color, and quaint old-time lace mitts, and carried old-fashioned Colonial hand bouquets of Canterbury bells, Boston daisies, roses and cornflowers made on little lace paper mats. The maid of honor carried a Colonial hand bouquet of sunburst roses.

The bride was attended by her father, and her mother, Mrs. W. C. Robinson, and her best man, William Robinson, Jr. The ceremony was performed by Dr. E. L. Grace.

The beautiful young bride was exquisite in her wedding gown of sheer white georgette, made with a sleeveless long waist and the skirt falling in panels edged with filmy silk lace. Arms and neck were finished with white marabout, as was the quaint little white bonnet, which framed her face. Long white lace mitts were worn and her flowers were a Colonial hand bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies, which she carried.

Immediately after the ceremony the families and close friends were entertained informally at the Videtto home on Jefferson Davis avenue, where a wedding breakfast was served.

The bride's going-away gown was a smart tan tailored suit worn with a Chinese blue crepe and lace blouse, and a tan hat. The young couple left for a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina and points of interest in North Georgia. On their return they will be with the bride's parents until fall, when they will go to New Haven, Conn., where Mr. Robinson will study.

The bride is the only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. Videtto, of Atlanta, and is a talented musician.

Mr. Robinson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson. He has been teaching in Texas and in the fall will teach and study at Yale.

Miss Minchew Weds

Kenyon Drew.

Baxley, Ga., June 21.—A marriage of social prominence was that of Miss Lucille Minchew, of Baxley, and Kenyon Drew, of Hazlehurst, which was solemnized at the Methodist church on Wednesday evening, Rev. T. E. Davenport read the impressive marriage service.

The ceremony was witnessed by a large assemblage of relatives and friends. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

Mrs. Vesta Brown rendered the wedding music, "Berceuse Jocelyne," by Godard, was played as a prelude. Mrs. Chip Johnson, of St. Augustine, Fla., sang a group of songs, "All for You" and "God Touched the Rose."

The bridal chorus from the "Rose Maiden" was sung by a double quartet, singing as they entered from the vestry. The quartet included Uman Cox, Johnson, Foster, and Katherine Lowe, Miss Lollie Rutland, Mrs. Walter Bradley, Charles H. Parker and Wade H. Watson.

The bridal march from Lohengrin announced the approach of the bride. The ushers were Jack Millikin and John Minchew, both of Atlanta; Paul Bryant, of Wilson, N. C.; Parker Highsmith, Charles H. Parker, Jr., and Ralph Griffin.

Miss Sadie Johnson, Miss Willie Pirkle, Miss Theodocia Geiger, of Mount Vernon; Miss Lucille Breen, of Waycross; Miss Wilma Lynn, Miss Willie Pace, Miss Mildred Minchew, were pastel georgette gowns and carried small bouquets of gladioli.

Miss Oldine Vickers, of Douglas, wore a handsome creation of blue georgette and lace. She carried sunset roses. Marjorie Moore and Martha Veal were ribbon bearers. Robert Way McDonald was ring-bearer, holding the platinum circlet in the heart of a rose. Preceding the bride were the flower girls, Marjorie Collins, Willie Veal and Frances Floyd. The bride entered with her father, Dan H. Minchew. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, D. T. Drew, of Abbeville.

The bride wore a handsome straight line model of head-encircling georgette over chiffon. A huge picture hat completed the costume. Her bouquet was bride's roses.

Mrs. Drew is one of Baxley's most popular young women. She is the daughter of D. M. Minchew, and her family connections are well known in Georgia and throughout the south. She was educated at Cox college and is a pianist of ability.

Mr. Drew is a well-known young business man of Hazlehurst. He is cashier of a Hazlehurst bank. He has enjoyed a brilliant educational advantage, studying in several leading Georgia schools.

After a wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Drew will be at home in Hazlehurst.

Beautiful Summer Bride

Mrs. Emmett Womack Hines, beautiful bride who, before her marriage May 28, was Miss Frederica Bernice Boatwright, daughter of District Attorney and Mrs. Frederick Grant Boatwright, of Cordele.

Ida Walker, Mrs. J. S. McKown, Miss Louie McKown, Mrs. J. S. Watterston, of Atlanta; Mrs. O. E. Monfort, of Tupelo, Miss., and Miss Rebecca Hart, of Rome.

Mr. Duffee and his bride left for a short trip, after which they will be at home in Jonesboro.

Rev. H. N. Massey, of Rome, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and friends. As the guests assembled Miss Mattie Sue Evans, pianist, and Miss Ruby Mann, violinist, rendered a beautiful selection of popular music. Before the ceremony Mrs. R. M. Pierpont sang "Constance" and "I Love You Truly." Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as the bridal party entered the church. During the ceremony McDowell's "To a Wild Rose" was softly rendered. Wagner's march from "Tannhauser" was played as the attendants left the church.

The church was decorated with palms and ferns. Rich green ferns banked the altar reaching to the choir loft, and in the center of the altar were two massive ever-branched candelabra holding white tapers. At either side of this were placed baskets filled with white hydrangea. Graceful garlands of smilax festooned the walls. The choir loft was banked with ferns.

The ushers were Hiram Camp, Claude Cox, Edward Waldrop, Carl Lewis, Claude Medlock and J. O. Hightower.

The bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Blalock, Miss Maurine Cousins, Miss Sarah Turner, Miss Mattie Minter, Miss Ida Walker and Miss Louise McKown, of Atlanta. They were gowned in georgette dresses of pastel shades, made bouffant style and carried arm bouquets of sweet peas in the pastel shades tied with tulle to match their dresses.

Miss Ruth Brown, only sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of powder blue over flesh, trimmed in lace and pastel shaded French flowers and her bouquet was pink.

Preceding the bride were the little flower girls, little Miss Frances Reeves and Miss Elizabeth Chapman, wearing dainty frocks of pink and blue. They carried Marie Antoinette baskets filled with roses and sweet peas, the handles tied with tulle bows.

Little Edward Brown, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer, wearing a white satin suit and carrying the ring embedded in a Madonna lily.

The groom had as his best man his cousin, Paul Duffee, of Atlanta.

Lovely Bride.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white crepe, beaded in pearls. The wedding veil of white tulle was confined to her shoulders, wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies.

Informal Reception.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. The reception rooms were decorated with a lavish display of summer flowers. The members of the bridal party assisted in entertaining. Miss Elizabeth Blalock kept the bride's book. Miss Mary Brown and Miss Jennie McKown, of Atlanta, served punch. Miss Louise McKown of Atlanta, distributed the bride's cake, which was tied in small souvenir boxes with white ribbon and valley lilies.

The out-of-town guests included Rev. and Mrs. H. N. Massey, of Rome; Miss Pink Starr, of Newnan; W. A. Sanders, Mrs. Clara Pierpont, Miss Julia Pierpont, Philip Christian, Paul Duffee, Harry Peterson, Miss

Miss Parker Is Bride of C. P. Floyd

The marriage of Miss Rillie Mae Parker and Cecil Park Floyd took place June 14 at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Parker.

The Rev. B. J. W. Graham performed the ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives.

An improvised altar was banked with palms and ferns and in the center was a large basket of vases, on each side of which were silver candlesticks holding white burning tapers.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. Frank Aiken played and sang "I Love You Truly." As the wedding march, "Lohengrin," began, the bride party descended the stairway.

Mrs. Aubrey D. Walker, matron of honor and only sister, was gown in sunset yellow georgette and carried a bouquet of old-fashioned flowers.

Miss Virginia McDowell, bridesmaid, came next, wearing a gown of poudre blue crepe trimmed in French flowers. Her bouquet was rosebuds and sweetpeas.

The groomsmen were Aubrey D. Walker and Milton Mitchell, Jr.

Little Sylvia Walker was flower girl, wearing a white organdie dress and carrying a basket of sweetpeas. The ring-bearer, little Virginia Hestley, wore a dress of flesh georgette trimmed in roses and ribbon. She carried the ring in the center of a pink satin heart. Her bandeau was rhinestones and pearls.

Miss Mead Crane, maid of honor, came next, wearing gold lace over flesh-colored satin trimmed in seed pearls. She carried a large bouquet of sweetpeas.

The best man was Willie Floyd, brother of the groom.

The bride and groom entered together. She was lovely in a white georgette trimmed in duchess lace and ribbon. The wedding veil of white tulle was confined to her beautiful dark hair by a wreath of orange blossoms. Her gorgeous bouquet was of roses and valley lilies.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Parker entertained at a reception. In the receiving line were the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Denham, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Mitchell, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hestley.

Assisting in entertaining were Misses Lois and Clois Walker, Miss Mary Davis, Charlotte, N. C., and Mrs. Edna Madison.

Mrs. William W. Rainey presided at the punch bowl. Later in the evening Mr. Floyd and his bride left for Miami, Fla., and other places of interest.

Mrs. Floyd traveled in a smart frock of brown canton crepe, heavily embroidered, worn with a gray fox fur. Her becoming hat was a close-fitting model of brown straw trimmed in flowers.

Miss Blatterman To Present Pupils.

A group of pupils from the piano class of Miss Kate Blatterman will be heard in a recital on Monday evening.

Beautiful June Bride

Mrs. Harry Walker Winburn, formerly Miss Ellen Dorothea Ansted, daughter of Mrs. B. C. Ansted, whose marriage took place Saturday, June 14, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. W. C. Power, on North Moreland avenue. She is a beautiful young woman and is very attractive. Mr. and Mrs. Winburn are on their wedding trip in the east.

ning, June 23, at Edison hall at 8:30 o'clock.

They will be assisted by pupils from the freshmen class of Miss Sarah Adele Eastlack, and a pupil from the class of Miss Margaret Hecht.

Those taking part will be Misses Mary Blalock, Gladys Smoak, Doris Perryman, Emily Bacon, Eugenia Duval, Ann Shafe, Louise Mapp, Ruth Hendrix, Frances Peacock, Katherine Talley, Lois Bagwell, Lillian Everett, Mrs. W. D. Phelps, Miss Gussie Wooten.

The public is cordially invited.

Miss Oldin Vickers Weds Mr. Turner In Douglas, Ga.

Douglas, Ga., June 21.—An event of marked beauty was the marriage of Miss Oldin Vickers, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Vickers, of Douglas, Ga., and Ralph Ray Turner, of Dyer, Tenn., which was solemnized on Wednesday morning, June 18, at 9 o'clock, at the home of the bride.

In improvised altar surrounded by palms and ferns served as a rich dark background for pedestals with baskets forming an arch. A dominant motif of white, orange and green was artistically worked out in the decorations of the home. Smilax with daisies entwined the stairway and baskets filled with daisies formed a setting of beauty. The Rev. Guyton Fisher, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiated in the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Theodosia Geiger, of Mt. Vernon, Ga., sang "At Dawning," by Cadman, accompanied by Miss Ruth Davis. Miss Geiger was beautifully gowned in white georgette with corsage of daisies. Miss Davis played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the garland bearers entered, while the strains of Lohengrin hailed the coming of the bride, preceded by the little ring bearer.

The garland bearers were Misses Mary Shelton, Ethel Deen, Opal Vickers, Robbie McLean, Elizabeth Terrell, of Douglas, and Miss Susie May Snooks, of Covena, Ga. Their exquisite airy gowns were fashioned of orange French voile. Bands of cream baby Irish lace were inserted in the skirt and on the bodice. The tiny sleeves and round neck were of lace. They carried garlands of daisies forming an aisle through which the bride and groom passed to the altar.

Little Virginia Vickers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Vickers, was the little ring bearer, carrying the ring in a bunch of daisies. She was lovely in white organdie trimmed in lace.

The bride wore a most becoming dark blue cloth three-piece costume trimmed in white brocade, with dark blue hat with feather of white. Her bridal bouquet was of bride's roses showed with lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Vickers, the bride's mother, was gown in gray crepe with fluted gray crepe de chine trimming. Mrs. Crocker, the groom's sister, wore a lovely model of black georgette over satin foulard.

A reception followed the ceremony, carrying out the color scheme of white and orange in the dainty refreshments. Receiving were Mrs. M. D. Dickerson and Miss May Dart. Assisting were Mrs. Lonnie Pope, Mrs. Lewis Vickers and Misses Annette McLean, Aurel Lott and Carolyn Hall.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Turner left for a motor trip to Tennessee and other points of interest. The bride possesses a beauty of the blond type, with exquisite coloring. Owing to her sweet character and charming personality, she has endeared herself to a wide circle of friends. She is a graduate of Cox college, where she also finished in voice. Since her graduation she has been an addition to Douglas' musical circles, as she possesses a beautiful soprano voice.

Mrs. Turner is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Vickers, connected with two of south Georgia's most prominent families. Her mother was before her marriage, Miss Mary Lott, a member of an old representative south Georgia family.

The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Turner, of Dyer, Tenn. He is the brother of Mrs. R. O. Crocker, of Atlanta, and Mr. Frank Ewell, of Nashville, Tenn. He was a student of Union University, Tennessee, and is now connected with the Atlanta Trust company. He has made many friends while stationed in Douglas.

Miss Carrere Weds Mr. Bussey.

Augusta, Ga., June 21.—Cordial and widespread social interest centers in the marriage of Miss Sallie Huger Carrere and James S. Bussey, which was solemnized Wednesday at high noon at St. Paul's church.

Stately palms amid which glowed hanging of light formed by innumerable candles, and handsome gilt floor baskets filled with gay ribbon grass in all its festive beauty formed the decorations. A graceful arrangement of southern smilax and the entire chancel was brilliant and beautiful with the magnificent seven-branch candlesticks on either side of the altar.

Professor Johnson presided at the organ and gave a beautiful musical program. The ushers entered in pairs, Phil Seavey with Henry Howard, Leroy Lythe with Henry Carrere, J. C. The bride's sister, Mrs. Roderick Peacock, of Dublin, Ga., as matron entered next and was very charming in a gown of soft blue georgette with a smart white hat of horsehair with a taffeta bow. Her flowers were of dainty delphiniums caught with delf blue, which blended perfectly with the lovely costume.

Miss Elizabeth Carrere, maid of honor, wore a most becoming gown of apricot georgette finished with white lace and a white hat adorned with a bow of apricot taffeta, and carried an exquisite bouquet of white and delicate pink peonies caught with pink tulle.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage, and was preceded by her small nephew, Roderick Peacock, Jr., in a white satin suit, and carried the ring in the heart of a lily.

The groom was attended by his brother, Donald Bussey, and entered through the vestry. Dr. William Johnson, of St. Thaddeus church, in Aiken, read the beautiful ceremony of the Episcopal church.

The bride was very lovely and most distinctive in her wedding gown of rich cream lace simply yet exquisitely fashioned over a white flesh crepe, the long line waist being finished with an effective girle of roses and orchids. Her hat was a creation of pink faced with white and trimmed with pink flowers. Her flowers were a mass of bride's roses and orchids with a shower of lilies of the valley.

After the church ceremony Mr. and

Bride of Atlantan

Mrs. W. K. Stillman, Jr., who before her marriage on June 18 was Miss Bertha Mai Hicks, of Mobile, Ala. Her marriage to Dr. Stillman was a beautiful event of last week, taking place at the bride's home in Mobile.

Mrs. Bussey left for New York and on their return will make their home with the bride's father on Henry street, The Hill.

Mrs. Bussey is the daughter of Henry Maynard Carrere. She is a Charlestonian and has all the exquisite charm accredited the Charleston women. Her high-bred patrician beauty attracts all who see her while her charm of manner, her gentleness and her rare sympathetic nature endear her to all who know her.

Mr. Bussey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Bussey, Sr., and is a young lawyer of the city.

Grand Council Camp Fire At Piedmont Park Monday

The work of the Camp Fire Girls of Atlanta during the past six months of active endeavor in the city will reach a climax on Monday evening, June 22, when a grand council fire will be staged in Piedmont park at 8 o'clock.

The ceremonial and its accompanying ritual, which is believed by many to be one of the most unique and attractive features of the Camp Fire program, is usually kept just for the girls themselves, but on this occasion the public is invited to attend. The Grand Council Fire of Monday evening will be marked by stupendous pageantry, and will be of great interest to all Atlantans. A cordial invitation is extended to every citizen to view this mammoth demonstration. There is no admission.

The two hundred and fifty Camp Fire Girls of the city will take part in the evening's performance. They will form an immense circle within which the rites will take place. Many of the girls have already won the rank of Wood Gatherers and will wear the ceremonial gown that is significant of this rank. The ceremonial gown of the Camp Fire Girls is fashioned according to the dress of the Indian maidens, and all of the symbolism of the organization is based on Indian symbolism. Camp Fire is a truly American organization with its basis in the American home, and it is with peculiar appropriateness that its ceremonial meetings remain true to the earliest history of the country.

The Council Fire in Piedmont park will be presided over by Miss Mary Louise Wilson, executive secretary of Camp Fire in Atlanta, and by Miss Florence Heintz, national field secretary of Camp Fire Girls, Incorporated, who is the distinguished guest of Atlanta Camp Fire. At this time the beautiful law of Camp Fire will be symbolized by a series of interpretive dances under the direction of Miss Nellie Sullivan, "Seek beauty," "Give service," "pursue knowledge," "be trustworthy," "hold on to health," "glorify work" and "be happy." The seven points included in the law will be represented in a striking pageant.

Following this, a number of Atlanta girls will receive rank. Miss Theresa Atkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Atkinson, and Miss Ruth Brooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brooke, will be given the great honor of torch bearers, the highest rank to be won in Camp Fire. These two girls have shown a marvelous spirit at all times, and they have beautifully fulfilled the desire of torch bearers. Miss Atkinson was recently elected by the other Camp Fire Girls to be president of camp government at Highlands.

Miss Brooke was editor-in-chief of the camp publication, and edited the first edition of the paper that is to be published regularly by the Camp Fire Girls of Atlanta. There will be a number of girls to receive the second rank. They will become Fire Makers at this ceremonial on Monday evening. Still others will be made Wood Gatherers, which is the first step in progress in the Camp Fire program. The girls winning rank will announce the Indian names chosen by them, and will tell what that name symbolizes, and what it means to each one personally. The singing of Camp Fire songs by over two hundred Camp Fire Girls will be an enjoyable feature of the program for the evening.

The Camp Fire of the city will have as their distinguished guests on this occasion three of the most prominent figures connected with girls' agencies throughout the country. Miss Florence Heintz, their own beloved national field secretary, will take part in the ceremonial and will furnish the girls with a great deal of inspiration. Mrs. Juliette Lowe, head of the Girl Scouts, and Miss Georgia Wittich, national field secretary of the Girl Reserves, will be present to view the Camp Fire demonstration.

Members of the board of directors for Camp Fire Girls of Atlanta will also be special guests on Monday evening. They are: W. O. Foote, Luther E. Allen, Marvin Underwood, Charles D. Atkinson, Reid Hunter, Samuel Rothberg, Mrs. Tom Brooke, Mrs. Fred Hodgson, Mrs. George Wright, Mrs. Frank Mason, Miss Gertrude Corrigan.

Others who will be present will be the daughters of the various Camp Fire groups of the city. Mrs. B. M. Hood, Miss Nellie Smiley, Mrs. Paul LaBlanc, Miss Elise Stokes, Mrs. Marvin Underwood, Miss Ruth Hinman, Miss Mary Louise Wilson, Mrs. Tom Brooke, Miss Myrtle O'Steen, Mrs. Harry Barnett, Miss Pauline Reynolds, Miss Mary Doyle Fincher, Mrs. Rupert Heard, Miss Julia Veal, Mrs. Charles Hackney, Mrs. James G. Lester, Miss Anna Belle Lefevre, Mrs. Heyward Simmons, Mrs. Tom Brinkley, Miss Frances Howard, Miss Mary Nichols, Miss Irene Davenport and Mrs. W. C. Mayfield.

The council of Camp Fire Girls, which is composed of fifty leading men and women of Atlanta, will be the sponsors of the Council Fire.

mission. "Dealers and Discounts," Mrs. L. P. Merritt, American report blanks and statistics, and overdues and lost books, Mrs. W. C. McKenney, Moutrie, music; magazines and United States publications; mending demonstration, Miss Haven, coffee, Valdosta. Meeting is held in assembly room of Cordele Carnegie library.

Miss Oxford Weds Mr. Lee.

Dawson, Ga., June 21.—A wedding of considerable interest to a host of friends was that of Miss Claire Oxford, of Dawson, and L. Y. Lee of Leesburg, Fla., which was solemnized at the parsonage of the First Methodist church Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. T. M. Christian, the pastor, having officiated.

The marriage, which was to have been a quiet home affair on June 1, was postponed on account of the illness of J. T. Lee, grandfather of the bride.

Miss Ruby Oxford, sister of the bride, was the only attendant. Following a dinner at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee left for Leesburg, Fla., the home of the groom.

The bride is the attractive and talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Oxford, of Dawson. She is a graduate of the Dawson High school and also graduate of the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville. She was active in church and Sunday school work in Dawson and for the past year was a teacher in the school at Yeomans.

The groom is affiliated with the Crystal Rock company, of Leesburg, Fla., with which concern he holds a responsible position.

Hurst Club To Have Dance.

The members and friends of the Hurst dancing club will dance on Wednesday evening, June 25, at Hurst hall, Peachtree street and North avenue. The Oglethorpe University orchestra will furnish the music.

Dancing will begin at 8:30 o'clock. Professor Edward S. Hurst in charge.

ben, acted as bride and groom, and drew the wedding, which was laden with gifts to the bride-elect.

Her marriage to Eugene Westmoreland will be an interesting event of August 16.

Mrs. Rambo Reelected To Office on Bankhead Highway

Mrs. Robert K. Rambo, prominent in social and civic life of Atlanta, has been reelected head of the woman's commission for Georgia of the Bankhead national highway. This honor was again accorded Mrs. Rambo at the eighth annual convention held in Albuquerque during May.

She has been most active in this work and has achieved splendid results during her regime in beautifying and marking the Bankhead highway.

The reports show that over two thousand miles of the Bankhead highway have been built or is under construction, and that much enthusiasm is being aroused for the continuation of the building of this highway and making it useful to the public. The reports of the woman's commission show that much work has been done, and there was a unanimous decision to continue the work of the organization.

Delegates and members of the board of directors from ten out of the thirteen states through which the highway traverses attended the convention, and excellent reports were made by the directors as well as the members of the woman's commission.

Mrs. Rambo is one of the most popular and charming women in Atlanta, and she is deeply interested in every undertaking which will benefit the city and state.

Mrs. Elsas Talks On Achievement Of Junior Red Cross

The Atlanta chapter of the Junior Red Cross, under the capable and efficient leadership of Mrs. Elsas J. Elsas, has achieved remarkable undertakings during the past two years.

In speaking of the calls which this organization has answered, Mrs. Elsas said:

"The Junior Red Cross is constantly answering such calls as the following: Several days ago we received a letter from the mother of the children of war at Battle Hill sanatorium for us to supply bathing suits for thirty of the little patients there. These suits will be used for the children to take their sun baths in (sun baths are part of the treatment for tuberculosis), and as much of the flesh of the little patient is exposed as possible, hence the call for suits. We have complied with their request."

Atlanta Writers' Club To Hold Meeting.

The next meeting of the Atlanta Writers' club will be held at the Woman's club, Hemlock 332, June 25, at 8 o'clock. The outstanding feature of this meeting will be an illustrated lecture by F. A. Wilson, Lawsonson of the Atlanta Georgian and Sunday American, on "Colonel Youngblood's Expedition into Tibet," that expedition being "the first white man's invasion" of that interesting and mysterious land. The price will be a real event, and it is to be hoped the attendance may be large and representative. There will be additional features on the program. An unusually nice dinner is being prepared; the price will be $1.25 per plate.

Reservations should be made direct with Mrs. T. E. Simon at the Woman's club, Hemlock 332. This will be the last meeting of the Writers' club until September, and adjournment will take place at 10 o'clock.

James B. Nevin is president of the club, and has outlined a very interesting program for Wednesday evening.

Lemon Juice Whitens Skin

The only harmless way to mix the skin white is to mix the juice of three lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softer and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleacher. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

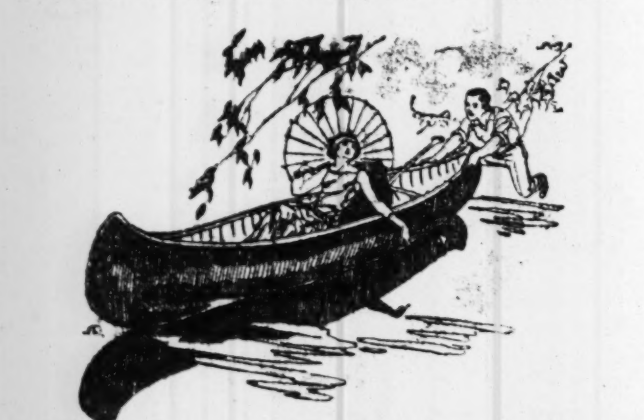

To Remove First Signs of Old Age

"The infallible first sign of age is the sagging cheek muscles," says Miss Cavalli, whose fame as a beauty cultist is scarcely less than that of a soapmaker. "These are more difficult and serious to treat than wrinkles," she continues. "The sagging muscles indicate they have grown too weak to remain in place; they must be assisted, strengthened."

The best way to strengthen them is by bathing the face in a simple lotion made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered exsultate in a half pint of water. This creates a free circulation to the parts, besides causing muscles and skin to contract. Saxatile, procurable at every drug store, has long been known by complexion specialists to possess remarkable toning and strengthening properties, valuable in treating flabby tissue and wrinkles.—(adv.)

Miss Susie Perkins Weds Mr. Marler

Lumpkin, Ga., June 21.—Quite a beautiful wedding was that on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock when Miss Susie Perkins, of near Omaha, Ga., was united in marriage to Howard Marler, of Palmetto, Fla. Rev. W. B. Sheline officiating in the Methodist church in Omaha.

The church was decorated for this occasion with roses and magnolias, snail and fern, all beautifully arranged.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. D. P. Mathis sang "Because." Other music was furnished by Miss Thelma Martin. The bride party entered to the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin."

The bride wore traveling costume of navy blue crepe. The bridesmaid, Miss Leano Perkins, niece of the bride, wore a dainty hand-made dress of orchid crepe, and was the flower girl; little Miss Elizabeth Woodham, of Charles, Ga., clad in pink crepe, was ring bearer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Perkins, and is one of the most attractive young ladies in the county, possessing lovely traits of character which endear her to all who know her.

The groom is a business man of Palmetto, Fla., occupying a responsible position in that city. After a few weeks' spent in north Georgia and in eastern Florida they will be at home to their friends in Palmetto, Fla.

The twelfth annual conference of the Children of the Confederacy was held in Albany on June 17 and 18.

Among distinguished visitors attending the conference were Mrs. Frank Harrold, of Americus, president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy; Mrs. Walter Grace, of Macon, president of the Georgia division of the U. D. C.; Mrs. Willette Gale Williams, of Atlanta, first and honorary life president of the charter chapter, Julia Jackson chapter, Children of the Confederacy, and honorary life director of the Georgia division, Children of the Confederacy; Miss Mildred Lewis Rutherford, of Athens, state historian general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and former president of Lucy Cobb institute; Miss Adeline Baum, of Dublin, state organizer of the Children of the Confederacy; F. O. Miller, of Fort Valley; Mrs. Anna Bryant Lane, donor of the medal for the decoration contest held in the auditorium, and a past director, and the great-niece of General John B. Gordon; Miss Louise Gordon Donaldson, of Bainbridge, delegate from the two weeks old chapter of "Children of the Confederacy" of that city.

Following a reception at Iris Court, the lovely ante-bellum home of Mrs. John Randolph Whitehead, on Pine street, the first formal session of the meeting opened in the Baraca room of the First Presbyterian church. The room was effectively decorated with Confederate flags.

After the invocation by Rev. John Moore Walker, the meeting was opened by Mrs. P. T. Nix, who introduced Mayor W. Legg. Mr. Legg welcomed the delegates in behalf of the city.

Mrs. W. F. Rowsey, a prominent daughter of the Confederacy, extended

Mrs. Charles F. Rice Hostess To John Floyd Chapter of 1812

A notable event of Friday afternoon, June 20, was the meeting of John Floyd chapter, United States Daughters of 1812, at the home of the state president, Mrs. Charles F. Rice, on Peachtree road.

The report of the thirty-two associate councils at the annual meeting of the national society was the chief feature of the business meeting. Miss Waverly Huson gave a detailed account of the business transactions of the council, while Mrs. Zeena Olesky gave the account of the elegance and interest of the social events of this delightful meeting in Washington.

Miss Katherine Wooten, a prominent member of the society and an interest was given to a most charming social hour. The state president wished a happy summer to each and all, and the guests repaired to the dining room, where cooling refreshments were served.

This was the first meeting in Mrs. Rice's new home, and an added interest was given to a most charming social hour. The state president wished a happy summer to each and all, and the guests repaired to the dining room, where cooling refreshments were served.

Mrs. Tebo, registrar, reported all files complete and that three new members were recently accepted, also several pledged members.

Miss Holcomb Weds Brooking Brodnax.

Oxford, Ga., June 21.—The beautiful afternoon wedding of Miss Allen Holcomb and Brooking Brodnax, of Walnut Grove, was one of interest to a large circle of friends. The marriage took place at 3 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents, the father of the bride, Rev. S. M. Holcomb, performing the ceremony.

The mantel in the large front parlor, before which the bride and groom stood, was banked with ferns and potted plants, while bowls and vases of cut flowers adorned and brightened the room. Immediately before the ceremony, "O Promise Me" was beautifully sung by Miss Ione Nunnally, accompanied by Miss Mary Jarman.

At the first strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, two little flower girls, nieces of the bride and groom, Laverne Pinkerton and Agnes Brodnax, came in with baskets of sweet peas, which harmonized beautifully with their dainty little frocks of flesh georgette, and took their places on each side of the improvised altar.

Miss Jarman rendered softly during the ceremony, "To a Wild Rose." Miss Mattie Mitchell kept the bride's bouquet, and her Sunday school class assisted in entertaining.

The wedding gown was of blue crepe de Chine, gracefully fashioned on straight lines, with deep flounces of cream silk lace, and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies. She traveled in a brown Rosanara crepe.

Mrs. Brodnax is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. S. M. Holcomb, and by her charm of manner and sweet disposition has endeared herself to a large circle of friends. She attended the State College for Women, and for the past two years has been principal of the school at Walnut Grove. Mr. Brodnax is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Brodnax. He is cashier of the State Banking company at Walnut Grove, where they will make their home after a motor trip to the mountains of north Georgia.

Biltmore Lecture To Be on Prosperity.

Dr. Blanche Grosche Lovelidge will be heard at the Biltmore hotel Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock on the subject "Claiming the Invisible Supply."

Sunday's lecture will deal directly with methods, showing the various ways by which prosperity may be attained through the application of the proper psychological laws. Dr. Lovelidge will give to her audience scientific truths which command the attention of both men and women. They will be not only illuminating, but will endure the acid test of practical application.

An invitation is extended to the public to be present. Admission is free.

Mrs. Wight Entertains at Tea For Club at Georgian Terrace

An enjoyable feature of Thursday afternoon was the tea given at the Georgian Terrace to the girls and friends who are leaving for Log Cabin camp, near Waynesville, N. C. on June 28, by Mrs. George Wight, who is actively interested in the camp.

A special solo dance was introduced by Miss Ruth Lee Sigleton, who is a member of the faculty of Log Cabin camp. Miss Eugenia Bainbridge, a pupil of Miss Sigleton, danced also, wearing a most becoming and attractive Russian costume. A moving picture was made of the dances as well as of the entire assemblage. Punch was served by Mrs. George Gause.

Palms and foliage plants decorated the reception room, and large baskets of flowers were placed about the room. Mrs. Wight was gowned in cream lace veiling green chiffon, and her picture hat of green straw was trimmed with pink roses.

Mrs. George Gause wore white georgette crepe, crystal embroidered, and her hat was of red straw.

Miss Edythe Davis Is Honored By Miss Murray and Miss Branch

A delightful bridge party Saturday afternoon was given by Miss Dorothy Murray and Miss Elizabeth Branch at Miss Murray's home on Peachtree street, in honor of Miss Edythe Davis, whose marriage to Latham Croley, of Austin, Tex., will be an event of June 25.

Quantities of flame-colored nasturtiums in deep green bowls were used in decorating the living room, where the game was played, and the tea table had as its central decoration a large bowl of sweetpeas and white roses. The table was overlaid with a lace cover over green silk and the minis were of green and white. Miss Murray wore a beige crepe de chine trimmed in lace of the same shade.

Miss Branch wore orchid colored voile over silk of a paler shade, and trimmed in cream lace.

Miss Davis wore white georgette beaded in crystals.

Mrs. Murray wore cream-colored voile handsomely embroidered. The guests included sixteen close friends of the honor guest.

Mrs. Eugene Baldwin, a recent bride, was complimented at a miscellaneous shower on Saturday afternoon, given by Miss Nell Fudge at her home.

The decorations were effectively used summer flowers in deep green urns.

Miss Fudge was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. W. M. Fudge, and her sister, Miss Vonne Fudge.

Miss Fudge wore poude blue georgette trimmed in crystal beads.

Mrs. Fudge was gowned in white crepe de chine.

Miss Vonne Fudge wore pink georgette.

Mrs. Baldwin was gowned in an afternoon dress of white georgette.

Mrs. Ray was assisted in entertaining by Misses Catherine Ray and Frances Bowen.

Mrs. Salmon Honors Witches Club.

Mrs. J. H. Salmon entertained the Witches' club at her home on East Nineteenth street, Tuesday afternoon, June 17, after the regular business meeting was over. Bridge was played.

Miss Jimmie Lou Cruise won top prize. Mrs. E. L. Cockran won consolation prize.

Those present were Mrs. W. Humphries, C. L. Ivy, W. Ward, E. L. Cockran, L. N. Johnson, Mrs. Paul Crutchfield, Mrs. Harold Reed Harlan, Mrs. W. A. Crossland, W. E. Carnes, W. C. Andrews, Miss Jimmie Lou Cruise, Mrs. J. H. Salmon.

Miss Johnson Is Honored at Biltmore.

Mrs. Turner Launches Market Campaign At Headquarters

The market campaign launched by the Atlanta Woman's club under the leadership of Mrs. R. C. Turner, the new chairman of the market committee, has proved of great benefit to the Georgia farmers. Every day a large committee has been stationed at the club headquarters in the market to meet the visitors and patrons, and to encourage trading at the city market. The market committee arranged a beautiful basket of delicious farm products Saturday and carried it to the home of the friends. A similar basket will be filled each Saturday by the committee and taken to some orphanage in the community.

Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of the club and former chairman of the committee, feels very much encouraged over the outcome of the campaign, as through this medium the women of Atlanta will become familiar with the market and form the habit of going straight to the farmer to select the freshest and best country produce at the lowest price.

Berries of all kinds are very plentiful on market at this time and quantities of beautiful sweet peas from the farmers' gardens may be obtained at a very nominal sum. Home-grown green vegetables are in abundance and the housewives may furnish the table with the most appetizing edibles from the market at this season of the year. Dewberries, raspberries, strawberries, cherries and many preserving fruits are in abundance.

Miss Sarah Hudson Weds Roy L. Nelson.

A wedding of beautiful simplicity was that of Miss Sarah Hudson, of woman, and Roy L. Nelson, of Milledgeville, which was solemnized Saturday afternoon, June 13, at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Hudson, in Newnan, Ga. C. W. Durbin, pastor of the Central Baptist church, performed the ceremony.

The home was artistically decorated with ferns and garden flowers. The improvised altar was banked high with ferns and palms. Baskets filled with delicately colored flowers were placed on pedestals on either side.

Charles Conn, of Milledgeville, rendered a beautiful musical program, accompanied by Mrs. John E. Nelson, sister of the bride, who played the wedding march.

An aisle from the staircase to the altar was formed of white tulle by Miss Grace Boone, Miss Emily Arnold, Miss Helen Bagby, Miss Pauline Murphy. These lovely girls wore dresses of chiffon in pastel shades.

First to enter was the groomsmen, John Lewis, of Sparta, Ga., and the bridesmaid, Miss Helen Bagby, of Milledgeville, who wore yellow chiffon and a picture hat to match, and carried pink roses and swainsons.

The maid of honor, Miss Catherine Hudson, younger sister of the bride, wore a gown of orchid chiffon combined with Chantilly lace and French flowers. She wore an orchid hat and her bouquet was of pink roses and swainsons.

The bride entered with her father, N. B. Hudson, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, J. T. Terry, of Milledgeville.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of chiffon in the pastel shades over yellow lace, the full skirt of chiffon opening over the lace skirt, which was finished with French roses of pastel shades. Her large hat was of lace and flowers and she carried a shower bouquet of valley lilies, orchids and bride's roses.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held. Mrs. N. B. Hudson, wore a grey lace gown and a corsage of pink sweet peas.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. H. A. Hall, Mrs. R. N. Cole, Mrs. B. Blackburn, Mrs. M. C. Glover, Mrs. D. P. Cole and Mrs. Mary G. Jones. Serving punch were Miss Mary Mann and Miss Olive Dent Manget.

Miss Lula Mae Williams kept the bride's book.

During the afternoon the young couple left for a wedding trip, after which they will be at home in Milledgeville, Ga.

The bride's traveling gown was a three-piece model of tan chambray, her close-fitting hat a brown Milan straw.

Miss Radford Weds W. H. McCarty.

Dawson, Ga., June 21.—Marked by extreme simplicity, the wedding of Miss Mary Radford and William H. McCarty, which was solemnized Thursday morning, June 12 at the Dover Methodist church.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the color scheme of green and white having been carried out in the background of southern smilax, fern and palms. Pink hydrangeas were used in white baskets on tall white pedestals, the chancel rail having been covered with smilax and topped with white burning tapers.

Just before the ceremony Miss Lucille Lunsford, niece of the groom, sang "O Promise Me," after which Mrs. A. J. Johnson, of Macon, sang "I Love You Truly." Miss Nellie Brechevo had presided at the piano.

Then entered the bridal party, the groomsmen, Willard Pearson and M. D. Lutz, Jr., leading, followed by Mrs. Lloyd Ferguson, matron of honor, who wore a gown of grey georgette embroidered in steel cut beads, with a large picture hat. Her corsage was of lavender sweet peas. Opposite her entered Miss Edith Lannier, bridesmaid, gowned in a lovely creation of rose georgette over changeable taffeta, with leghorn hat and carrying pink sweet peas.

Little Miss Claude McElroy, cousin of the bride, gowned in silk pongee, entered carrying a huge white rose, holding the wedding ring.

She was followed by the little flower girls, Misses Dorothy Davis and Frances Stewart, who wore pink voile with cream lace and carried baskets of pink sweet peas. The bride entered with her sister, Miss Merrill Radford, maid of honor. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Jack McCarty, of Atlanta, his brother, W. H. McCarty, of Dawson, Ga., and Rev. C. R. McKibben, of Sasser, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. McCarty is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Radford.

Mr. McCarty is a prominent young business man of Zenith, Ga., where he is engaged in the mercantile business.

After their bridal trip to points in Florida and Cuba, Mr. and Mrs. McCarty will make their home in Zenith.

MISS LOUISE HUGHES.

Winner of a cash prize offered pupils of the Macon schools by the Macon W. C. T. U. for the best essay on "Five Reasons Why We Should Be Total Abstinents."

Mrs. Williams Institute Speaker

BY MRS. AUGUST BURGHARD.

Mrs. Marvin Williams, of Atlanta, vice president of the state W. C. T. U., and a national W. C. T. U. superintendent, was the attractive speaker at the Mercer University institute for training women in civic leadership on Monday evening.

She was introduced by Dr. Walter Anthony, an honorary member of the W. C. T. U., and a life-long friend of the speaker and her husband.

Mrs. Williams' lecture was illustrated by many young girls bearing the names of states, as she told how they became prohibition states. A group representing the 48 states gave a demonstration how the states ratified the eighteenth amendment.

Another group of girls bore a banner to the center of the platform, as Miss Julia Goodall sang "It's in the Constitution, and It's There to Stay."

When Mrs. Williams referred to the departments of work operated by the W. C. T. U., 20 young ladies passed in review, each carrying a pennant with the name of a department.

Albany Child Welfare Program.

"Mothers, we greet you today. We honor you today Young mothers and older mothers, our hearts are cemented by the great tie of mother love. It is mother care," said Mrs. J. L. Dunn in greeting the large gathering of mothers at the child welfare meeting of the Albany W. C. T. U. Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Ryrd Odum, the state W. C. T. U. superintendent of child welfare department, presided. Reports of practical work for children preceded the inspirational program, which began with devotion by Mrs. H. M. Mills. Mrs. Mills chose Hannah, the mother of Samuel, as her subject. Mrs. W. A. Stokes closed the devotions with prayer.

Miss Fowler Prize Winner.

College Park has won the state prize for the best temperance essay in the grammar grade schools three times within the past five years, and will be a strong competitor this year, judging from the excellence of the essay with which Miss Mildred Fowler, of the seventh grade, won over more than 100 in that local contest.

She was presented with a gold medal by the College Park W. C. T. U. Miss Hughes, winner in Macon.

Miss Louise Hughes, of the sixth grade, Harvard No. 2 school, of Macon, was victor in Macon W. C. T. U. contest for the best essay on the subject, "Five Reasons Why We Should Be Total Abstinents." Miss Hughes is the talented daughter of held at the Elks' home at 40 East Ellis street, Tuesday evening, June 24. The summer dance is one of the outstanding social events of the Elks' club for the summer season. A special effort is being made by the committee to make these dances as pleasant and enjoyable as possible. The dance for next Tuesday will be featured by exceptionally good music. Every Elk with lady is expected to be present. The committee is also assured of the honor of all the officers of the club at this dance.

All visiting Elks' ladies are most cordially invited.

Miss Dull Honored By Office Club.

A very enjoyable event of Thursday, June 19, was a birthday shower given by the "Get-Together club" of J. P. Allen & Co., to Miss Ethel Dull, one of its executives.

The affair came as a complete surprise to Miss Dull and took place at the offices of the Allen company. Refreshments were served preceding the opening of the gift packages, after which John R. Brington, credit manager, and spokesman of the evening, gave a delightful talk on "The Passing Years."

A man's pride would be vanity if possessed by his neighbor. If some men's reputations were visible they would look like porous plaster.

Summer Dance At Elks' Club.

Wayne Allen, chairman of the Elks' dance committee, announces the third dance of the summer season to be

Rev. H. O. Hughes, a Mercer university theological student, and Mrs. Hughes, of University place.

The cash prize essay was presented at the school on Wednesday by Miss Julia Goodall, the superintendent of the scientific temperance instruction department, who will forward it to the state superintendent, Mrs. W. P. Mott, of Waycross, to compete for the state prize. If it should win in the state it will be sent to Miss Cora Frances Stoddard, Boston, Mass., to enter the national contest.

Two medal contests were given by two groups of girls trained by Mrs. James Allen Smith, the Macon superintendent of the medal contest department, the past week.

Miss Barbara Calhoun, who read "Two Offerings," won the medal in the first, which was held at Rutland. The other participants and the titles of their readings were: Miss Sara Young, "Not Fit to be Kissed"; Miss Frances Thomas, "Two Lives"; Miss Julia Calhoun, "How the Question Came Home"; Miss Virginia Kliptrick, "Playing Drunkard"; Miss Edith Williams, (a) "The Burglar," (b) "The Temperance Doll."

At Mulberry Street Methodist church, Miss Zedee Smith, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chaucer Smith, of Vineville, was the medal winner. She read "Two Lives." Miss Ruth Mahone, daughter of Roland Mahone, and Mrs. Mahone, of Courtland avenue, and granddaughter of Mrs. R. V. Hardeman, beloved state pioneer W. C. T. U. worker, received honorable mention. Others reading were: Miss Virginia McCook, "Two Glasses"; Miss Eleanor Yates, "What Temperance Did For Me"; Miss Caroline Anderson, "How the Question Came Home," and Miss Helen Pierce, (a) "The Burglar," (b) "Since Papa Don't Drink."

Savannah W. C. T. U. Program.

"Health, the Child and America's Future" was the topic for discussion at the Savannah Willard W. C. T. U., when Mrs. C. E. Caldwell, the superintendent of the health department, presided.

Mrs. W. B. Stubbs explained that the chief aim of the department is the construction of health. This positive health culture tends to prevent disease, and so lessen the need for cure. This positive health idea is therefore fundamental.

By Adela Rogers St. Johns

The Sinister Shadow of a Barber Forms the Third Angle of a Triangle.

In olden times his shop must certainly have borne some awe-inspiring legend, such as "To Her Majesty" or "To Madam the Princess Royal."

Naturally, Hollywood doesn't go in for that sort of thing, so there is no sign above his doorway to proclaim Maurice as barber "To Their Majesties, the Queens of Filmdom." But Hollywood knows it just the same, and it is necessary to make appointments many days in advance to obtain the services of the great Maurice.

He is only a small, fat, perspiring foreigner, given to much smiling familiarity with his famous patronesses.

But he can cut hair.

There is no one in Hollywood, no one in New York, no one even in Paris, who can cut hair like Maurice. And it is an art. To cut a woman's hair beautifully, to find the exact style and angle and length that is most becoming, to give it a finish and a dash and a smartness—it is an art.

That is why Maurice is a person of importance in Hollywood.

Whenever two or three women are gathered together his name is mentioned more often than that of the most entrancing matinee idol. In Hollywood, at least, the question of to bob or not to bob is the chief plank in fashion's platform. And the lure of Maurice's shingle, the seduction of his straight job, the flattering appeal of his long cut have added many distinguished names to the roster of the bobbed sisterhood.

Thus Maurice, jovially clipping lovely blonde curls and treading famous raven tresses beneath his square toed boots, has played a fantastic part in a number of Hollywood's tragic comedies.

For the craze of bobbed hair has not rolled upon a path free from masculine objection and domestic obstacle.

His name never appeared in the sophisticated Emory-Ashe romance. He was never seen upon its stage. And even at its height, when Hollywood and Pasadena's Millionaire row speculated about little else, no one suspected the sinister shadow of Maurice, an absurd figure indeed to form a triangle with Jane Emory and Crocker Ashe.

The very slim girl, in a frock of son it reflected, "I wish you looked like your photograph."

"I don't," said a young man who had come lounging noiselessly through the curtains that framed an arched doorway. "You photograph so—so unintelligently, Janey. You photograph as though you said every morning, 'Day by day, in every way, I'm getting dumber and dumber.' There are even moments on the screen when you suggest that deadly influence on the mind of young America—the late, unlamented Polly-

Jane Emory, wrinkling her nose, "I should have brained her with an ax. Just the same, my young friend, it's terrible to photograph like a beauty and turn out to be a skinny young woman with eyes that don't match and a pug nose. Because you know, Crocker, the camera lies and lies and lies. On the screen I have—I really have, Crocker—a very delectable nose. And off it's the kind mothers put clothespins on at night."

Crocker Ashe lounged imperturbably into a big chair and gave his undivided attention to the matter under discussion. His expression was grave. And yet Jane could feel the laughter that always seemed about to consume him and so rarely did.

"I stipulate the nose," he said at last, when she had grown a little breathless under his calm scrutiny, "but it's a very companionable, humorous sort of a nose. And Janey, you must remember the color of your hair doesn't show on the screen. And your hair is quite nice. I like the way it coils on your neck and makes your head bend a little, as though it was too heavy for you. Sometimes I even dream about the color of it."

"But my eyes don't match," said Jane pathetically, hunching one shoulder up under her chin.

"No, but I suppose I'm accustomed to that because I had a dog once that had one gray eye and one brown—"

"Crocker Ashe," said his hostess, flaming, "you're a detestable thing. You're—you're a creature. If it wasn't for getting in the paper I'd festoon you with this bowl of china lilies."

Laughter at last overcame Crocker Ashe, the most contagious, irresistible laughter. "It would make entertaining reading," he admitted. "Famous screen star beans

Pasadena polo ace—they always call me that in the paper, probably because I never play polo—with her best crockery. He is expected to recover, but he will never look the same."

With that Jane collapsed on the davenport and began to laugh, too. She had a boyish habit of clasp-

"Don't," she said wildly. It's only a wig."

that loveliest shade of lusterless black, finished readjusting the scarf on the grand piano, gave a little restless touch to the bowl of lavender and orange sweet peas, and went to stand before a long, gilt mirror that dominated the drawing room.

"I wish" she said to the young per-anna. You aren't a bit like that, Janey."

The girl had turned swiftly at his voice, her eyes widening a little. But she stared at him.

"If Pollyanna had lived next-door to me when I was a little girl," said

Short Story

both hands on her knees that brought out all the charming awkwardness of her slim, adolescent body. There was something remarkably innocent in Jane's awkwardness, as though it had not yet accustomed itself to the wise and subtle graces of love.

The lamp on the table behind her sifted a golden light upon her hair and it shone that magnificent amber, with undertones that suggested a ripe apricot.

As Crocker Ashe had said, it was very nice hair. The narrow ribbon, of cobalt edged with silver running through its masses gave her a picturesque note. Certain modern painters would have joyed to do her portrait just as she sat there, and they would have called it, "Girl with a blue ribbon in her hair."

Crocker Ashe, who was never annoyed by silence, sat smoking and gazing at her with evident delight. But in spite of him, it became slowly one of those pregnant silences that are full of a thousand meanings. Jane, who could never keep still for two minutes on end, tapped the Persian rug with a restless and expressive toe. The feel of a climax, an impending crisis, has got into the air.

Crocker Ashe hadn't particularly intended to propose that evening.

He was awfully in love with her. He had been in love a good many times, one way and another, but he had rather a hunch that this was different. But he had lazily intended to let things drift. Crocker was always afraid that the next step might not prove so pleasant as the present one. As yet, he had never kissed her and he desired intensely, ardently, to kiss her. Last night, the thought of her bright hair and her lovely slender neck had kept him awake for hours. If Jane was not so beautiful she had a thousand and one graces that many beauties lacked—little, well made hands and feet and pretty ears, and a clear, warm skin.

But now that she was there, looking at him with that wide-eyed, surprised expression that was so characteristic of her, he clung for a last moment to anticipation. He had been disappointed so often. Perhaps after he kissed her he would not be so frightfully in love with her. It had happened before. And that would be tragic, because he thoroughly intended to propose to her before he kissed her. If he didn't, it would make her exactly like all the other girls he had kissed. If he waited until after they were engaged to kiss her the thrill might hold at least as far as the altar.

SOMEHOW he liked the thought that Jane Emory, with her human laughter and her surprised enthusiasms and her swift emotions was the sort of a girl a man didn't just kiss. Nevertheless, the fact remained that once he had asked her to marry him his bridges were burned. He wanted to marry Jane Emory, but he wasn't particularly keen about marrying.

He was fairly sure that she would have him. And it was his ultimate compliment to Jane, and her final charm for him, that he didn't think her acceptance would be because of the obvious and usual reasons.

His money and his position had made most girls too anxious to marry him. Crocker Ashe, who was heir to all the Ashe millions and the last of a great California family was a real catch. Just at that moment, all things considered, he was probably the best catch in a radius of several states.

But several seasons of debutantes had swept about him—some of them very beautiful debutantes—without washing him into the sea of matrimony. Bombardments by the cleverest of sirens and the loviest of widows, some of them in the social register and some in publications not so exclusive by any means, wary, and very particular.

And then along came Jane. Jane was quite right when she said that off the screen she was nothing but a terrible disappointment. When she was coerced and browbeaten into personal appearance, people didn't recognize her and the audience felt they had been cheated. Except for her hair she would have passed unnoticed in a small crowd—just a commonplace, rather graceful person. And yet a good many men had wanted very much too marry Jane.

Ten minutes after he met her a man hadn't the faintest idea what she looked like. Her witchery was that peculiar combination of gamin and angel that a few women achieve. Purity radiated from her, and yet a very imp of mischief, of provocation, of teasing enchantment danced in her eyes.

Crocker Ashe met her at a dinner party given for a famous violinist. He was a young violinist and he played divinely. Jane, still quivering from the music she had heard the night before, sat at his feet, drinking in his lightest word, her enthusiasm lighting her face with glory. She nodded to the tall, slow moving young man when he was presented, and returned instantly to her dark, young foreigner.

As a matter of fact, she didn't catch the name, but if she had it would have meant nothing to her. Jane Emory had never heard of Crocker Ashe, nor the Ashe millions, nor Mrs. Eleanor Templeton Ashe, nor the magnificent estate of Ashland. Jane had come to Hollywood direct from high school in Texas, and since then she had known nothing, seen nothing but motion pictures.

She did not read the society column, nor the sporting page, nor the financial reports nor even the news section. She read the dramatic column, and that was probably the only place in a Los Angeles newspaper where she could have escaped the name of Crocker Ashe.

Even if she had, Jane would have cared surprisingly little.

But it was a new sensation to Crocker Ashe.

The next day the young violinist went the way of all such divinities, and Crocker Ashe projected himself, lazily and very charmingly upon Miss Emory's unengaged attention.

All she saw was a tall, exceedingly well built young man, with a most attractive look of grace, amusement, and an impudent, rather ugly face. She liked the way he wore his clothes, which were inclined to be almost foppish, as though he had never given them a thought. She liked the way he walked, bent just a little at the waist. So she was nice to him for that reason and not because of his bank balance.

That, too, was a new sensation for Crocker.

Crocker held out for three weeks, and then he asked her to go fishing.

He hadn't asked anyone to go fishing for months and months. The last one had been Conchita Yorna, the newest debutante beauty, who had tried hard to be annoyed with him about it. One mustn't be annoyed with Crocker Ashe, of course. But Crocker knew after the first ten minutes that if he'd been one of the clerks in his own bank Conchita would have insulted him with all the insolence of her Spanish-Californian temperament, and demanded to be taken back to town instantly.

For Crocker Ashe didn't like to go fishing with trimmings. True, he had a yacht in San Pedro harbor and a motor boat at Catalina, where he held numerous records at the Tuna club. And off the Mexican coast he had once caught a sword fish so big it was impossible to lie about it.

But that wasn't the way he really liked to fish.

Three or four hours' drive from Los Angeles down the California coast was a little pier that stretched its picturesque and dilapidated lengths into the deepest blue waters. It was an old pier, rough and weather stained, and when the great waves broke foaming and sunlit it rocked thrillingly. To right and to left the white bluffs of the coast line stretched endlessly, topped by black-green pines, but aside from that the whole world was a vast expanse of shimmering blue water and gleaming golden blue sky.

Solitude lay thickly about it. Farmers from the San Diego valley and hands from the adjoining cattle ranches were the only people who ever came there. But perch and barracuda and yellowtail and mackerel and speckled bass played in schools about the pier's end.

The grizzled man who sold bait at the pier entrance was a friend of Crocker's. When he saw Jane climb out of the car, in tweed knickers with her little girl legs in tan woolen stockings and her hair hidden under a soft, felt sport hat, he grinned somewhat toothlessly as he supplied them with mussels and clams. Being himself a fisherman, he had long ago fathomed Crocker's acid test. It was a divine day, and even his old heart was beating a little more quickly with the wine in the air and the paradise of colors, so perhaps that is why he was so pleased with the enthusiastic smile Jane gave him.

Two weeks later he said to his wife, "Well, I guess that young fellow named Ashe is hooked at last. He brung the same girl in pants back again today. He's brung a smart lot of 'em down here, these last five years, but this is the first time he's ever brung the same one twice."

The bait man was right. Crocker Ashe was hooked.

He knew it when he could sit and gaze at Jane Emory no longer. He went and sat beside her on the davenport and he said, almost teasingly, "I say Janey, if you expect to have any reputation left you'd better marry me. No girl in pictures can afford to run around with a young man, especially a rich devil like me, and keep a speck of her virtue in the public's eyes. I offer myself as a husbandly guarantee of your respectability."

He saw her eyes darken and he felt her heart beating against him so wildly that it seemed almost as though he had a new heart within his own breast.

He need not have worried about the first kiss. It was not a disappointment.

The annexation of Crocker Ashe was a distinct triumph for Hollywood and a shocking disappointment to fashionable Pasadena. It gave them a frightfully let down feeling, as though the heir apparent had married a barmaid. A number of screen stars had married rather well. But Crocker Ashe was the crowning success. Some of the girls wondered how Jane, who had no reputation as a heart masher, had managed to steal the best catch of several seasons from under the disdainful noses of the social beauties, but they were pleased nevertheless.

Of course, since the war, society is not what it was. The lines are down everywhere. But the Emory-Ashe engagement followed closely upon the heels of several motion picture scandals that had rocked the nation, and Hollywood felt that Crocker Ashe was an addition to the industry, even as an in-law, that would do much to reestablish a shattered prestige.

It was a blow to Pasadena's millionaire colony to realize that a young and mediocre motion picture actress was to be Mrs. Crocker Ashe, who by every right and tradition was entitled to leadership.

MRS. ELEANOR TEMPLETON ASHE, who was Crocker's mother, had let things slip rather badly herself during the last years. It was possible to ignore politely her addition to various nefarious, psy-

RUTH CHATTERTON

ELIZABETH, QUEEN OF BELGIUM

It is much easier to pose in the panel of a boudoir mirror than to sit for a portrait. Ruth Chatterton, who appears on the left, knows how exacting it is to be quiet while your portrait is being painted. On the right is Elizabeth, Queen of Belgium, (Copyright, Harris & Ewing) who sat to the portrait painter, Jean McLane.

EOR shortening the neck and enlarging the ears of the Queen of Belgium, $500.

"For brightening up the complexion and giving a gold cast to the hair of the Queen of Belgium, $300."

Now would you call those prices exorbitant or not? Evidently Mrs. E. H. Harriman thought they were quite reasonable, considering they had to do with renovating royalty, because she paid the bill without a flicker. Yes, she just wrote her check for $10,000 to cover these and other items just as if she were paying an ordinary bill for average services rendered by and for everyday people.

You see it all happened this way. Mrs. Harriman and other wealthy and patriotic New York people gave money for a series of war portraits and Jean McLane was commissioned to paint the Queen of Belgium. Cecilia Beaux was already over there painting a portrait of Cardinal Mercier, which now hangs, along with the others, in the National Gallery at Washington. Cecilia and Jean being our most celebrated women portrait painters, everybody thought, of course, that Jean would jump at the chance to paint Belgium's lovely little queen.

But you've always got to reckon with the eccentricities of genius. And to make matters worse, there were, in this case, two geniuses to reckon with, for Jean is married to one of them. In private life she is Mrs. John Christen Johansen, and Mr. John Singer Sargent himself is reported to have said that "Jan" is America's best portrait painter.

SO, as you imagine, Jan and Jean are some team of geniuses when they get going. (Don't forget to pronounce those J's as if they were Y's, because Jan was born in Denmark and he likes the Danish J.)

Jean considers Jan an asset, not a liability, for never could you wish to see a more devoted and understanding couple. But to the committee Jan looked at that time for all the world like a liability. And there were other liabilities, too. There were—and still are—two children and a maid.

And also there are the two children. It may be perfectly true, as Mrs. Anonymous says, that a dab of white paint from Jean McLane's palette is worth $100 but if that is the case an unprejudiced observer, after looking at the picture, would probably say that the children are certainly worth their weight in gold.

At that time Jan was busy painting "The Signing of the Peace Treaty," a picture which is a contribution to the history of this dramatic age. He had been there when the treaty was signed. And he had come home with his sketches and his notes to finish his picture.

Well, Jean took the position that if the committee wanted her to go to Europe to paint the Queen of Belgium they should also send with her Jan and the babies and the maid. How else could she be satisfied and happy? And if she were unsatisfied and unhappy how could she paint? It all seemed so simple to her. And yet that was a hard-boiled committee. They couldn't see it at all. If Cecilia Beaux could take a ship on a few days' notice, why could not Jean McLane do the same thing? That was the way they reasoned. You can understand how they felt about it.

OF course, it was entirely different with Cecilia. She is a bachelor maiden. When she wants to go, all she has to do is to turn the key in the door of her co-operatively owned studio in New York's "block beautiful," and go.

I don't know just when Jean began to have a change of heart on the whole matter. Perhaps it was after Cecilia got home with her striking portrait of Belgium's beloved cardinal. Anyway, in due time she did change her mind. She decided that perhaps she could live without Jan and the kiddies long enough to get that portrait finished, and so she went.

Of course, it was very hard luck for Jan and for Jean that the committee had spent all of its money and lost much of its interest by the time they got their pictures finished. And, very sad to relate, poor Jan has never yet received the $15,000 which was his charge for painting "The Signing of the Peace Treaty." Jan is no business man—far from it. He's only an artist. He had no contract or anything, but he had hopes of the committee paying his bill. They say the money's all gone. They do say about town, of course, the things will be adjusted in some way.

Isn't it too bad that America does that way? We get all worked over something and plunge ahead recklessly. Then, we cool off and lose interest and before we know it we're dizzy with the excitement of some other big and high spirited thing. We are the greatest starters of worth while things in the world.

BUT there is evidence that Jean is more enterprising than Jan. She fretted quite a bit about the

Was the Bobbed Haired Bandit

WHEN Cecilia Cooney, the bobbed-haired bandit who for months been terrorizing the people of Brooklyn and baffling the New York police, at last was caught, there was little if any sympathy for this girl wife who had joined her husband in a dozen bold hold-ups at the point of her pistol.

Everybody hoped that she would be given a speedy trial and sent where she would for a long time be unable to prey upon the property of law abiding citizens and put their lives in danger. And this is exactly what happened.

She confessed her crimes, and after a remarkably short trial was sentenced to pass the rest of her youth behind the grim walls of the state prison at Auburn, New York.

But during the trial certain facts concerning her life were brought out that aroused in the hearts of many thoughtful men and women for this girl of twenty a considerable feeling of sympathy.

It was not the maudlin sympathy which the sentimental and the morbid-minded often show for criminals, but a sympathy which had for its basis the strong suspicion that Cecilia Cooney's fellow citizens, through what they had failed to do for her, had had a large share in making her a criminal and a convict.

Was the bobbed-haired bandit alone to blame for the wreck she has made of her life, or should most of the responsibility for her sins and disgrace and ruin fall on the prosperous, respectable citizens of the community in which she lived?

Had society, through its failure to give this pitiable girl of the gutter even a fighting chance at decency, made her what she has become?

These were the questions which thoughtful and conscientious citizens could not help asking themselves when they read the sordid story of

Puzzling Problems Raised by the Fate Of Cecilia Cooney, Doomed to Pass the Rest of Her Youth In Prison

Cecilia Cooney's life as it was unfolded by a probation officer.

According to the report made by this officer Cecilia was born in a dingy basement in the heart of New York's crowded East Side tenement district. She was the youngest of eight children.

Her parents were born in New York city. The mother can neither read nor write. The father has had very little education and has been a habitual drunkard most of his life. He has never worked steadily and never supported his family. What little support came into the family came through the mother. The children were sadly neglected. Almost as soon as they were old enough to walk they were sent into the streets to beg. Often they had to sleep on the coal pile in their dark and dirty cellar home. Half the time they had barely enough rags to cover their bodies, and they seldom got enough to eat.

CECILIA COONEY first came to the official notice of the civilization into which she had been born, at the age of four years, when she was taken into the custody of the Children's society. Six months later, on recommendation of the department of public charity, she was turned back to her mother. But the mother, always heartless and unnatural to her children, promptly deserted her.

An unmarried aunt took Cecilia to live with her in Brooklyn. She sent Cecilia to school. From the time Cecilia was first taken by the aunt until she was fourteen years old the mother came on several occasions, had Cecilia all dressed up by her aunt and took her to New York with her. She kept her in a furnished room and later deserted her after she had taken the child's clothes from her.

When Cecilia would be found by neighbors she would be dirty and ragged and would be returned to her aunt. This happened on several occasions.

Meanwhile two of the older sisters had grown up and gone into business and had established a home in Brooklyn. They asked the mother to take care of the home and little Cecilia. The mother came here with the girl, but it wasn't long before she brought the father in, too, meeting and feeding him during two of them to live on the small the day at the home and at the expense of the two girls, neglecting Cecilia and failing to provide dinner for the girls when they returned in the evening. Finally the mother left them altogether, going away with her husband.

At about the age of fourteen years Cecilia left her home in Brooklyn and went to live with her mother. There she remained for a very short period and came back to Brooklyn to live with a married sister for about one year. During that time she worked steadily in a brush factory.

This sister states that Cecilia left her home because she disapproved of her remaining out at night and associating with and bringing sailors into the home. Although Cecilia was ambitious and always worked, the sister states she would steal little things.

Cecilia left her sister's home and went to live with her mother in a furnished room in New York. She was then about sixteen years of age and the sisters heard nothing more of her until her arrest and identification as the bobbed-haired bandit.

A typical street in New York's crowded East Side where the future bobbed haired bandit was schooled in vice and crime

The lovers were married and they soon found out it was hard for the wages Cooney earned as a welder. Soon after the first of this year, when it became evident that there would soon be at least one more mouth for them to feed, their need for money became so desperate that they staged their first hold-up.

It proved ridiculously easy for Cecilia to walk into a small grocery store with her husband behind her, flourish her gun at the proprietor and clerks and take away from them whatever they had made during the day. The Cooney's were so flushed by the success of their first attempt that they repeated it over and over again until Brooklyn was in a state of terror and the whole New York police was concentrating on the capture of the bobbed-haired bandit and the man who invariably accompanied her.

But the hold-ups that made the mysterious girl bandit the most talked of woman in the country yielded her and her husband only about $1,000. By the end of April most of this had been spent and, with Cecilia's baby expected within a month, they were more desperate than ever for money.

"We've been playing a piker's game," said Edward Cooney. "We must try something bigger, get our hands on a lot of dough and then go to Florida, where I'll get work and we will settle down to an honest life."

"All right, Ed," agreed Cecilia Cooney. "Anything you say."

So they bought tickets to Florida and a few hours before the steamer sailed they walked into the office of a large manufacturing company pointed their guns at the manager and clerks and ordered them to throw up their hands. This was the most ambitious hold-up they had ever attempted. From the office safe and cash drawer they expected to take thousands of dollars—enough to see Cecilia through the ordeal of motherhood and to establish her husband in some good business in Florida.

BUT here, for the first time in their criminal career, their plans went wrong. One of the clerks showed fight and Cooney shot and wounded him. The bandits finally had to flee to the steamer without one penny of their expected loot.

Worse luck of all in the hurry of her flight, Cecilia Cooney dropped an address book which revealed her identity to the police and made the arrest of her and her husband only a matter of time.

They reached Jacksonville. There Cecilia's baby was born and died. And there, a few days later, the relentless New York detectives found them.

Such is the true story of the bobbed-haired bandit and many observers think it supplies good ground for thinking that Cecilia Cooney was by no means all to blame—that a large share of the responsibility for her ill spent life rests on society.

In the pitiable facts of her girlhood, the way she grew up under the most vicious influences and was allowed to go on from bad to worse, they see the civilization of which we feel so proud indicted on two points:

First, for having permitted such wretched creatures as Cecilia's parents to bring eight children into the world.

Second, for not having picked the girl out of the gutter in her babyhood and placed her in some institution where there would have been at least a chance of overcoming the evil influence of her heredity.

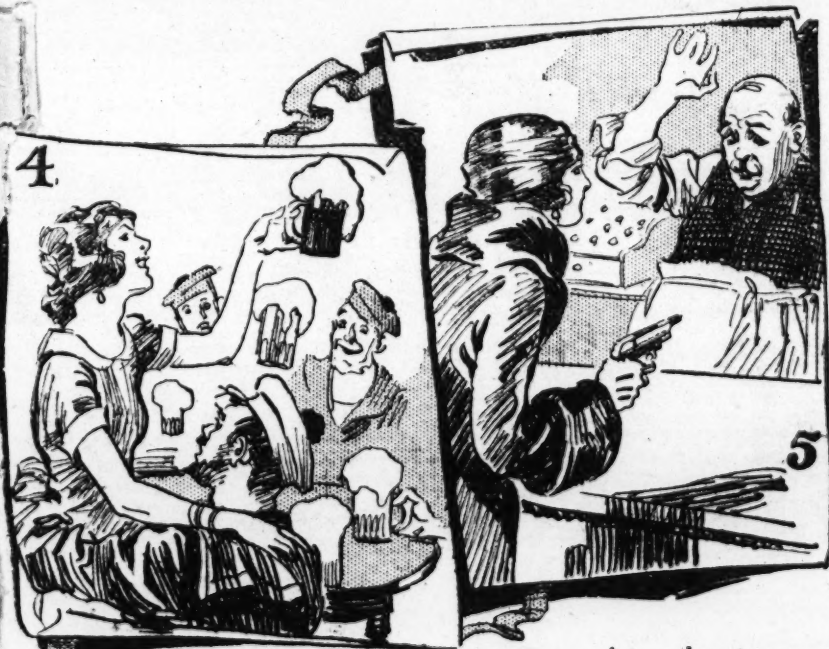

It is pointed out that the courage, determination and quick wittedness which Cecilia Cooney displayed as a bandit shows her to have mental qualities which, with the proper training, might easily have made her a decent, happy member of the community.

Poor Cecilia was never given any chance to develop the better side of her nature. Society left her to grow up as best she could—in dirt, vice, ignorance and neglect.

But there are many other equally thoughtful persons who do not take this view of the matter at all—who do not feel that any share of the girl bandit's guilt should be charged to society's neglect. While lent ancestry and the best of environment will not always prevent the development of black sheep.

Countless men and women who prove of real value to the world are, it is urged, the products of conditions fully as bad as those which produced the bobbed-haired bandit. They ask you to look for example no further than Cecilia's own family. Two of her sister's, reared in precisely the same evil environment that she was, have lifted themselves many degrees above their original level and become respectable, hard working, law abiding women.

Some go so far as to say that it is a crime against civilization for organized charity and the state to foster persons of such poor stock as that from which Cecilia Cooney sprang. Far better, they say, to leave them entirely to natural influences in the hope that sooner or later, through the operation of the law of the survival of the fittest, all or most of these undesirable members of society will be exterminated.

Otherwise it is feared the day may come when persons of low nervous organization, like Cecilia Cooney's parents, will far outnumber those with more highly developed brains and nervous systems—the sort who make our civilization what it is. It is a well known fact that men and women of low nervous organization are apt to be far more prolific than those of a higher.

Such are some of the problems raised by the case of the bobbed-haired bandit. Very perplexing they are, and very serious, too, in their effect on the future of the nation and the whole world.

In the slums of our great cities hundreds of thousands of boys and girls are growing up under conditions as bad and worse than those which surrounded Cecilia Cooney.

Should society try by every means in its power to counteract the evil influences of their heredity and environment? Or is it better to let them pretty largely alone and rely on the gradual elimination by natural processes of those who are unable to survive the struggle and make something of themselves?

A scintillating short story by the author of "O.K.", Mary Morison.

WHILE they admit that perhaps her ruin would have been somewhat less complete if she had been shielded from some of the evil influences that beset her girlhood, they doubt if any amount of kind care and attention would have entirely saved her for decency.

Many who take this view doubt the wisdom of preventing men and women like Cecilia Cooney's parents from bringing children into the world. They point to the Frank's murder case in Chicago as evidence that even excel-

Just How Rich King

STORY of wealth that staggers the imagination and beggars any description of ancient magnificence heretofore known has just been obtained by a scholar at the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania.

He got it from a source of unquestioned authority—the ruler who possessed all these riches and wrote himself or ordered this detailed account of them to be written. And this ruler was no other than Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, the monarch whose career makes one of the most fascinating stories in the Old Testament.

Even the Book of Daniel has failed to give us an adequate idea of the amazing glories in which, as science now knows, this vain ruler lived.

"Nebuchadnezzar the King," says the Bible, "made an image of gold, whose height was three score cubits and the breadth thereof six cubits; he set it up in the plain of Dura; in the Province of Babylon."

Until the translation of this remarkable account of Nebuchadnezzar's wealth, some authorities have been inclined to question the existence of the great golden image described in the Book of Daniel, even though it is supported by the following testimony of Herodotus:

"In this temple of Babylon is another chapel down below, in which is seen a great gold statue representing a seated Jove. Close to the statue there is a great gold table; the throne and the dais are of the same metal. The whole according to the Chaldeans weigh 800 gold talents.

"Outside of the chapel is seen a gold altar, on which only suckling lambs were sacrificed. There was, moreover, in those days within the sacred area a statue of massive gold, whose height was twelve cubits. I have not seen it, and only report what the Chaldeans tell about it."

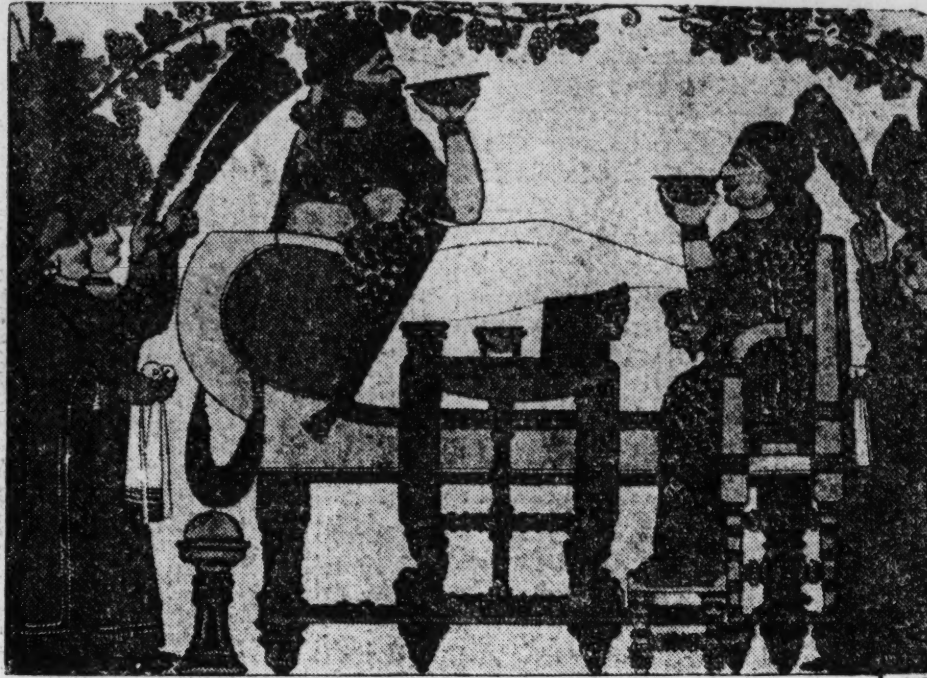

But the translation of the cuneiform inscription on the clay cylinder that has lain so long unread in the Philadelphia museum leaves no doubt that Nebuchadnezzar honored his gods with statues of solid gold and did still more amazing things with the immense riches which his conquests brought him.

The inscription on the cylinder, perhaps written by the King himself and certainly put there by his express command, shows that neither Herodotus' history nor the Book of Daniel gives anything like an adequate idea of the greatness of Nebuchadnezzar's wealth.

No monarch or billionaire of our day lives in the splendor or scatters gold, silver and rare gems about so prodigally as this Old Testament ruler did. Having no charities or educational enterprises to furnish an outlet for his money, as our modern Rockefellers and Fords have, he devoted himself to making the temple of the gods and his own palace things of dazzling splendor.

In his palace even the door knobs were of solid gold and the walls, ceilings and floors of many rooms were thickly studded with precious stones.

The new description of Nebuchadnezzar's magnificence now given to the world has been under the eyes of scientists for thirty years. It was brought

Ancient Babylonian frieze showing the King and one of his numerous wives enjoying a cup of wine together

Science Finds the Old Testament Monarch's Own Account of His Immense Wealth and the Amazing Things He Did With It in London in 1888, after it had been dug up in the ruins of Babylon by a native.

THE record is inscribed on a hollow barrel of clay and was probably compiled, according to its translator, Dr. Leon Legrain, shortly before 586 B. C.—more than 2,500 years ago. By order of Nebuchadnezzar himself it was buried into the foundations of a temple much as records are placed to-day in the cornerstones of churches and other buildings.

"The scholar shall read all my deeds which I have described in this document and he shall understand the excellence of my gods," wrote the pious but extremely vain Nebuchadnezzar.

There are on the cylinder three columns of cuneiform inscription of ninety-six lines each, so that the writing is one of the largest of its kind ever found. It has been on view in the museum all these years without translation until now, because each succeeding scholar felt sure that such a large item must have been studied by his predecessors.

According to Dr. Legrain the state boats, the description of which is given by Nebuchadnezzar, were used to carry the gods in procession during the feasts of the New Year over the rivers and canals between Babylon and Borsippa. This was done "for the admiration of the people crowding on the shores, among whom many a captive Israelite, and likely the prophet Daniel, would stand, sore at heart, and look with abomination on these Pagan splendors."

Part of the pavement which was built in the temple of the Moon God at of Nebuchadnezzar's money, and so well built that it has survived to

The story of his wealth as told by King Nebuchadnezzar on the clay cylinder begins with a recital of how, when Marduk, the great lord, had made him pastor of his countries and Nabu, his true son, had trusted royal power in his hands, he marched with the help of their sublime power "from the upper to the lower sea."

On this march he gathered in "silver, costly precious stones, huge cedar trees, heavy tributes, magnificent presents, the products of all countries, the treasures of all habitation was evidently one of the great looting expeditions on record. Nebuchadnezzar asserts that both Marduk and Marduk then looked with favor on him, and then he continues:

"Esagila, the awe-inspiring sanctuary, the palace of heaven and the house of delight; Ekua, the house of the Enlil of the gods; Marduk, the gate of Zabu."

A portion of the recently translated cuneiform inscription that shows what a huge income tax old Nebuchadnezzar would have to pay if he lived in the United States to-day

The King was so vain of his riches that he described them in great detail on this clay cylinder joints with shining bronze. The huge cedar trees which my pure hands cut in their forest of Mount Lebanon I clothed with shining gold and I adorned with precious stones and I had them laid across by three as a roof over Emtilla, the shrine of Nabu.

"Above these cedars I spread shining bronze as a covering. Above the bronze I placed a tahlal as a crowning fence on their top. In order that no rain, storm or cataract of heaven should reach them I redoubled and with strong cedar wood built a new roof above them.

"As for the six rooms adjoining the shrine of Nabu, I adorned their cedar roof with bright silver. As a roof over all these rooms I laid huge cedar trees, I fabricated huge bulls in bronze and I clothed them with a coating of gold and adorned them with precious stones and I placed them on the threshold of the shrine gate.

"The threshold, the fretter, the bar, the doorwings, the lintel, the knob, the lock, the bolt of the shrine gate I plated with shining gold. With tiles of clear silver I made bright the passage to the shrine and the entrance to the temple.

"The doorwings of Magan and cedar wood I encased in clear silver and over the hollow of their span I placed lustrous alabaster and I fixed the lintels of all their doors. I fabricated huge bulls of silver and I placed them on its threshold."

THE foregoing only partly describes all the gold, silver, alabaster, precious stones and shining bronze that Nebuchadnezzar expended in the temples. He literally threw gold everywhere, according to this account.

At that time there were two walls of Babylon, with a moat between. He built a third.

In the second column of the cylinder the King finishes his description of the buildings he adorned so splendidly, and begins to describe the prodigal way he lavished gold and jewels on the boats.

"I adorned the boat Udura," he wrote, "on which rides the lord of the gods, Marduk, its front and rear, its upper structure, its sides, its deck post and dragon with 14 talents, 12 minehs of shining gold, 750 pieces of marble and bright lapis lazuli, and on the surface of the clear Euphrates I let him shine splendid like the stars in heaven and I filled it with jewels for the admiration of all the people.

"I covered the cabin of the boat of the Ganul canal, the boat of Nabu, and also both sides, with 13 talents, 36 minehs of shining gold and costly precious stones and for the going and coming of the illustrious son, Nabu, who at Zagmuk the beginning of the year rides in triumph into Babylon, I let it shine-like the day."

THE same cylinder record furnishes evidences that Nebuchadnezzar did not confine his efforts to mere decoration. The Persians at this time were getting stronger in the east and were soon to overrun his country. Perhaps as a result of the warnings of the prophet Daniel, the King made costly provisions to prevent invasion.

"To strengthen the defense of Babylon, what no former king had done I did," reads the cylinder. "Four thousand cubits of land on the side of the city, far off, unapproachable, I encompassed with a strong wall toward the east of Babylon.

"I dug its moat and I reached down to the water level. I built its moat wall with bitumen and bricks and I joined and connected it closely with the wall of my father and I built on its edge a mighty wall of bitumen and bricks mountain high.

"For the defence of Esagila and Babylon to prevent the silting of dry banks in the bed of the Euphrates I had a great dam made of bitumen and bricks in the river. I laid its foundation in the depths of the water and I raised its head mountain high.

"I restored Tabisupurshu, the rampart of Borsippa. I led its moat wall of bitumen and bricks around the city as a protection. I restored for Marbiti, who shatters the arms of my enemies, his temple of Borsippa.

"For Ninkarrak, the mistress of life, the preserver of my soul, who inhabits Etila, I restored Etila, her temple in Borsippa.

"For Ninkarrak, the exalted princess, who spreads afar the renown of my royalty, who inhabits Egula, I restored Egula, her temple in Borsippa.

"For Ninkarrak, the great lady, who keeps my soul alive, who inhabits Izibatilla, I restored Izibatilla, her temple in Borsippa."

Nebuchadnezzar was not only famous for his riches, but also for the cruel methods with which he opposed his enemies. Every reader of the Bible remembers how he had Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego cast into a fiery furnace because they refused to worship the golden image he had set up.

Instead of burning the three men as he expected the flames did not touch

The Air Hackman

By Lawrence Perry

HEY were serving coffee and liqueurs on the terrace of Gregory Trine's country place.

Gregory Trine's entertainments at his town-house on upper Fifth Avenue, in the winter and spring following the Armistice, had been memorable indeed. Now he had plunged into the summer in the same way. Trine had been active in the war; in his capacity as a world banker he had been a very bulwark to the financially depressed allies. He required relaxation, diversion. Pleasure had been too long delayed.

Muriel Westmore found the scene inspiring. To the evening itself there was a poetic cast, and the groups in their light evening-gowns and dinner-coats, idling at the little tables with their flickering crimson-shaded lights, the music of an orchestra coming down from the veranda, stolid servants moving hither and thither, thrilled her with a complexity of subtle emotion.

Besides, Arthur Fane had taken a chair at her side and was leaning toward her confidentially.

"I haven't had a chance to compliment you on your gown. I suggested the coloring, as I recall. I'm flattered."

Muriel was flattered, too. Fane had a flair for gowns. His criticism was accepted as the last word. He had a flair for women as well. His devotion to one or another of the sex was a cachet of high approval.

"Do you know," he whispered earnestly, "you have something more than a delicate Dresden beauty. As you came in to dinner, I thought of Jensen's 'Gradiva,' the girl beautiful in walking."

"Well, thank you, Mr. Fane, I—"

"Mr. Fane!"

A thrill shot through her.

"Well—Arthur."

She felt the warm pressure of his fingers upon her bare forearm.

"Thank you," he said.

Muriel's eyes were shining. This was Life. It had begun in the winter—this and many other affairs, incidents, scenes and impressions, all of an origin too recent to be accepted with aught save a keenness of pleasure that narrowly missed ingenuousness.

Fane had turned away to reply to a remark from some one at an adjoining table. Muriel gazed with a proprietary smile upon his thin, shapely head with its glossy hair, the trim back and shoulders. It was easy for her to see why most women liked him, why some—according to report—had adored him. His easy gallantry, his air of the world, his specialized knowledge of things that interest women, and above all, a quality which enabled him to say the thing a girl most wanted to hear and infallibly to do that which was flattering—all these things distinguished him from most men. Socially he was of the inner circle.

He had the sort of background that lay behind most men of his class and sort who have remained unmarried. Nothing dreadful, to be sure

An Emotional Tale of a Beautiful Girl's Selection From Two Admirers, Both of Whom Fascinated, and How It Was Brought About

—an affair or two, a dalliance here and there—no, nothing shocking.

Now she was listening with unaffected delight to the talk of those about her, recalling scenes of the sort she had read in English novels, and noting with some amusement the national variation in dialogue.

JUDITH TRINE presently came down from the house, whither she had been summoned to the telephone. Evidently she was primed with a matter of importance. Muriel and Fane, who were about to detach themselves from the group, paused.

"I don't know whether you will approve or not," said the hostess. "Gregory doesn't, altogether. But the opportunity seemed too good to let go. You see, this afternoon when Muriel Westmore started to speak, but her voice caught. She tried again, something in the manner drawing general attention.

"I was a—little familiar with that branch of the service, Cousin Judith," she said. "Did he tell you who he was? I mean, his name?"

"Why—yes; of course, my dear. Let me see. Dear, dear! Don't they say one is getting paresis when one fails to remember names? Oh, Rex Peters,"—she turned to a young man who came up at that moment with a party from another table—"what was the aviator chap's name?"

"I took rather a fancy to the aviator; he was a clean-cut chap, a gentleman. He had been an ace in the war, he told me. His record was twelve planes."

Rex Peters and I were motoring, we went down to East Beach. There was an aviator there with a seaplane, taking people out over the sea and back at so much a trip. Rex and I went—"

"You did!" There were various exclamations.

"Oh, I've been up before, lots of times—mostly at Palm Beach. I took rather a fancy to the aviator; he was a clean-cut chap, a gentleman. He had been an ace in the war, he told me. His record was twelve enemy 'planes—"

"Oh, he told you!" scoffed Massiter.

"Well, naturally, you never can tell. But I believed him. I still do. Rex thought he might be stretching a bit. I'm not easily fooled, though. I'll stick to my peg on him."

"Graydon," was the prompt reply. "Dan—or Donald—Graydon; I forget which."

"Yes, Graydon. Did you know of him, Muriel?"

"Why—why—"

Mrs. Trine moved toward the girl. "What is the matter? You're not ill, Muriel?"

"Oh, no, not at all, Cousin Judith. No. I—I knew Mr. Graydon—slightly. He was an ace. He made a splendid record. I can't imagine his going into the amusement business."

"Yes, I almost spoke to him about that," Mrs. Trine turned to Peters. "The war was so upsetting to so many boys. There is Jack Florence, for example."

"Oh," said Peters, "Jack was wild, anyway. This fellow Graydon didn't seem that sort, exactly. He—he—I don't know—the whole thing struck me as—"

"Out of drawing," supplied Mrs. Trine. "Yes, it did. He bought his 'plane from the government, he said, and had gone into business. I suppose the sort of people he was taking up made it more bizarre—stout women, hysterical girls—"

Fane laughed satirically.

"There's war for you. Once a hero, now an air hackman."

"But"—there was a strained note in Muriel's voice—"you have to keep in mind that he was a hero. And after all, how can anyone tell what circum—"

"Quite right, my dear," interrupted Mrs. Trine. "That is precisely how you are all to view him tomorrow—as a hero. You are all to be especially civil to him. For, you see, I've engaged him to come here with his seaplane and take us over to Montauk for a picnic."

As though by magic the atmosphere became vivacious, diminishing eventually through natural and agreeable processes into highly diverting badinage attending selection of partners for the flight across Long Island sound.

FANE'S hand sought Muriel's arm. "Let's get out of this," he whispered. "Of course you and I are booked for the trip."

Without conscious volition she fell into step at his side, walking as he led.

"An air hackman!" she said at length. "What a beastly phrase!"

"Oh—" Fane, who also had been occupied with his own thoughts, stopped and faced her. They had ascended a small rocky hill at one side of the house. The moon had established dominance over the dusky landscape; over the trees, now sharply defined in outline, was the vague sheen of the sound. "You were thinking of that aviator guy. The trend is markedly inappropriate, Muriel. It's not complimentary. And—yes, by George! You said you knew him, said it in the throaty accents of the melodrama. What horrid nightmare from the past is this, creeping in to break the charm of a midsummer night's dream?"

Muriel rewarded the mock tragedy with a laugh and a shrug.

"It's from the past, all right."

He stared at her, his manner, however, still light.

"Behold your confessor."

"Don't be silly."

"I'm not silly. I'm curious."

"It's hardly worth your curiosity. There was a boy and a girl who used to know each other rather well. It was ideal—sort of. Then war, the beautiful sacrifice of youth. It was beautiful, too."

"There's more than one war bride who'll agree with you."

"Don't be horrid, Arthur." She didn't want to go on, but she had to. "He made good in France. Father made good at home. When he came back, the Westmores had a modest country place on Long Island and a townhouse. Cousin Judith had taken me up." Suddenly she thrust out her hands, laughing. "Well, there you are. Not much to tell, was it?"

Jane's Bob

chics, palmists, magnetic healers, and even the presence of an occasional spirit guide, but they obviously left her little time for keeping a firm hand on the reins of social government. Much hope had centered upon the future Mrs. Crocker Ashe. If only Crocker would be sensible and marry Conchita or Margaret McNeil Westbrook, or Mrs. Adams Morgan.

There was always the hope that this infatuation for a picture actress might not last. Some of his friends even contemplated arguing with him and giving Jane Emory the cold shoulder. But Conchita convinced them they were wrong.

"Is he terribly in love with her?" Conchita said hotly to Mrs. Ashe a week after the engagement had been announced.

Mrs. Ashe frowned absently. "My dear, I really don't know. I've never seen Crocker terribly anything. I can't say I approve of the thing, and their horoscopes are diametrically opposite. And, this is just to you, dear, I wouldn't say it to anybody else in the world, but it seems to me they quarrel a good deal. At least, it sounds like quarreling to me. I wish we could persuade Crocker to—to act differently. Sometimes I think I ought to oppose it. But there's nothing against the girl, and when I hint at anything Crocker only laughs."

"My idea," said Conchita, her great, limpid eyes on the lady she so ardently desired for a mother-in-law, "is that if we give her enough rope she'll hang herself. Being what she is, sooner or later she's bound to do something that will finish her with Crocker. Let's wait."

This decision she carried the length and breadth of Crocker's intimates.

Strangely enough, Conchita was very near the truth, though she was far enough from dreaming the actual method that Jane's selfhanging was to take.

Every one wondered, also, what was going to happen to Jane Emory's well launched motion picture career. Pasadena concluded that, of course, she would retire immediately. Hollywood hoped she wouldn't and told her so.

Mrs. Ashe broached the subject casually to her son one morning when he came to her sitting room in his golf clothes to tell her good-by.

"I've been wondering, dear," she said, "if you—if she intends to give up her camera work. I don't suppose you'd consider consulting Professor Eltz about it? He's the most wonderful man, Crocker. He actually told me my name and everything the first time I went there. He's so gifted."

"Your picture does get in the paper now and again, mother," said her only son.

He was standing by the window looking out over the lovely rolling acres of lawns and flowers and trees that swept down to the arroyo, with the stately magnificence of the great bridge in the distance, and wondering if Jane would love it as he loved it.

"O, but dear, surely, no one could recognize you from the photos they put in the papers. My last ones made me look exactly like a horse. I'm sure, darling, if you'd consult Professor Eltz about Miss—Jane's career and about your marriage it would be the most wonderful thing."

Crocker Ashe began to laugh, just as his mother feared he would.

"Don't worry, dear. Jane and I don't need to consult anyone. We've settled that ourselves."

They had. It was one of the first things they had settled. And if Mrs. Ashe had heard them in the process she would have made her statement to Conchita even stronger.

They were sitting rather close together at a tiny table in the newly fashionable Cafe Petroushka, famous and fashionable overnight because it was run by a Russian princess and cooked for by the chef of the late czar of all the Russians.

JANE liked the exotic music. It was Hollywood's first successful attempt at Bohemia.

"I say, Crocker," said Jane suddenly "what about my well known career? You can't expect to deprive the great American public of the sight of my noble countenance just when they've got hardened to it. And besides, if you don't mind my saying so, I should become mummified in that great big house with your friends and a mah jongg set to keep me company."

"You can go on working if you want to," Crocker Ashe said indifferently. "I loathe domesticity. There are only two things I cannot forgive money for her portrait. Furthermore she talked about it too.

At first it was thought that the price would be $5,000 plus the expenses of the trip. But when someone suggested that Her Majesty's neck was too long and her ears too short, that Her Highness' complexion was a little pale and her hair a trifle dull, why Jean dabbed a few dabs of white paint here and there and added a hundred dollars a dab to her bill—making it a round ten thousand dollars.

As a matter of fact Jean gets striking effects by a daring and original use of white paint, which, up to date, no one has succeeded in imitating.

When I saw Jean streak on that white paint, just before she let the picture go as finished, I thought the Queen of Belgium was ruined beyond redemption. But—what magic had been wrought! There was sweetness and light in the face, and there was depth and warmth and suggestion of gold in the hair that had not been there before! Yes, I decided that white paint, with Jean McLane at the brush, is easily worth a hundred dollars a dab.

At any rate, Jean fretted about that check until some interested and admiring friend put the whole situation up to Mrs. Harriman, and that was when Mrs. Harriman wrote that check for $10,000 and called it square.

Will someone please page that same friend, for Jan really should have his $15,000 for that picture which hundreds of people admire daily in the National Gallery at Washington. If Jean can get $10,000 for painting one celebrity, why shouldn't Jan have $15,000 for painting a bunch of them? women anyway. Jean seldom paints feminine beauty. It is her delightful portraits of children that have made her famous. You see, the average woman will come for a sitting powdered and decorated with lip stick and rouge. The artist is up against asking her to wash her face and sometimes this is embarrassing. In fact, I know of at least one case where the artist never got his nerve to make this simple request.

That was when Henry W. Parton was painting Ruth Chatterton. She arrived at his studio in a regular make-up—a real stage make-up. Now an artist is, of course, much concerned with flesh tones. But he simply couldn't tell her so. He just painted on. One morning he was careless. He allowed the dainty Ruth to get mixed up with something or other that had fresh paint on it, and he was horrified to see a cruel smear of bright green paint right down the middle of the velvety Chatterton back! Henry is a very modest man but, while he had never been able to get up the courage to ask Ruth to wash her face, he rose magnificently to the occasion, got soap and water and how he did scrub that interesting back! For Ruth is interesting, whether she is coming or going.

Ruth says that if Henry Parton ever loses his technique as a painter he could get a job in a bath house. She recommends him as a scrubber.

I have been told that Mrs. Harriman did think a bit over the size of the McLane bill, though she paid it cheerfully. And I can well believe it. Though Mrs. Harriman has actively managed her estate, said to be worth $100,000,000, since Mr. Harriman's death in 1909, and though she has been able to preserve her fine sense of humor through it all, and very few things escape her.

A few years ago, after a long and arduous effort to see Mrs. Harriman in the interest of a project for improving New York's milk supply, a professional uplifter at last found himself in the presence of this remarkable woman. He was somewhat flurried. This was the opportunity he had been living for. How should he begin. The interview was to be brief. Every minute must count. He coughed a little, folded and unfolded his hands a time or two, and began:

"I have made a very exhaustive study of the milk situation in this city, Mrs. Harriman. I have just completed my report and the manuscript is over four hundred pages."

A merry little light played in Mrs. Harriman's eyes. Just the suggestion of a smile lifted the corners of her sensitive mouth. It wasn't a real smile, though she must have smiled inwardly, as she said. "Well, really my dear sir, I am not interested in the size of your report. I think I should be more interested in a condensed milk report."

Did the uplifter get it? Oh, no certainly not. Anxiety and fear had eaten up any smile that may have brightened the inside of him. He only said, quite solemnly.

"But you see, Mrs. Harriman, my report is not concerned with canned milk. I have studied only fresh milk."

And that was one time when Mrs. Harriman did not write a check. (Copyright, 1924, for The Constitution.)

stand this. You're going to cut off your hair for it?"

"I have to. Of course I am. I've wanted to do it for ages, anyway. All the girls have it bobbed. Have you any objection?"

For the first time she realized that his face was white. His mother could have warned her that since the age of five months that whiteness on Crocker's face had meant sheer, cold rage.

But he was still very polite, and Jane wasn't easily frightened.

"No—I haven't any objection. I wouldn't ever object to anything you did. But, of course, you realize that only shop girls, and dance hall charm-ers bob their hair. O, I admit they don't all work at those professions. But they have the instincts and the soul of them, or they couldn't do it."

"You talk like some old, mid-Victorian reformer," said Jane, indignantly. "I never heard of anything so silly. Why, some of the nicest women I know have bobbed their hair."

"Really? Then I'm sorry for you. Surely you see I couldn't possibly love a woman with her hair cut short. Ugh." He made a shuddery sound of disgust. "Imagine making love to a woman with her neck shaved and running your hand over the back where the clippers go. Not me. O, no."

"You're the most old-fashioned, narrow minded creature I ever heard of," said Jane Emory, "and it's too ridiculous. I never heard any man talk like that before."

"You never belonged to any man before, or you would have," said Crocker. "Men don't care what women do that they aren't married to or really in love with. The sillier they are the easier they are to get. Let them make themselves cheap and common if they want to. Men only laugh at them behind their backs and try to get them for sweethearts, to their faces. But you ask any of your friends that are married, or have men that really love them, or fathers, or brothers, and you bet you'll find they had trouble with their men when it came to bobbing their hair and making themselves look like—O, damn it, Janey, you know as well as I do that bobbed hair is nothing but the last sensation of a lot of sensation-mad common women."

"I don't know anything of the kind. Pooh, it's just progress. I read in some old book the other day that the heroine loved the hero's beautiful long red whiskers. There were other things she liked about him, but she had first been attracted by his grand beard. It gave me a laugh, and just thought then that in another fifty years it'll sound just as funny to read about women's beautiful long hair. Besides, you don't know how uncomfortable long hair is. This great wad always making my head ache, and the harpins sticking into my scalp—it would be just heaven to have it off."

"Very well, if you insist on—"

"O, maybe I wouldn't, if you were going to make such a terrible fuss about it and act like it was a tragedy."

"Don't fool yourself. It is."

"It is not. Anyway, it isn't whether I want to or not. I have to cut it or I can't play that part. So there isn't any use talking about it, is there?"

"Perhaps not. You are the judge of that. But you could hardly expect me to marry a woman I didn't love, could you? And I couldn't possibly love a woman with her hair cut. And, as you've said yourself, it's your own beauty, I couldn't really love a woman with short hair. I might—kiss her. A man'll kiss most anything. But she couldn't be my wife. You see that?"

"Are you breaking our engagement?"

"No, you're doing that. If you bob your hair you won't be my Janey. So I just automatically wouldn't be engaged to you."

"Crocker Ashe. I never heard of anything so—trivial in my life. Your're crazy. Why no man—"

"My dear Jane, I am only courageously voicing what most men feel. And it's my private belief that bobbed hair has caused half of the divorces in the last year, either directly or indirectly. I propose to stop this side of the divorce court if I can."

"But Crocker, Maurice cuts them so you can't tell they're bobbed; honestly, he does. Just makes the shape of your head nice. If I had to have anybody else cut it—"

"You've lovely hair. I'm not the one that's crazy—you are."

"Crocker! I've had enough of this. You know you can't order me around like this. Tell me what I can or can't do, or else your royal highness won't marry me. That may go very well with—"

Her teeth clicked into the middle of the word. The car leaped ahead with disconcerting violence.

IN silence they drove to Jane's house and he helped her out.

"How soon do you have to decide this thing?" he asked then.

"O, I'll have to finish this picture first. Two or three weeks."

"Then will you let me know what your decision is?"

Before she could answer, the car shot away.

Jane, trailing her sport coat after her across the sidewalk, ran up the steps, into the lighted house, and burst into tears.

In two days Hollywood, Pasadena, and Los Angeles buzzed with the news that Crocker Ashe and Jane Emory had broken their engagement. The sensation was second only to that caused originally by the engagement itself. The newspapers headlined the new rumor and both Mr. Ashe and Miss Emory were suspiciously silent.

Trouble was apparent to the most casual eye. Crocker Ashe went to Del Monte, where he disgraced himself forever as a golfer. Jane Emory went on working on her picture and lost weight she could not afford to lose.

Conchita and her mother, motor-ing to San Francisco, stopped for lunch at Del Monte and Conchita cornered Crocker on the big, old fashioned veranda.

"Have you broken your engage-ment?"

"I don't think so. What ideas you do get, Conchita."

"Then you've quarreled."

"Possibly. We're human."

"If you quarrel now, what'll you do after you're married?"

"By the law of human perversities we should be a couple of turtle doves."

She looked up at him, her big, dark eyes shadowed beneath the soft waves of her blue-black hair. "It's only that we want to see you happy, Crocker, dear," she said.

"That's very kind of you," said Crocker gallantly. "Possibly it would be better for me to remain an old bachelor at that."

And that was as far as anybody got with Crocker Ashe.

And Jane Emory could talk a great deal and say nothing, which she did.

It didn't seem possible that Jane was going to let Crocker Ashe slip through her fingers at this late date, even if she was going to play "The Girl from Montmartre."

These matters stood until one afternoon, two weeks and three days later, when Jane telephoned the big house in Pasadena and asked Crocker to come to see her that evening.

Crocker Ashe gave his coat and hat to the maid and went slowly across the hall and into the same drawing room where only two months before he had first kissed her.

He was a little more casual than usual, a little more immaculate. The amused indifference of his face had lost much of its easy gravity. There was a gleam in his eyes that a gambler might have identified—the gleam of a man who has his entire bank roll in a jackpot and is about to look at his one card draw.

He lounged through the curtains and stood there, smiling, looking about the pleasant amber lighted room, gay with flowers and cheerful with a bright wood fire.

At the far end stood a slim girl in a straight frock of white, with some marvelous jade beads about her throat. Her eyes were black with excitement and her breath came quickly through parted lips.

Against the polished oak paneling her gold head stood out like the portrait of a blonde choir boy, the glistening hair cropped in short, crisp, close waves from the back of her lovely neck to the serene line of her brow. The white frock fitted tightly about the flat, slender shoulders and the amazingly slender waist, and just at first glimpse she might have been an impudent boy of twelve garbed in his sister's party dress.

Young Crocker Ashe made her a gallant bow, and there was nothing in his deepening smile to show he had just drawn a black card to his heart flush. He was a good loser.

"Allow me to congratulate you," he said with a little flourish. "It's quite entrancing, I admit it. I'm sure you'll be quite the rage and entirely eclipse your past self."

He went over, and, taking her hand, kissed it rather brutally and quite insultingly.

"And now allow me to bid you a very good evening," he said, "and wish you all sorts of luck in the great part."

With that little slouch of his he went leisurely toward the doorway.

"Don't!" said a broken voice behind him. "Don't go!"

He turned slowly, and for the first time it was plain that he was suffer-ing, shaken, anguished. His face was white and pathetically hurt, as though the new trembling that shook him was the beating of a broken heart.

Jane Emory had never dreamed he could do that.

"Don't!" she said wildly. "It's only a wig."

She swept it off and stood before him, her own lovely hair banded close about her head like a cap of gold.

"See," she said tenderly. "I didn't cut it. But—you would have gone! You could have left me—"

Crocker Ashe put his arms about her and his cheek against the dear, warm cap of golden hair.

"I wouldn't have cared if you had," he said brokenly. And I wouldn't have gone. It was a bluff. I couldn't. You can cut it if you want to, dear. You can. I should love you if you shaved it."

"No, I don't want to. I don't want to do anything you don't want me to, dear."

Some time later Crocker Ashe said, "Well, I think we can call this round a draw."

Instantly she flamed, straightening in his arms. "Crocker Ashe," she said, "you're—vulgar. There are times when I just hate you!"

"Thank God for that!" said Crocker Ashe blissfully. "I can imagine nothing more awful than living with a woman who always loved you."

Just How Rich King Nebuchadnezzar Was

Shadrach, Meshach or Abed-nego, and, according to the Book of Daniel, Nebuchadnezzar cried out in great astonishment, "Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt, and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God."

Realizing that he had made a grave mistake Nebuchadnezzar ordered the three men to come out of the flames and it was then discovered that the fire had had no power over them. Nebuchadnezzar then issued a decree that anyone speaking against God should be put to death.

Your GLANDS and NERVES Are Your "Fountain of Youth!"

MIGHTY, mysterious forces for the re-energizing and rejuvenation of your body lie within you, modern scientists affirm! Your glands and nerve centers are your wellsprings of life, your "Fountain of Youth," according to the recent findings of noted physicians.

If your glands are active and your great nerve centers functioning properly, the chances are that you are vigorous and "young," regardless of your years.

But, if your glands are weakened and your important nerve centers dormant, or only feebly active, no doubt you are "old," weak, lacking in vigor—even if you are still "on the brighter side of forty."

Failure of gland and nerve functions brings a train of distressing and humiliating symptoms. Hair fades and falls. Teeth decay. Tissues waste and become flabby. Wrinkles appear. Eyesight, hearing and other senses are impaired. Circulation is retarded, and parts of the body may become cold or numb. But—worst of all—vitality goes, ambition is lost, daily tasks become a grind and life is robbed of its interest and its zest.

Do any or all of these symptoms apply to you? Then, unquestionably, you will be glad to know that medical science has found means of increasing glandular activity and arousing the great nerve centers to the full performance of their duty.

Great physicians—both American and European—declare "rejuvenation" to be an accomplished fact, and cite many instances of having restored youthful vigor to the weak and the aged. Still more encouraging are reports coming by scores from persons who say they have been invigorated and made "young" again by a recent medical discovery—a safe, simple home treatment, used privately—a treatment now available to you and everyone.

AN IMPORTANT EUROPEAN DISCOVERY

A few years ago, European specialists announced an important discovery—a remarkable invigorator—a substance which acted directly and powerfully on dominant lower spinal nerve centers.

Its effects, the Old World physicians said, included: A sense of renewed vigor, sometimes within a few hours. Improved circulation. A return of youthful animation. Sharpening of the senses. Greater capacity for work. Renewed interest in life—in short, "rejuvenation."

An American chemist decided to adapt the substance to a safe, simple, inexpensive home treatment. So, with the idea of supplementing its effects and producing lasting benefits, he combined it with other ingredients—one said, by Dr. Lorand, an authority on rejuvenation, to be of value in gland weakness; another recognized almost universally as a tonic, and so on.

The outcome of the chemist's work was the tablet preparation known as Korex Compound, pronounced by thousands the most wonderful invigorator in their experience.

Korex has been put to the test by persons of all ages—in every part of America and in foreign lands. Its record is amazing. Young folks who felt "old" say it promptly renewed their vigor and ambition. Men 60 to 85 declare it has made them truly "young" again. Many tell of having felt its power within 12 to 24 hours—even in obstinate cases—and of remarkable restorations accomplished within one to three weeks.

Quick Renewal of Gland Activity and Vigor Reported

The following condensed reports are typical of the favorable comment made by users of Korex Compound:

I felt new vigor and strength within 10 hours after I began taking Korex—W. Adkins, Bel. La. Korex tablets make a man out of an old rag. I am 79 years old but felt the effects of them in two days.—C. H. King, Tinsman, Ark. Korex Compound took effect on me in 24 hours.—R. A. Leonard, Geneva, O.

Korex has done as much for me as a gland operation. My glands were made active in a few days, and I am now completely rejuvenated.—J. W. Helms, Billings, Mont. I never saw anything like Korex. My glands are awake and youth and vigor completely restored.—Harry Dauman, Cleveland, O. I have been saved from a condition that nearly wrecked my happiness. Now I can look the world in the face again. Korex has renewed my natural vigor.—Frank Jackson, Baltimore, Md.

Korex is wonderful and is giving me new life. I feel 30 years younger and my gland activity has been restored. Five days after starting treatment I was like a boy 18 years of age and improving all the time.—R. E. Lewis, Pace, Fla. Korex has helped me wonderfully. I feel like I had a new set of glands. I am like a young man again and think I have got all the benefit I could have got from a gland operation. Korex is certainly a fountain of youth.—Geo. H. Lewis, Memphis, Tenn.

10-Day Trial--No Money Risked

Korex Compound has made an amazing record—but we do not ask you to accept that record as proof. We will send Korex to you, under a money-back guarantee, and let it speak for itself. Here is the guarantee—intended solely for your protection, leaving everything to your judgment, meaning exactly what it says and backed by $10,000 in Kansas City bank:

If you order a full-strength $2 treatment of Korex on trial and report to us within 10 days that you are not satisfied, we will refund the purchase price at once, upon request.

Get this right! If you ask for the return of your money, we will not argue with you or urge you to try Korex. We will return your money!

You can't lose your $2. You can't even risk it. Korex MUST "make good" or cost you nothing—so clip, fill out and mail coupon RIGHT NOW!

Read These Modern "Miracle Stories"

WHEN the subject of restoring youthful vigor to the aged is mentioned, plenty of people always are ready to shout: "It can't be done!" Read these three modern "miracle stories"—told by men who have used Korex—and judge for yourself. Hundreds of similar reports have been submitted by persons who have put Korex Compound to the test.

The Story of J. L. Rowell, 84

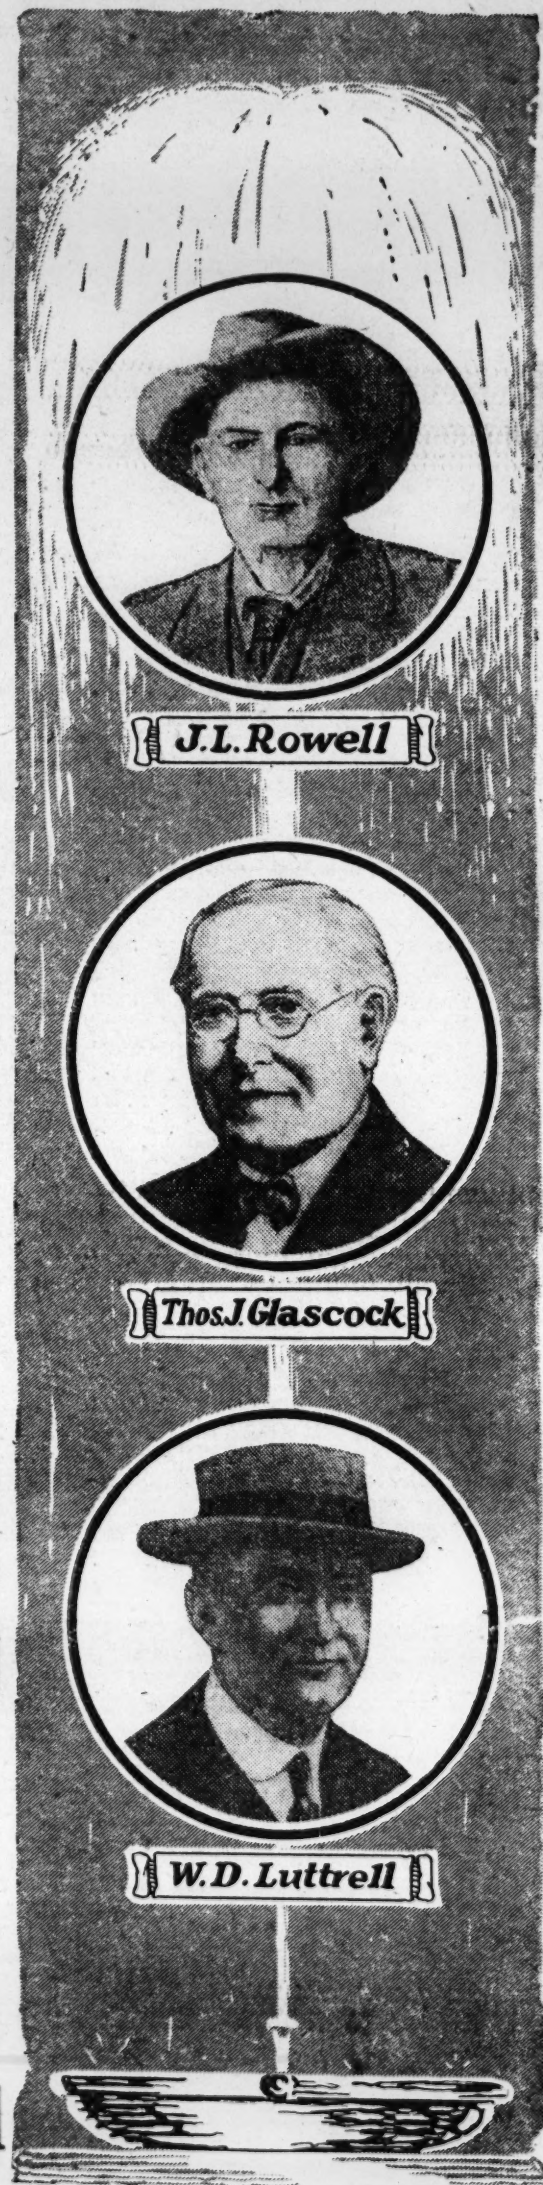

I have experienced a complete rejuvenation through the use of Korex Compound. Without any gland operation or expensive gland treatments, my glands have been made active, my vital nerve centers awakened and I have been made young again. I feel as young and vigorous as I did at 30, although I am 84. It is certainly not too much to say that I have found a "fountain of youth." My muscles feel supple, my eyesight is clearer, I walk with a firm, elastic step and can get out and do a man's work. Korex has simply been wonderful, and I want every sufferer who is in the same condition I was to try Korex Compound.—J. L. Rowell, Kaw City, Okla.

The Story of Thos. J. Glascock, 75

In December, 1922, I prepared to die. I was unable to work and could hardly walk. I was almost blind, my memory was virtually gone and my mind was dull. I was indeed a physical and mental wreck when I decided to try Korex. The results seemed almost miraculous. A great improvement came within a week, and after three weeks' use of Korex I was as well and energetic as in the prime of life. My mind was clear, memory restored and my eyesight so good I could read the finest print. Pains and weaknesses of many years' standing had disappeared and my body was both strong and supple. In short, I was young again. Now, six months after taking my first Korex tablet, I feel like I did at 35 and actually seem to be getting stronger every day.—Thos. J. Glascock, Kansas City, Kan. (Age 75.)

The Story of W. D. Luttrell, 68

Korex is just fine. Since I began using it, I have gained 21 pounds and never felt better in my life. Without any gland operation, my youthful vigor has been restored, and I owe this rejuvenation and awakening of glands and nerves to Korex Compound. I am 68 years old, but don't feel a day over 30. I feel just like a kid and haven't an ache or a pain. There is nothing too good to say for this wonderful remedy. It is the best thing I ever heard of to build up a man. Try it and you will say, "Luttrell is truthful."—W. D. Luttrell, Lincoln, Neb.

SUMMER SCHOOL

By Jane Corby

Said the crayon to the chalk,
"Vacation time is here!
There's nothing we can do but talk
For weeks and weeks, I fear.
We can't show children how to spell,
For we'll see none, as you know well!
Vacation time is here,
The dull time of the year."

Said the chalk with a pallid smile,
"I miss the children too!
And I've been thinking quite a while
Of what we ought to do.
I can't sit idle all day long,
For idleness is very wrong!
But I've an idea in my head
Of something we might do instead."

"I've heard," declared the chalk,
"About a school of fishes!
Perhaps if we could take a walk

Down where the water
swishes We'd find this school, and—who can tell?
Teach little fishes how to spell!
It's something fishes ought to know,
They are exposed to danger so."

Said the crayon, "Well, indeed,
Your plan is most alluring!
I'm sure we shall be friends
in need,
And very reassuring,
To little fishes who should know
How 'bait' is spelled; so let us go
And find this school without delay,
We'll start our work this very day."

Said the chalk, "Come on,
I'm ready,
Now do not slip or slide.
You're never very steady—

Keep closely to my side."
Then hand in hand, on careful feet,
They walked sedately down
the street,
And never stopped until they found
The pleasant country all around.

Beneath the shady trees
They spied a funny brook.
It said, "What silly folk are these?"
And laughed until it shook.
But the chalk and crayon never spoke,
And when a bubble rose and broke
They jumped right in and hand in hand Descended to the floor of sand.

Said the crayon, "There's the school!

I see the fish in line.
Now let us both keep very cool
And get things going fine."
The little fish who couldn't spell
Were far more glad than I can tell When the crayon, with a few remarks, Declared they all would soon be sharks.

So the crayon and the chalk
Are busy for a season
At teaching young fish how to balk
At bait, and for what reason.
But when the dry land school begins They'll leave their little friends with fins,
And when you meet them
in the fall
They'll look a little worn;
that's all.

EDDIE COLLINS TELLS THE QUALITIES THE TENDERFOOT NEEDED BY THE BIG LEAGUE PLAYER

(Written by Eddie Collins Exclusively for This Page)

What Eddie Collins tells boys today in the last of his baseball articles about the possibilities for success in a professional baseball career are the facts drawn from this great player's long experience. Collins started playing ball when he was a boy in college. In 1906, when he first reported to Connie Mack for a try-out at big league ball, he was a frail, spindly-shanked youth.

He was given a chance as shortstop and the fans marked him as an awful flop. They decided he simply wouldn't do at all. But Connie Mack kept him because he thought he could play ball. And Connie was right. Collins worked up into a player of the first rank. The reason that he has been able to convert himself into a star that outshines others is due to concentration on the job and absolute thoroughness. Just the things he advocates for other boys who aspire to a baseball career.

What Qualities Should a Boy Have to Become a Good Ball Player?

It is taken for granted that he must have natural ability—how great a percentage I will not attempt to say. But in addition to that, I think one of the most sterling characteristics that he should embody is a desire to win. This can be expressed in other and broader ways: hustle, keep trying and never quit. I could, if space permitted, cite numerous examples where "pep" alone kept a player a job on a ball club after his ability had become almost nil as far as actual play was concerned. Such spirit and aggressiveness is con-gious in a team and it keeps every one on his toes hustling. It is such spirit and work that a manager wants and expects. We can't all be successful. Only ONE team can win at a time. A player is not expected to get a base hit every time he goes to bat, but every team is expected to hustle and fight, and every player is called upon to do his best at all times; and if this is maintained, victory is sure to come eventually.

Would You Advise a Boy to Undertake a Baseball Career?

A ball player is not like a doctor, lawyer, or any other kind of professional man who can study, learn and become a success. A ball player, I believe, is fundamentally born, not made. True, practice and perseverance will perfect many a mediocre player into a star, but there must be that instinct, or whatever it is, present in order to make it worth while for the boy to continue a baseball career. I would never advise any boy to neglect his school or education to start his baseball career. The time consumed by learning and lost by play will never be missed. There is no cleaner, healthier or more remunerative form of livelihood than baseball. Why shouldn't any one take it up if he so desires? I have two boys and I have no objection to their becoming ball players, IF THEY ARE ABLE.

In these last few lines, you can dig deep. I would say off handed, if a fellow could exhibit enough ability to play ball in the major leagues where there is no limit to the money he can earn, all well and good. But for one who cannot make the big league grade, I would never think it wise to follow it long.

Her Opinion

He: "You have read my new novel. How do you like it?"
She: "The covers are too far apart."

The seasoned woodsman who knows the signs of rain even though the day be sunny, who can track an animal through the thicket by the footprints it leaves behind and who can, moreover, tell what kind of an animal it is, recognizes just as well the signs of the tenderfoot camper when he comes upon the ashes of his fire. For the person who is unused to the outdoor life frequently leaves his title and bad reputation behind him in the form of old tin cans, papers and rubbish that are a disgrace to the beautiful spot that sheltered him.

This summer when you make that trip to the wilds, don't advertise your ignorance in camping etiquette by being an untidy camper. Be rather a gentleman camper with due respect for all of nature around you. Read the questions below and decide your station in camping society. If you answer yes to a single one, you prove you are a tenderfoot.

- Do you leave the camp-fire unextinguished when you break camp?
- Do you carve your initials on the trees?
- Do you destroy flowers and ferns?
- Do you pollute the streams with filth?
- Do you destroy the trail by taking short cuts and switch-backs?
- Do you kill every snake you see?
- Do you shoot at birds?
- Do you trap harmless animals?
- Are you a general nuisance on the trail and in camp?
- Do you leave the camping ground an uninviting spot for the next camper?

Not Particular

Fuller: "You didn't know who I was this morning, did you?"
Fisher: "No, who were you?"

IN SNOPPYQUOP LAND

WHERE NOTHING SEEMS QUEER

A N-ICE SNOPPYQUOP

This is how the Snoppyquops get their ice. Mr. I. C. Snow, who won the North Pole vault in the Arctic Olympics, is with us today, hurrying along with a load of hard water. He trudges down the avenue until he sees an ice sign hanging out, and then, if he's overweight, hangs around a bit in the sun until he evaporates down to the proper amount. Or, if that's too slow, he'll eat a hot dog. Reducing is hard for some people, but not for Mr. I. C. Snow.

Mr. Snow never gets excited. He doesn't always use the best grammar, perhaps, not having been a college ice, but he never lets his temper boil over. He always keeps cool.

I. C. never can fool anybody about anything, as it's so easy to see through him. For instance, if he says, "My heart is broken," why, just take a look and you'll see it's quite intact. Cold-hearted, yes, but broken-hearted—no! It's frozen too solid. He's on the square, though, no matter from which side you look at him.

LIVELY GAMES TO PLAY AT CAMP

The "Cup Fight" Is a Boisterous Stunt

In between hikes and swims and fishing trips at camp, boys like to play games—good games with lots of punch and noise and action. This is one of a series of games that are fun makers either at camp or right in your own back yard.

When a gang of boys seeking something exciting gets together, let some of them put on an exhibition by staging a rousing "cup fight." There's just enough fighting in this game to make it lively.

An even number of boys play the game, and, if possible, they should be nearly the same size. If there is room enough, let any number play. But at least four must be in the game to make it a success. Each player wears a boxing glove on one hand and has a tin cup with a stone in it in the other. It doesn't make any difference which hand has the boxing glove or which has the tin cup.

The players are securely blindfolded and placed in two rows, back to back. At a signal, the fighting starts, but in order to hit any one with your glove, you have to find him first. That's where the tin cup comes in—you can tell where a fellow is by hearing him rattling his tin cup. Every player must make a noise with his cup.

The game is played in a period of two minutes. When the whistle blows, all hitting must stop. There should be some one to keep a record of the blows struck by each player. When the game is over, the one who made the most hits wins.

If one player strikes another with his cup, he is put out of the game.

A Tragedy

A peanut lay on a railroad track. Its heart was all a-flutter; The 8:15 came thundering past, Toot! Toot! Peanut butter!

THINGS TO DO AND THINGS TO MAKE

AN INDOOR BOOMERANG

Yes, sir! A harmless boomerang! And you can use it indoors! Just the thing for a rainy day, fellows. Get a firm piece of cardboard about 3 inches square and not too thick. It must not be flimsy, as it is going to get some hard knocks. Now draw a boomerang on this cardboard, as shown. Be sure both "arms" balance. Then cut it out.

The rest is easy. Simply lay your boomerang on a book. Have one "arm" project, tilt the book up a bit, and snap the "arm" of the boomerang with your finger. Away she goes! And if you've aimed it at the proper angle it will spin back into your lap after finishing its little trip. One or two attempts and you'll have the system down pat.

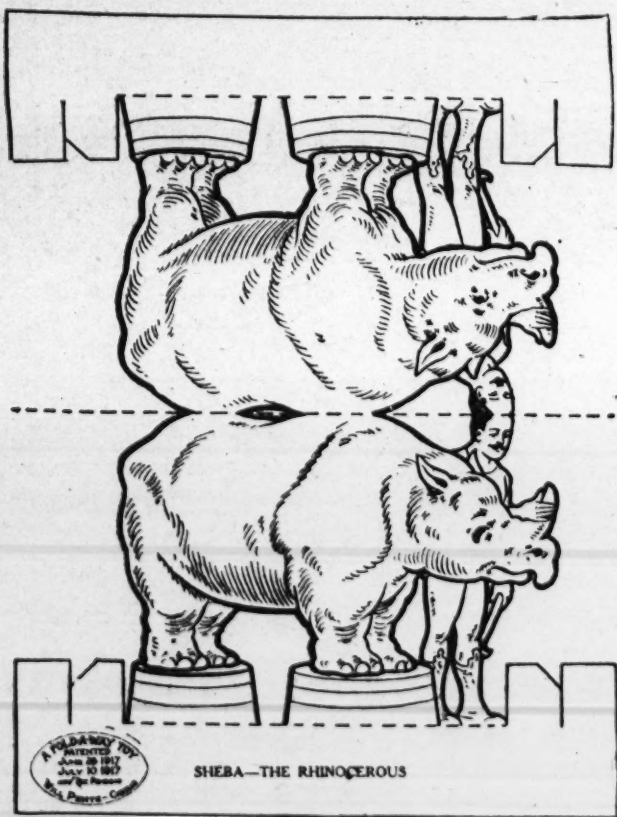

You can make these boomerangs smaller if you like, and instead of snapping them you can strike them sharply with a pencil.

MAKE PERFUME: EASY

All you have to do to make some extra fine perfume—some which will smell just as sweet as perfume you buy—is this:

SHEBA—THE RHINOCEROS

My, what an ugly customer Sheba is! But the trainer seems to have her well trained for she stands there ready to be introduced by Mr. Ringmaster who will tell the audience where Sheba was captured and what she lives on. Sheba is a slate color, the tubs she is standing on might be colored blue with red hoops and the trainer has on pink tights with golden yellow high shoes. Color his face and hands a light pink. The base of all the COLORTOYS should be a tan color. Ask Dad to cut out the white part under Sheba with his penknife.
